Italians Launch Drive To Cut Red Sea Route, Mass Against Egypt

Port, Two Towns Near Gulf of Aden Fall in Attack on British Somaliland

Bulletin

London (Friday), Aug. 8 (AP).—A government white paper announcing an important new policy affecting India was reported this morning to be ready for publication this afternoon.

Secretary for India L. S. Amery was expected to announce the policy to Parliament, stating how far Britain is willing to go to satisfy India's demands for independence and, perhaps, also giving a plan under which embattled Britain would tap the wealth and manpower of India to carry on the war with Germany and Italy.

Battle for Empire

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Aug. 7.—Italians advancing in British Somaliland in an apparent overture to a great war for dominance in Africa have marched into Zeila, a port on the Gulf of Aden across from the British protectorate of Aden, and captured Hargeisa, British Somaliland, in strong force.

This was acknowledged today by the British, along with the Italian capture of a third objective, the town of Oadweina, in the Somaliland, while other and much heavier Fascist forces were massing in Libya for an attack upon Britain's vital strongholds in Egypt.

Zeila, about 100 miles southeast of French Djibouti, was declared to have been undefended.

All these moves suggested an Italian campaign to occupy the region of the southern outlet of the Red Sea—an essential in British Empire communications—before the expected assault on Egypt itself.

British Deny Invasion

The British proclaimed at their Middle Eastern headquarters here that they welcomed the showdown, expressing confidence that the British navy would starve and cut off Premier Mussolini's African soldiers in the end and destroy his African dream.

The Italian forces facing Egypt—the land of the Suez Canal so essential to the British—were concentrated near Barfia, Libya. The British declared officially the enemy had not set foot across the frontier.

"The only Italians presently on Egyptian soil," they said, "are one general and 818 officers and others—prisoners."

The British were declared offi-

House Votes to Send U. S. Ships To Rescue British Children

Amendment to Require American Personnel Exclusively on Vessels Assailed by Bloom; Safe-Conducts Would Be Necessary

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The Hennings bill to allow American ships to rescue children from the war zones of Europe was passed by the House yesterday after adoption of an amendment which supporters of the measure said would "destroy" it.

The amendment that particularly aroused the ire of its supporters would require that the adult personnel accompanying the children be exclusively American. Proposed by Representative Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin, the provision was adopted, 91 to 64, by a virtually solid block of Republicans, plus a number of Democrats.

"You've destroyed the bill; it's impossible for this bill to operate now," declared Chairman Bloom, of the Foreign Affairs Committee. Representative Hennings (Democrat), of Missouri, said, however, that the amendment was "unnecessary and surplusage but does not affect the main provisions of the bill," of which he was the original sponsor.

The measure, which now goes to the Senate after House approval by voice vote would amend the neutrality act to permit American vessels to enter war zones for the rescue of children under 16 years of age, providing that safe-conducts are first granted by all the belligerent nations. The ships would be required to sail in ballast and be distinctly marked.

Under an admendment proposed by Representative Taber (Republican, of New York, families receiving the children would be held legally responsible for their care, just as if they were their own children. This was adopted, 80 to 68. A few clarifying amendments were also approved.

Although it was pointed out on the floor that the measure would allow American ships to go into any war zone and rescue children of any nationality, it was nonetheless clear that the prime object of the bill is to make it possible to bring

Nazis Step Up Bomb Attacks On England

Lone R. A. F. Plane Raids Hangars, Planes At LeBourget Field

By the Associated Press

A Southwest Town of England (Thursday), Aug. 8.—Two waves of German warplanes raided this town last night and early today as German airmen suddenly accelerated their attacks on Great Britain after a brief rest.

The Germans twice dropped brilliant flares to light up the whole town. Immediately afterward, the dull boom of bombs was heard somewhere on the outskirts and then British fighters were heard racing to intercept their enemy.

Scores of searchlights swept the sky as the engines of the bombers were distinctly heard.

Western England Bombed

Elsewhere, one enemy plane which crossed the northeast coast early today sped a short distance inland and dropped a number of bombs before rushing out to sea; one bomber seen over the northeast coast was believed to have dropped three bombs.

The Germans also dropped bombs in western England last night and early today and harassed other sections of England and Wales.

First reports indicated there were one or two slight casualties and slight damage done to property in the residential district of one town in southwest England, where the Nazis dropped four or five bombs.

In fields of combat with Germany at sea and in the air the British reported:

Senate Hearing Today on D. C. Congress Seats

King Summons Subcommittee to Spur Action on the Floor

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, last night took steps to give the question of District representation in Congress independent consideration in the Senate.

A subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee which he heads, the Senator announced, will meet at 10 a. m. today "to talk over the bill and see what we want to do."

"As far as I'm concerned I am rather inclined to report out a bill," King said.

The measure the subcommittee will consider would amend the Constitution to give Washingtonians the right to elect representatives in the House and Senate and to choose Presidential electors. The bill also would empower Congress to grant the District self-government.

Senate Waited House Action

Senator King explained the proposed legislation will be treated by his committee as an entirely new subject and just as though there had been no consideration of a similar measure in the House.

It has been known for several days that the Senate has delayed consideration of the bill out of respect for the initiative of Representative Hatton W. Sumners (Democrat), of Texas. Sumners sponsored a resolution identical to the Senate bill prior to its amendment limiting Washington to House representation.

Sumners, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, which has favorably reported his resolution to the House, has advised Senate lead-

'Tainted' Money Becomes Issue At French 'War Guilt' Trial

By the United Press

Riom, France, Aug. 7.—Allegations that "tainted" foreign money influenced France's declaration of war against Germany will be investigated when the new French Supreme Court convenes here tomorrow to fix the "war guilt" of prominent Frenchmen, including three former premiers.

The court, created by the new Petain regime to hear testimony that may be sensational in its ramifications, will be convened when the ten justices in red togas trimmed with ermine are installed formally by Minister of Justice Raphael Alibert.

The installation will be a public ceremony, but immediately after the formalities the judges will go into secret session and may sit in camera for fifteen or sixteen weeks.

The judges will be in session five days a week for two or three months, studying the evidence of the war responsibility of former Premiers Edouard Daladier, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum; former Allied Commander in Chief Maurice Gamelin; former Minister of Interior Georges Mandel, and many others.

It is doubtful even whether the names of those accused will be announced and it may be that the course of the inquiry will be gleaned only from watching those who come and go or who are summoned for evidence.

On the eve of the start of the far-reaching inquiry before a court from which there can be no appeal, the government of Marshal Petain decided to instruct the Supreme Court to extend its inquiry's scope to determine whether any foreign power distributed funds among

Air Hostess Mysteriously Hurt in Plane

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 7 (AP).—A 24-year-old woman registered as Miss Rosemary Grimth, of New York City, stewardess for American Air Lines, was admitted tonight to a hospital for treatment of body and head injuries shortly after the plane on which she was serving arrived at the local airport.

Unconfirmed reports said she was found unconscious in a rear compartment of the plane shortly before its arrival.

Officials of the airline declined to discuss the incident, other than to say they were investigating. The departure of the plane was held up for some time as police joined the inquiry.

D. C. Wins Control Of Budget

U. S. Bureau Ends 19-Year Domination Over Expenditures Of Local Nature

The Federal Budget Bureau yesterday turned over primary responsibility for the District's annual budget to the Commissioners, thus ending its 19-year complete domination over local expenditures.

Announcement of the change in policy by Budget Bureau Director Harold D. Smith was received enthusiastically by District officials and civic spokesmen.

Within an hour after news of the bureau's action reached Capitol Hill, Representative Ambrose J. Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, set in motion a drive to have the House consider Monday his bill to reorganize the District government.

The measure, favorably reported by the House District Committee, was pigeonholed in May when President Roosevelt objected to a provision which would have removed Washington from Budget Bureau control.

Kennedy, after hurried conferences, announced the bill had been given the green light by House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn and Representative Everett M. Dirksen, ranking minority member of the District Committee, provided the bureau's decision removed objection from the White House.

Bill Provides for Streamlining

Chairman Jennings Randolph, of the House District Committee, said he would have a second conference with Kennedy today before final determination of his attitude. He indicated, however, that he would not be opposed to consideration of the bill if he could be satisfied there would be no further objection from the President.

The Kennedy bill provides for streamlining the municipal establishment into 11 departments. Substantially broadens the power of the District Commissioners and creates the position of administrative assistant to the Commissioners whose first duty would be to execute the reorganization plan.

In an editorial last November, The Washington Post urged the Budget Bureau, as "an act of statesmanship," to send local estimates to Congress "without attempting to set its judgment above that of officials who give all their time to municipal affairs."

In Letter to Hazen

In a letter to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners, Smith said his bureau hereafter would limit itself to reviewing the revenue estimates, the allocation of capital outlay moneys, the reimbursement of the United States Treasury for Federal loans, the amount of the Federal contribution, and the balancing of the budget.

In effect, the bureau will review the annual budget only in matters relating to the Federal Government and its agencies.

Smith also said the Budget Bureau, in matters of District legislation, will concern itself with the effect the legislation has on the Senate Votes on Guard Bill Today; Arsenals to Work 24-Hour Day to Speed Arms

Production Increase Ordered as British Offer Huge New War Contracts

Six Government arsenals were ordered onto a 24-hour production basis yesterday as huge new British orders were offered to American arms plants, already making a start on the biggest defense program since World War days.

The day saw these developments in the Nation's struggle to translate billions in United States and British orders into weapons of war:

The arsenals were ordered to go on a three-shift basis Saturday by Secretary of War Stimson, in order to increase production of munitions at least 65 per cent.

"Hundreds of millions of dollars" worth of new British orders for tanks, artillery and other weapons the British have never bought here before were offered to industry by Arthur B. Purvis, British purchasing agent in this country. The orders may bring the total of British war buying here to almost $2,000,000,000.

Alaskan Naval Sector Created

Gen. Marshall, Army chief of staff, at a press conference, said that conscripting industry was a plan "simple of conception but very difficult of execution." A draft of factory power had been suggested as a method of speeding arms production and a companion to the draft of men, now before Congress.

The question of selling United States destroyers to Great Britain is strictly up to Congress, Navy Secretary Frank Knox told newsmen in reply to a request for his personal opinion on the matter.

Creation of a new Alaskan naval sector, a portion of the present Thirteenth Naval District, was announced by Secretary Knox.

Purvis laid his plan for the large, new British buying program before Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday. The expansion of British purchasing was announced simultaneously in the House of Commons by Arthur Greenwood, Laborite Minister.

Tank Experts Present

Flanked by three British military and industrial technicians, Purvis was understood to have described to Morgenthau, who coordinates foreign and domestic arms buying, a long-range program of British purchases. This program would take the place of "crisis" buying which the British have done here up to now, confining their orders so far to much-needed planes and other emergency equipment.

Tanks and field artillery would bulk large in the new purchasing, Purvis said. Bulwarking his statement was the fact that he was accompanied to the Treasury by Brig. Gen. D. H. Pratt and Michael Dewar, British tank experts. Also Draft Machinery in District Ready for Go-Ahead Signal

Set-Up Awaits President's Proclamation Upon Passage of Conscription Measure; Commissioners to Recommend Board

By George Thorpe.
Post Staff Writer

Machinery for the registration of 65,000 District men, 21 to 31 years old, for compulsory military training immediately upon passage of conscription legislation was described yesterday for The Post by officials of the Joint Army-Navy Selective Service Committee.

The plan embraces a "classification" system, or secondary stage in calling up the Capital's manpower and applies on a local scale a Nation-wide Selective Service program expected to enforce any conscription legislation passed by Congress.

The country-wide program was developed in the last 20 years by a group of Army, Navy and Marine officers who are members of the Joint Committee and are specialists in selection methods.

Heading the Selective Service Committee, which has headquarters at the Army War College, is Maj. Lewis B. Hershey, general staff officer of the War Department.

The machinery would be thrown into high gear with a Presidential proclamation announcing registration day. This, it is expected, would be declared a national holiday.

Immediately, the District Commissioners, automatically titular heads of the local selection administration, would recommend to the President names of Washingtonians for appointment to selective service personnel posts.

Top administrative post would be a selective service executive. Immediately below him in responsibility would be two inspectors.

Also to be appointed by the President on the Commissioners' recommendation would be a registration board whose number was not specified but which would include Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown and School Superintendent Frank Ballou. (Personnel of both the police force and the public schools is vital to the regis-

Willkie Favors Hatch Curb On President

Wants Amendment To Prevent Family Profiting by Office

By International News Service

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 7. Wendell Willkie tonight recommended amendments to the Hatch Act so stringent they would operate against any member of the President's family, Cabinet officers, or administrative officers having any business transaction, direct or indirect, with the Government.

In addition, the Republican Presidential nominee would have every administrative officer file a statement of his personal assets upon assuming office and again upon retiring.

For himself, Willkie said that even if such amendments were not passed, he personally would file a statement of his assets and one for each member of his family assuming office, if elected in November.

"I favor any amendments to the Hatch Act that will make it air tight," he said at a press conference.

Urges Amendment

"The members of the President's Cabinet, of important regulatory commissions and the President himself should file with the Secretary of State a detailed list of personal assets upon assuming office and a like listing in detail when leaving office.

"I shall do it for myself and my immediate family.

Roosevelt To See Wallace, Hopkins Today

May Discuss Plans For Vigorous Campaign By Agriculture Secretary

By the Associated Press

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 7.—President Roosevelt and his running mate, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, will meet tomorrow for a conference at which they will have an opportunity to discuss campaign strategy.

On hand, too, for the meeting, will be Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, who directed the campaign to obtain a third nomination for the Chief Executive.

This will make the second time since the convention that Wallace and the President have met. After their first talk it was announced that Wallace would not campaign actively until he had accepted the nomination in a speech set for mid-August in Iowa, his home State.

Vigorous Campaign By Wallace

The White House itself made no comment on the subject of the conference, but other sources suggested they might talk over plans for Wallace to make a vigorous campaign.

Mr. Roosevelt himself has said that national defense activities would permit him little time to devote to politics, and so the Secretary is expected to take over the major stumping duties.

Reaction to the President's press conference statement yesterday that World War veterans probably would be called upon to take over home defense duties, if and when the National Guard is called out for Federal military service, was described

Winsome Miss, Age 3, 'Adopts' Judge at Custody Hearing

Curly-Haired Frances Bohler Upsets Decorum of Court by Sitting on Bench As Relatives Offer Her Plethora of Homes

A 3-year-old blonde curly-head upset the decorum of District Court yesterday by taking over the judge's bench as counsel for an aunt and uncle were arguing for her custody.

Tiny Frances Bohler frankly became bored with the proceedings, although she was the principal object of the hearing. She sat quietly as long as a 3-year-old lady could be expected to, and then skipped around the august chamber on a trip of exploration.

One by one, spectators, court attaches, and attorneys succumbed to her engaging smile, and it must be reported, that the judge did, too. Before the arguments were through, there was Frances perched by the side of Justice James W. Morris.

The hearts of the courtroom audience went out to the little girl, not alone for her antics, but because motherless and fatherless, the court must decide her destiny.

Frances is living with her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Lula B. Kimball, and aunt, Miss Mary Kimball, at 40 Randolph place northwest. A paternal uncle, Capt. Michael M. Mahoney, of the Marine Corps, went to court yesterday seeking custody of the child.

FRANCES

Capt. Mahoney had adopted Frances and her 12-year-old sister, Shirley, in Norfolk, but the Kimballs refused to give the 3-year-old up. Miss Kimball is seeking to adopt Frances through the court here. Justice Morris ruled that both parties could testify at the pending adoption action.

Green Hills Recall Her Austria

Empress Zita Feels 'at Home' And Happy in American Exile

(This is the first of a series of three articles)

By Inez Robb

Royalston, Mass., Aug. 7 (INS).—Many times in the last 20 years the former Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary has received joyous letters from Austrian and Hungarian refugees in the United States.

Each told her how happy he was in his new country and of unflagging hospitality to strangers in a strange land. Without exception, every letter remarked that in America, right away you felt at home!

Now, from personal experience, the former empress knows exactly what those letters meant. Although she has been here only a month, right away she feels at home in America. The country itself is so beautiful; the people are so kind, she said today.

This lovely green countryside of northern Massachusetts, scented with pine, gleaming with little lakes and rolling gently in the distance to hazy hills, reminds her of Austria.

But these green, untroubled vistas, which recall the country from which she has been an indomitable exile for 22 years, do not make her sad. Indeed, they make her almost lyric with happiness. As she talked with warmth and animation of this new world to which the old has finally forced her to flee for sanctuary with seven of her eight children, there was a young, eager and radiant quality in her delicate, oval face.

Nothing I had ever read or heard about the former empress had prepared me for this friendly, charming woman. I met in the placid, unpretentious drawing room of the Amendment to Allow Resignations Loses; Holt and Minton Renew Clash

By Hedley Donovan.
Post Staff Writer

The Senate late yesterday rejected a proposal to allow National Guardsmen and Reserve officers 20 days to resign and prepared to give final approval today to an unprecedented peacetime mobilization of the Army's reserve strength.

In a roll call that cut across party lines, the Senate voted, 47 to 36, against the Guard bill amendment introduced by Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, providing that any man subject to the mobilization could leave the service within 20 days after enactment of the bill.

Majority Leader Barkley announced at the close of the session that immediately after the Senate convenes today he will seek unanimous consent for a vote on the bill at 4 p. m.

The legislation would give President Roosevelt power to order all Guard and Reserve units into immediate active service.

Draft Debate to Start

Passage of the Guard bill will clear the way for opening of debate tomorrow on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill, Barkley said.

He estimated the opposition's maximum strength at 24 votes, but declined to name any date for completion of Senate action on the controversial measure, which would require registration for compulsory military training of 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31.

The draft legislation encountered further delays in the House yesterday when the Military Affairs Committee, reversing a previous vote, agreed to invite testimony on the bill from former Secretary of War Woodring and his Assistant Secretary, Louis Johnson; Secretary of the Navy Knox, Gen. John J. Pershing and Gen. Hugh Johnson.

Reopening of hearings will postpone the House Committee's action on the measure at least another week, it appeared, since the new witnesses were requested to appear Tuesday.

Major obstacle remaining in the guard bill's path is an amendment sponsored by Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, to limit service of Guardsmen and Reserves to the United States and its possessions. The pending resolution permits service anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

Renew Clash

Both the Danaher and Adams amendments stirred sharp debate yesterday, while final action on the Guard bill was further delayed when Senators Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, and Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, renewed the exchange of courtesies which threw

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

(One of the gallant and graceful figures on the Senate floor is Dixie's Senator Robert Reynolds. Famed is Bob Reynolds for a smooth flow of eloquence, anecdote and humor. He can hold the heads of four male constituents and the hands of four feminine constituents simultaneously, send all eight away happy. He is also the Senate's champion globe trotter, the only Senator who ever went from Alaska directly to Labrador. His guest column today is a spirited defense of Senators.—HARLAN MILLER.)

CONFESSIONS OF A SENATOR
BY SENATOR ROBERT R. REYNOLDS
(Dutch Uncle of the Alien Registration Law)

When I was invited by Harlan Miller to fill his cup of coffee I was elated. The hour that I was secretly and fervently awaiting had arrived. Revenge, revenge is sweet.

Sen. Reynolds

When a columnist verbally assails, attacks, assaults a United States Senator — well, that is simply the nature of the beauty.

* * * *

But when a United States Senator has the opportunity thrust upon him to lambast and lampoon the columnist, well, that's real news, front-page copy, as they say at the city editor's desk.

Therefore, I take up the cudgel for my defenseless colleagues with the suggestion that this column should be headed, "The Confessions of a Senator."

* * * *

One day we are pictured as saints and the next day we are pictured as sinners. On being inducted into office we are sworn in and from then on we are sworn at; it's bouquets in the morning and brickbats at night. It's a polite pat on the back one moment and a punch on the proboscis the next.

"—coat-tail riders and spear carriers"

One day we are docile coat-tailers and the next day we are stalwart independents raising the spears of freedom to high heaven.

One session we are portrayed as wreckers of the Nation and the next session we are hailed as saviors of the republic and the universe.

* * * *

In the first edition we are cartooned as clowns and buffoons and in the next edition we are caricatured as angels sprouting diamond-bedecked wings.

What a difference one little vote makes!

Oh, for the typewriter of a Broun, the pen and ink of a Clapper, the vocabulary of a Lindley, the news instinct of an Alsop, the wit of a Harlan Miller, the wisdom of a Lippmann, the candor of a Dorothy Thompson, the stability of a Mark Sullivan!

* * * *

If I possessed these fabulous virtues I would unleash my innermost thoughts and reveal to an eager world what I think and know about the columnists that I have fraternized with from our Capital in Washington to Delhi, India.

* * * *

But, on second reflection, it has dawned upon me that these columnists have their weapons of attack—have their powder dry 365 days in the year—and if they should turn their heavy artillery on me after I have discharged my tiny one-day popgun at them—and tell what they know about me—well, we had better skip it.

"—debutantes and geography lessons"

So for the remainder of the column, if my reader is still with me, you will be obliged to ramble along with my dissertation on the Merry Life of a Senator.

We are called upon at all hours of the day and night to render a service that runs the gamut of life—from getting a roomer for a boarding house to providing for a debutante to curtsy to the King and Queen of England at the Court of St. James's.

* * * *

We are beseeched for autographs on photographs, bridge tables, menus, programs, napkins, meal checks and bank checks.

After a series of learned and profound speeches on world affairs on the floor of the Senate, which the news hawks labeled as a Reynolds "travelogue," I received requests from about a dozen school children to help them with their geography lessons. Such is endeavor and fame.

It is ever thus. BUT I LOVE IT ALL!

* * * *

I would be remiss in my duty as a member of the upper branch of Congress if I did not take advantage of this unusual opportunity to drop a few lumps of sugar in the coffee for my distinguished colleagues. They are the finest group of men in all the world; every one able and diligent; each Senator an outstanding figure in the most deliberative body in the world.

Bridges Moves To Bar 3d Term

Offers Proposed Amendment To Constitution

By International News Service

The third-term issue was brought squarely before the Senate yesterday when Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, introduced a proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting any President, or any Vice President who enters the White House by succession, from serving a third term.

Warning that a third term for any President would endanger the American form of government, Bridges told the Senate:

"The present course of world dictatorships jeopardizes the democratic processes of government. The tenets of democracy are likely to be endangered through the continuance of one man in the highest executive office of the United States."

Referred to Committee

The proposed amendment was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee for study. A two-thirds vote of each branch of Congress, and ratification by three-fourths of the States, is required for amendment.

The Bridges amendment declared: "Any person who sall be elected to the office of President of the United States, or shall exercise the duties of the office of President by succession, shall not be eligible to serve in such office after the date of ratification of this article if such persons have held such office during the whole or any part of each of two separate terms."

New Deal Strategy

The explosive issue was placed before the Senate shortly after the New Deal high command decided to boycott Senate public hearings on another proposed constitutional amendment which would limit the office of President to a single, six-year term.

Strategy of the New Dealers, however, is that by boycotting the hearings and offering no witnesses to defend a third term the hearings then will be shortened and will take on the appearance of a "smear Roosevelt" movement.

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, author of the proposed amendment and chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee which will hold the hearings, said last night that he has not had a single letter from anyone volunteering to appear and defend a third term.

prevented by law from receiving any compensation for any services or from any business transaction with the Federal Government.

"Here is a chance to eliminate some of the abuses of politics. If there is any loophole in the Hatch Act, I am in complete favor of plugging it up and using amendments to do it.

Cites One Abuse

"One of the abuses is to have members of the official family representing interests before boards and bureaus in Washington."

Asked if he had in mind such instances as James Roosevelt serving his father as secretary, which he did for a time, Willkie said he hadn't thought praticularly about that.

Since Henry P. Fletcher, general counsel for the Republican National Committe, wrote an opinion in collaboration with other lawyers which would have established a basis for collecting campaign funds far in excess of the $3,000,000 limitation of the Hatch Act, Willkie several times has stressed the point that he always favored the principle of the act.

He still says he has not read Fletcher's opinion, but within a few hours after Fletcher released it here the candidate announced that not more than $2,500,000 would be spent on his campaign.

Today's announcement was even stronger.

Willkie said he hoped such amendments would be passed as he suggested, but whether they were or not, he personally would follow that code if elected.

He was not ready to say immediately whether he would demand the assets accounting of his appointees if elected before the passage of the amendments.

The candidate also announced at his press conference that he will meet former President Hoover in Denver early next week. He talked with Hoover on the telephone last night and was to talk with him again later tonight to set the exact date. Hoover will be en route to Montana for fishing.

Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican Presidential nominee, will be at Colorado Springs Tuesday for lunch with the candidate.

Willkie said he had no particular questions to take up with Hoover or Landon, but wanted to get their general views.

O. M. W. Sprague, financial and executive assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury from June to November, 1933, sent this telegram to Willkie today.

"Please include me among the former Roosevelt Treasury officials who are supporting you in this campaign. I do so, among other reasons, because I am confident that you agree with the good old hymn that we cannot be carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease, substituting for skies adequate defense and full employment."

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York paid off a 1 cent bet to Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, yesterday after being reminded that he owed it.

RANDOLPH

Randolph bet LaGuardia a cent on August 8, 1939, that President Roosevelt would be renominated.

"Thank you very much for your reminder," LaGuardia wrote Randolph. This is one wager I am very glad to pay."

San Francisco, Aug. 7 (AP).—The National Association of Broadcasters was told in effect today that Wendell Willkie would be given free time on radio networks in proportion to whatever campaigning, if any, was forthcoming in President Roosevelt's "fireside chats."

The question was advanced at the association's convention by Dick Bard, of Station WNEW, New York City, and answered by Paul Kesten, vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Spokesmen for the networks previously had said Willkie would be given time equal to that granted President Roosevelt. It had not been made clear, however, whether any or all of the time for the Republican nominee would be gratis.

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 7 (INS).—Republican leaders confessed tonight they have been following one of the New Deal's early and much-criticized agricultural policies—they have been plowing under acres of corn, wheat and clover.

They explained, however, that they plowed under the crops in fields adjoining Calloway Park only for the purpose of providing parking space for the thousands of automobiles that will be in Elwood August 17 when the Republican nominee, Wendell Willkie, will deliver his acceptance speech.

New Deal or no New Deal, the land had to be cleared," said Homer E. Capehart.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP).—Gov. Arthur H. James said today he has pledged Wendell L. Willkie "my whole-hearted support" in the November campaign.

James disclosed he telephoned Willkie a promise to "pitch in."

The Governor added that he expected to see Willkie in Pennsylvania "sometime" but did not know whether it would be a "campaign appearance."

In early ballots at the Republican convention, James received most of the Pennsylvania delegation's votes.

Atlanta, Aug. 7 (AP).—The first bale of 1940 cotton grown in Georgia, President Roosevelt's "adopted" State, will be sent to Republican Presidential Candidate Wendell Willkie.

J. J. Dorah, treasurer of the newly formed "Independent Democrats for Willkie Club," bid in the 473-pound bale at 15 cents a pound at an auction here today.

Oldest Inhabitants Reiterate Desire For D. C. Suffrage

The Association of Oldest Inhabitants last night reiterated its stand on District suffrage and demanded that representation in both houses be granted the District by Congress.

Members of the organization also planned to ask the Park and Planning Commission to restore Civil War forts around the District because of their historic value. The meeting was held in the Old Union Engine House, Nineteenth and H streets northwest.

Truman Leads Missouri Race By 7,000 Votes

Gov. Stark Trails In Close Senatorial Nomination Test

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 7.—United States Senator Harry S. Truman held a lead of nearly 7,000 votes tonight out of more than 500,000 cast in his race with Gov. Lloyd C. Stark for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Missouri's closest contest since former Senator James A. Reed's 5,900-vote victory in 1922.

Unofficial returns from 4,308 of the State's 4,447 precincts gave Truman 261,238; Stark, 254,435, and former U. S. District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan, of Kansas City, 125,064.

The missing precincts were scattered through 26 rural counties, 16 of which showed trends toward the Governor.

Stark carried out-State Missouri by a fair margin, but a heavy Truman vote in St. Louis and Jackson County, the Senator's home, turned the tide in the unofficial tabulations of Tuesday's primary.

Truman received 49,782 ballots in Jackson County against 25,968 for the Governor and 99,650 in St. Louis against 61,296.

Although his campaign managers claimed a victory, Truman himself was silent, and Stark also avoided comment on the tug-of-war contest.

Some observers thought that absentee ballots, variously estimated at between 5,000 and 10,000, might determine the result.

The Post-Dispatch interpreted the election as "a clean sweep" for Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann's St. Louis city administration, "aided by the remnants of the Kansas City Pendergast machine and the 'courthouse' groups" in many sections of the State.

These Democratic organizations, in addition to backing Truman, also successfully supported Excise Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel, of St. Louis, for the party's nomination for Governor.

The Republicans selected arvel A. Davis, of Kansas City, for the Senate and Forrest C. Donnell, of St. Louis, for Governor.

One of Missouri's Congressmen, Thomas E. Hennings, Democrat, chose to run for circuit attorney of St. Louis, while the other 12 incumbents, including Dewey Short, lone Republican in the delegation, were either unopposed or ahead.

House to Get Bill for Rule Of Carriers

Conferees Pass Plan To Extend ICC Control Over Water Transit

By the Associated Press

A conference agreement paved the way yesterday for Congress to complete action soon on the bill placing water carriers under the regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission, along with the railroads and motor carriers.

Chairman Lea (Democrat), of California, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, said the legislation, dealing with many phases of transportation, would be called up in the House within a few days. It was recommended by President Roosevelt two years ago, but had been tied up for more than a year while conferees of the Senate and House strove to adjust differences.

One stumbling block was an amendment by Representative Harrington (Democrat), Iowa, forbidding the I. C. C. to approve any railroad merger, consolidation or abandonment which would eliminate any jobs. As finally worked out, this provision would be modified to permit the elimination of jobs provided displaced workers are paid their salaries for no more than four years afterward. The conferees also eliminated the reference to abandonment.

Also dropped from the final draft was an amendment by Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, which would permit carriers to reduce their rates so long as they provided a "compensatory return."

Proponents of this provision argued that it would enable water carriers to reduce their rates to meet the rate-war competition by railroads, while its opponents argued that it would disrupt the whole rate-making process. Wadsworth made public a letter to the House membership contending that its elimination was unjustified and unprecedented since both chambers had approved it.

The big bill, which originated with a committee appointed by President Roosevelt four years ago, also would repeal the statutes which require the "land grant" railroads to carry government freight and troops free and would authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make certain new railroad loans where private financing is lacking.

U. S. Not Secure, Gen. Drum Warns

Oceans No Safeguard, He Tells Troops At Army Maneuvers

By Hanson W. Baldwin
Copyright by New York Times

With the First Army in the Field, Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The United States must stop "basking in the sunshine of peace and in the security of two oceans," and it must avoid, "before it is too late," the doctrines of "the supremacy of the military defensive which have led to the ruin of France and forced England to face so many disasters," Lieut. Hugh A. Drum told more than 12,000 officers and men of the First Army at a meeting at Canton tonight.

Gen. Drum spoke to most of the officers and senior noncommissioned officers in the Army which he commands and which has been concentrated in this 1,300-square-mile maneuver area for three weeks of intensive training or unprecedented scope. With about 70,000 troops now in the area, Gen. Drum's talk—which will serve to pattern the exercises to follow—marked the formal opening of the local war games.

The address, in which Gen. Drum interpreted some of the lessons of the European war, and warned that the Nation must provide "man power, trained, organized and equipped for modern combat," as well as industrial mobilization, possessed a wide significance.

For Gen. Drum's speech—like the one he made at similar Army maneuvers last year, in which he stressed the deficiencies of our Army and anticipated some of the remedial steps which have since been taken—was in reality addressed not only to the Regulars, Guardsmen and Organized Reserves now mobilized here, but to the Nation as a whole.

Remarks Significant

To the officers and men who gathered on the athletic field of St. Lawrence University at Canton, maneuver headquarters of Gen. Drum, to hear the address, remarks about manpower and the problem of mobilizing and training it, came with particular force, since both Regulars and National Guards are now struggling with the training of large numbers of recruits.

Calling for the direction of our national defense efforts toward two corollary objects, Gen. Drum asserted that the Nation must have: (1) An effective industrial organization for rapid production of modern weapons in large quantities, and (2) manpower, trained, organized and equipped for modern combat."

Gen. Drum, in discussing some of the military lessons of the European war, said the methods which gained decisive results in land battles included:

(1) Supremacy in the air, coupled with close cooperation between air bombing and ground forces; (2) the use of heavy and light tanks, closely supported by motorized infantry and artillery, which caught the enemy "in a pandemonium created by aerial bombardment;" (3) the use of large mechanized forces; (4) an emphasis upon speed, continuity of pressure and intense fire power; (5) simplification of supply; (6) the use of officers and men trained physically and mentally to endure day nad night exertions, even able to make "several successful marches of 30 miles in 24 hours."

"The successful accomplishment of such operations," the general said, "presupposes, and in fact demands, a perfection in fighting and training never before required in battle. All forces should be inbued with the spirit of victory at all costs and any sacrifice.

Army May Assume Entertainment Job

By Marshall Andrews
By a Staff Correspondent

Canton, N. Y.—In the next war soldier welfare and entertainment will be handled by the Army instead of by outside organizations if chaplains of the First Army have their way.

At an informal discussion after a conference here today, regimental chaplains of the National Guard and regular regiments in the First, Second and Third Corps Areas decided to look after the material as well as the spiritual needs of the men themselves. Under this plan, rest huts and canteens would be operated by chaplains and their assistants.

"We chaplains know our men," explained one of them, "and they know us. Their dealings with us would be with friends instead of with strangers."

After the conference, Lieut. Col. J. Burt Webster, chaplain of the First Army, requested regimental chaplains to file with him their recommendations for handling welfare work. This was taken as an indication that the plan discussed was under serious consideration.

At Fort Ontario, the 260th Coast Artillery emplaced its 11 3-inch antiaircraft guns at the edge of camp and set up height and range finders and prepared to start firing tomorrow morning. Tomorrow afternoon they will fire at targets towed by a plane of the 104th Observation Squadron, of Baltimore. Another ship of the 104th will fly Over Lake Ontario in front of these guns, weaving, dodging and turning to give the gun crews training in tracking a flying target.

Three miles up the lake, the machine-gun batteries and machine-gun sections of the gun batteries will set up their .50-caliber weapons for practice on the range there. By Saturday morning guns and machine guns will have fired their courses and the regiment will leave for the maneuvering area near Plattsburg.

'Pauline Revere's' Mount Develops 'Mule Complex'

A LIGHT IN A TOWER WOULDN'T ROUSE DAISY—Nineteen-year-old Elane Summers, given the title of Pauline Revere, and described by her father as riding "somebody's white horse from a Trojan stable," arrived in Washington from Washington State yesterday with a scroll urging "mobilization for peace" in an effort to defeat the conscription bill. Daisy, her mount, could not control herself when she saw the cool, green grass of the Capitol lawn and gave up all thoughts of rousing the ranks of Congress

Elane Summers, 20-year-old Rockford College co-ed who defied parental wrath to go on a transcontinental tour in behalf of the fight against the conscription bill, rode up to the Capitol yesterday on Daisy, an old gray mare.

Miss Summers, whose home is in Seattle, Wash., appeared in the costume of a Revolutionary soldier as "Pauline Revere," an allusion to the equestrian hero of '76. As she and Daisy reached the Capitol, photographers posed them at the plaza for pictures with Senator Rush D. Holt and other Congressional foes of conscription.

But Daisy, the individualist, almost spoiled the party. She like the cool-looking plaza grass and wanted to roll. Miss Summers leaped to the ground as Daisy started down. She remounted when Daisy gave up after several unsuccessful attempts to roll over her saddle.

When the photographers were through, Miss Summers went to lunch at the Capitol with Representative Martin Smith and other members of the House delegation from Washington State.

There she explained that she really wasn't riding a horse from city to city in the interest of the Emergency Peace Mobilizing Committee to Defend America by Keeping Out of War. Intercity transportation is by automobile and, she said, Daisy is strictly a local product.

Third-Term Issue to Be Kept Before Public, Says Martin, Opening Willkie Headquarters

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Whatever Wendell Willkie may have to say about the third-term question, it was indicated yesterday by Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, that he and other Republican orators will keep that question well to the forefront in the campaign of 1940.

Representative Martin, who returned by plane yesterday from Colorado Springs, where he conferred with Willkie, formally opened the Willkie-McNary campaign headquarters in the Woodward Building, Fifteenth and H streets northwest.

He predicted that millions of Jeffersonian Democrats and millions of progressives would desert President Roosevelt and join with regular Republicans in voting for Willkie in November.

"Why will they join?" said Martin. "Because they know full well the perils of electing any man to a third term. A third term might well be a fourth term, and a fourth term might well be a fifth term, and it might also be the end of our democratic system of government.

"The American people will not start this country on the way toward a dictatorship."

Martin spoke before a crowd of 200 men and women who jammed the Willkie-McNary headquarters, with its flags and placards and slogans of "We'll Win with Willkie" and "We're on Our Way with Willkie." The short, tousle-haired campaign manager was introduced by James C. Wilkes, chairman of the District of Columbia Republican State Committee, who told of plans to serve the thousands of absentee voters here in the election.

Martin said that he knew it took "a great deal of courage for one living in Washington to become an active Republican worker in this campaign." Courage, enthusiasm and determination would be needed, he said, and he then gave the workers what he described as an optimistic message.

"Four different polls have been taken in the last week," Martin said, "and every one of these polls indicates that Wendell Willkie will become the next President of the United States. Now it is the duty of everyone of us, whether we live in Washington, whether we live on the Pacific Coast, in New England or in the Southland, to see that the Willkie movement which has spread through the land continues its momentum."

Martin said that Willkie's nomination in Philadelphia was symbolic of the birth of a new spirit in America, a determination on the part of the American people to reassert themselves and bring this government back to the people. He said there would be very little money to spend.

"We are not going to have millions of checks which will begin to flow just before the election," he said. "We will not be able to get volunteers through the WPA by increasing the rolls between now and November. We will not be able to finance our campaign through the Treasury of the United States.

"We will not tax the American people in order to finance our campaign. No, we will not do that. We will rely upon the sturdy patriotism of the American people, and I am sure that will be sufficient for us to win.

"We have presented to the American people in this critical hour a man who is going to serve America and we will win this fight through the efforts of men and women like you who are assembled here today. Let us resolve between now and November we are going to devote every spare moment for the one purpose: Elect Wendell Willkie and preserve the American way of living."

James A. Councilor, an amateur in politics, like the Republican nominee, heads the Willkie-McNary Campaign Club. He told the crowd yesterday that many Democrats had made contributions to the club's campaign fund. The goal is $25,000.

National Committeeman Edward F. Colladay, George Christian, secretary to President Harding, and a number of other notables were at the opening. Seven members of Congress also were there, as follows:

2 Escaped Criminals Hunted In Knife Slaying of Girl, 22

Father Finds Body Of Victim in Thicket Near 'Hobo Jungle'

By the Associated Press

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 7.—Two escaped criminals were hunted tonight for questioning in the "hobo jungle" slaying of pretty Rose Lodi, 22-year-old factory worker.

The girl's partially disrobed body—her throat and chest slashed and a handkerchief stuffed in her mouth—was found by her father in a woodland thicket this morning after an all-night search.

The pair sought escaped Sunday night from Osborne Prison farm at Enfield, Conn., about eight miles from here, where they had been serving sentences for sex crimes.

Hunt for Knife

State investigators were called in as they still pressed an investigation into the murder of Irene Perry, 22, of New Bedford, whose trussed body was found eight days ago in the Dartmouth woods, about 125 miles from here.

While an autopsy was performed on the Lodi girl, police scoured the area—described by officers as a "hobo jungle" frequented by vagrants—for a thin-bladed knife with which Medical Examiner Charles J. Downey said she was stabbed.

Police said the clothing apparently was torn from the girl.

She last was seen about 1:15 p. m. yesterday by a clerk in a drugstore where she purchased a headache remedy. Two empty liquor bottles, discovered near the body, were taken by police for possible fingerprints.

The father found the body after tracking a route usually taken by the girl over a New Haven Railroad bridge spanning Watershop Pond in a sparsely settled and wooded section.

Officials of the match company where Miss Lodi was employed described her is "quietly disposed" and a "very good worker."

Japanese Beetles' Grubs to 'Mop Up' In District Area

The Japanese beetle invasion has almost spent itself, but the damage will continue for several more months regardless.

J. A. Hyslop, chief of the division of insect pest survery and information, Bureau of Entomology, yesterday said that within a few weeks the last beetle should have disappeared from Washington and environs.

"But they will leave souvenirs," he said, "in the form of eggs laid underground, which will hatch into grubs that feed on grass roots. The size of their appetites will become apparent when the infested grass comes up brown and off-colored in the spring."

The 1941 beetle crop in Washington probably will be greater than this year's, which was a record-breaker, Hyslop said.

Boy, 9, Finds Pistol, Shoots Self in Hand

Robert Souder, 9, of 3 Bayly avenue, Hyattsville, Md., accidentally shot himself through the palm of his left hand yesterday while playing with a .25-caliber pistol he found in the basement of a neighbor's home.

The Souder boy was taken to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg rescue squad.

Browder Attacks W. Va. Sentencing

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Earl Browder, Communist Presidential candidate, said today that the sentencing to prison of a Communist gubernatorial candidate in West Virginia climaxed a "vicious campaign" against the Communist Party, "ordered from circles close to the White House."

The candidate, Oscar O. Wheeler, was sentenced in Beckley, W. Va., last night to 6 to 15 years after being convicted of fraudulently soliciting names to a nominating petition seeking to place Communist candidates on the State's November ballot.

Guard Bill Due to Pass Senate Today

Amendment to Allow Resignations Beaten By Vote of 47 to 36

the Senate into turmoil Tuesday.

Minton repeated his charges that Holt's father spread "slacker doctrine" during the World War. As for Holt himself, the bulky Indiana New Dealer contented himself with this statement:

"Parliamentary language will not permit me to express my contempt for the Senator from West Virginia."

Holt said that his father, if living, "would have known how to answer" Minton. The elder Holt, he added, "recognized a coward when he saw one."

Commenting on Minton's claim that several West Virginia residents had furnished collaboration for his charges, Holt said:

"The Senator from Indiana can search the gutters of West Virginia and find anything there he looks for. Of course, the Senator from Indiana would naturally search the gutters—he feels at home there."

Holt's final blast was followed by a brief report from Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, who said the West Virginian's charge Tuesday that Minton was "not in shape to be on the floor" might have "given the implication that the Senator from Indiana was intoxicated."

"I want to say that I went over at once and had the Senator from Indiana blow in my face," Lee related. "There was not one scintilla of liquor on the Senator's breath."

The two-day Holt-Minton duel was compared with a "barroom brawl" by Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the Senate Rules Committee.

Neely took the floor to say the Senate has been described as the greatest deliberative body in the world, but "the newspaper-reading public may feel today that dignity rests as lightly on a United States Senator as on the shoulders of a clown."

Argument on the Danaher amendment centered chiefly on the Connecticut Republican's contention that most members of the Guard enlisted with the understanding they could not be called to active service unless Congress declared a national emergency. To these men, especially those with dependents, the pending bill does "a grave injustice," Danaher said.

Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, replied that the Danaher amendment "would let every man in the National Guard walk out just when the country needs him, after the Federal Government has spent hundreds of millions of dollars in preparing the Guard for just such an emergency as now exists."

Charges "Strange Doctrine"

A great majority of Guardsmen "never dreamed they could be sent outside the country" unless the United States is at war, Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, declared.

George charged that "a strange doctrine has arisen in this country—that you must send your soldiers outside your own country to take up a defensive position.

"We will not listen to that siren song of militarism," he concluded, "telling us that we must go take up a defensive position on the Rhine or just outside London."

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, pleading for rejection of the Adams amendment, asserted that United States delegates at the recent Havana conference "encountered propaganda to the effect that this country is unable to defend the Western Hemisphere—that we are just putting up a big bluff."

"What could be more injurious to our relations with Latin America, just after this successful conference," he demanded, "than for the Senate to give notice to the world that not a single member of our Reserve could be sent outside the United States?"

Urges Passage

The Senate Military Affairs Committee, which approved the Burke-Wadsworth Bill by a 13—3 vote Monday, yesterday issued a majority report on the measure urging its enactment "for the adequate protection of the cherished heritages of a Nation."

"It would be criminal," the report said, "to give the Nation a false sense of security by the mere possession of defense armaments and a corresponding lack of trained men." The document warned that is "too late to train men after the emergency is upon us."

A three-man minority report, also filed yesterday, condemned the Burke-Wadsworth Bill as "the Hitlerized method of peacetime conscription" and demanded further trial for the voluntary enlistment system, with an increase in Army pay from $21 to $31 a month.

James Callbreath Funeral Rites Set for Today

The body of James Finch Callbreath, secretary emeritus of the American Mining Congress, who died Sunday, will be placed in the Abbey Mausoleum at Arlington, Va., following services at 3 p. m., today at the Hysong Funeral Home, 1300 N street northwest.

Active pallbearers will be Julian D. Conover, Paul Wooten, George D. Lane, Dr. William De Kleine, Richard Lund and Dr. Royd R. Sayers.

The honorary pallbearers will include Dr. George S. Rice, George W. Harris, Dr. W. T. Schaller, Dr. Frank F. Bunker, O. Russell Coombes, Myron R. Walker, Dr. William L. Corbin, A. W. Dickenson, Ernest P. Walker, Carl Scholz, Harold A. Brooks, F. Morton Leonard, Robert S. Beresford, Judge Nathan B. Williams, G. B. Southward, Dr. Ralph Ilsley, Dr. Claude S. Hudson, George H. Bailey and Col. H. A. Knox.

The National Press Club will be represented by Wooten, L. W. Moffett, Harry L. Moffett, Blackland Gillilan, Ira L. Smith, Charles Gridley and George S. Holmes.

WPA Combed For Skilled Defense Labor

By the Associated Press

Col. F. C. Harrington, Works Projects Commissioner, announced yesterday that the records of 2,500,000 persons on or awaiting assignment to WPA rolls were being examined to determine how many could be classified as skilled workers for national defense.

HARRINGTON

Workers already qualified for the 130 occupations involved in defense, he said, would be available for immediate employment. Those requiring additional training will be enrolled in special vocational training courses offered by WPA, the Office of Education and Defense Advisory Commission.

Longer Work Week To Speed Garand Rifles

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP).—In an effort to speed up productions of Garand semiautomatic rifles from 1,300 to 1,569 weekly, laborers and mechanics at the Springfield Armory were placed on a 48-hour week today.

Navy Work to Be Done Months Ahead

Secretary of Navy Knox disclosed yesterday that naval construction projects at Ford Island and Kaneohe, Hawaii, would be completed in December of this year rather than in October, 1941, as originally scheduled.

He listed completion dates for three seaplane base projects in the Pacific as follows:

Johnston—August, 1941, instead of the original date of March, 1942.

Palmyra—July, 1941, instead of May, 1942.

Midway—December, 1941, as originally scheduled.

Army Lets Contracts For Guns, Clothing

The War Department signed contracts yesterday for ordnance and other equipment to cost $3,731,693, of which $2,353,079 was for ordnance and the rest for military clothing and equipment.

Navy Orders Nitric Acid Equipment

The Navy yesterday awarded a $412,472 contract for nitric acid equipment to the smokeless powder division of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del. Also announced were a $205,509 contract for canned peas to R. D. Pringle & Co., Denver, and a $593,280 contract for coal to W. M. Hollenbach, Philadelphia.

Patriotic Pickets Let Navy Order Pass

Maspeth, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP).—To avoid interference with the Nation's defense program, a union picket line voluntarily dispersed today long enough to allow trucks to load cables at a struck plant for delivery at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. of L.) had been picketing the Long Island plant of the Circle Wire & Cable Co.

Informed that the Navy wanted delivery on an order for cables used in battleship construction, union leaders ordered the picket line broken temporarily.

Stimson Thanks Ad Federation

Secretary of War Stimson thanked the Advertising Federation of America yesterday for pledging the support of their organization in strengthening the national defense.

After a federation committee called upon him, Stimson recalled that in the World War the federation had materially aided in the Liberty Loan campaigns and had assisted the American Red Cross in raising funds to relieve suffering.

present was Admiral A. E. Evans, British naval commander only recently transferred from the battle fleet to advise Purvis on purchasing problems.

Purvis denied that Admiral Evans' work here would involve the British efforts to buy American re-commissioned destroyers.

Arsenal Order Called Temporary

Asked whether the British had abandoned their hope, recently expressed, to get 3,000 war planes a month from American factories by the first of the year, Purvis said, "I have lived in your country too long to believe anything impossible of your wonderful industrial facilities." Though January might be too soon a date to expect the 3,000 planes, he added, the British would take whatever is available and hope for larger quantities later.

Secretary Stimson's order putting six arsenals on a six-day three-shift basis was described as temporary by the War Department. It had the approval of President Roosevelt and was issued after conferences with Sidney Hillman, Defense Commission labor adviser.

Jobs would open up in the arsenals for more than 8,000 skilled mechanics and for possibly 16,000 semiskilled and unskilled personnel, officials said.

6-Day Week Scheduled

Laborers and mechanics, who will work an eight-hour day six days a week, will get time and a half for overtime under the program.

The six arsenals affected are Rock Island Arsenal, Rock Island, Ill.; Watertown Arsenal, Watertown, Mass.; Frankford Arsenal, Frankford, Pa.; Springfield Arsenal, Springfield, Mass.; Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N. J., and Watervliet Arsenal, Watervliet, N. Y.

Gen. Marshall, while casting doubt on the wisdom of forcing private industry to adhere to Government-set priorities, issued estimates of the number of men who would actually see service if Congress authorized the President to summon the National Guard for a year's training.

Many Exemptions Expected

He said that approximately 20 per cent of those called would be exempted for health, dependents and the type of work they perform. In some highly industrialized areas the rate of exemptions might be higher, he said.

Told of the Purvis offer of "hundreds of millions of dollars" in new British orders, Gen. Marshall was quick to assure reporters that production of tanks and field pieces for the British would not be allowed to interfere with this country's defense program.

"The interests of our own program be fully protected," the Chief of Staff said.

Commissioners Given Responsibility for District Budget

operations of the Federal Government at the "seat of government."

Shattering of the 19-year precedent came as a victory for Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor and budget officer, who as far back as 1922 suggested the District's budget be the Commissioners' responsibility.

Maj. Donovan wrote to Gen. H. M. Lord, budget director, September 28, 1922, stating "I believe the present practice in considering the District receipts and appropriation estimates is illogical and contrary to the plain language of the law." The bureau was set up June 10, 1921.

Work for Commissioners

Smith said the Commissioners "will now have to work out their own problems." He referred to the details of the annual budget and the hearings with the many department heads. In the past the Budget Bureau has spent about a month each year on the District's budget, calling in each department head, slashing some budgets, adding to others and always returning the bill in different shape than that worked out by the Commissioners. Now, two or three days will be required, he said.

The Budget Director said the citizens of Washington have been "confused" about the relationships between the bureau and the Commissioners regarding the budget estimates and District legislation.

"This is a step in the right direction," Smith said, adding "I merely want to make a clean-cut definition of our relationships with the District Commissioners."

Limits Buck Passing

He said the change in policy was not an attempt to escape responsibilities, but rather in the interest of sound municipal administration.

The secrecy of the Budget Bureau's hearings with District heads has been used as a means of "passing the buck" when the subject of "who did the slashing of the budget" came up.

The Commissioners now will send to the Budget Bureau their estimates, and if the bureau disapproves the budget will be returned. Such matters as soundness of the revenue estimates or balancing of the budget and the amount of money which the District intends to use for capital improvement will form the basis of the bureau's rejection or approval.

Since Washington is the Nation's Capital, it was explained, the Budget Bureau naturally will be interested in the amount of money the Commissioners each year are willing to spend to improve the city. Another item in which the bureau will maintain much interest is the amount of the Federal contribution. If the President desired to increase the contribution, this information would be turned over to the Commissioners by the Budget Bureau.

Plans for reorganization of the District government invariably have contained a provision for divorcement of the Budget Bureau from the District budget. This would be possible by new legislation or amending the Budget and Account Act. In the Commissioners' plan for reorganization such a plan was included, calling for complete divorcement.

In the early days of the Budget Bureau, the Federal Government was paying 60 per cent of the District expenses, and it was granted the Federal Government had a large interest in the city's expenditures. At the present time, and for the last 15 years, the Federal Government has been paying the District a lump sum, which last year was $8,000,000 or about 12 per cent of the total appropriation.

Maj. Donovan said he was pleased by the action by Smith, which is understood to have had the President's full approval. Col. David McCoach, jr., Engineer Commissioner, described it as "an excellent plan." Commissioner Hazen said "it's a fine idea, clarifying the situation to the point that everybody knows what his responsibilities are."

Commissioners Now Responsible

Smith's letter to Hazen follows:

"For several weeks we have been reviewing the role of the Bureau of the Budget with respect to the District of Columbia budget estimates and legislation. I am now prepared to propose for your consideration a procedure which I believe will clarify and facilitate our relationships.

"In summary, the procedure is designed to confine the Budget Bureau's participation to broad budgetary and legislative policies, particularly as they affect the Federal Government or any of its agencies, and to fix upon the District Commissioners the full responsibility for municipal administration within these budgetary and legislative policies.

"Specifically, I am proposing that:

"1. The Budget Bureau, in reviewing supplemental and annual statements for recommendation to the President and transmission to Congress, center its review upon the revenue estimates, the allocation of capital outlay moneys, the reimbursement to the United States Treasury of Federal loans, the amount of Federal contribution, and the balancing of the budget.

Bureau Willing to Advise

"2. The Bureau of the Budget concerns itself with the relationship of District legislation to the interests of the Federal Government and particularly the effect which such legislation may have upon the operations of the Federal Government at the seat of government.

"It is, of course, understood that the staff of the Bureau of the Budget will be available, upon request, to advise with the District Commissioners concerning any matter outside the immediate responsibility of the Bureau of the Budget, with the understanding that the final decision will rest with the District Commissioners.

"I trust that this definition of the relative responsibilities of the Bureau of the Budget and of the District Commissioners with respect to the District budget will tend to clarify the situation."

Police Investigate Kidnap-Robbery Of D. C. Youth

Police last night were investigating the kidnap-robbery of Enoch Karrer, jr., 19, of 4190 Wheeler road southeast, who told them he had been held captive in an auto 15 hours by two men and a woman before being robbed of $1 and thrown out of the car.

Young Karrer said he was kidnaped in his father's auto at Seventh street and Pennsylvania southeast Tuesday morning, and was dumped from the auto at Pennsylvania and Alabama avenues southeast early yesterday.

At a late hour last night the auto had not been recovered.

Fliers Relate Bearns Odyssey

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 7 (AP).—Canadian fliers, returned from the French West Indies island of Martinique, said today they had wandered the seas for 16 days aboard the French aircraft carrier Bearn, attempting to find a port not occupied by Germans so they could land their cargo of 100 American planes.

The planes were left at Martinique.

Squadron Leader Adelard Raymond, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, said the Bearn sailed from a Canadian port for Brest. When word was received of the evacuation of Dunkerque, the carrier was rerouted to Bordeaux, then to Casablanca, Morocco, as Bordeaux fell the day before she was due to arrive. Yet later, the Bearn was ordered to Martinique.

Throughout the voyage, the Bearn was accompanied by a large French cruiser, which, along with other vessels of the French fleet, is now at Martinique, Raymond said.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ers, it was understood, that he has no objection to independent Senate action to make possible consideration of the question with greatest possible speed.

Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee, announced yesterday that his committee definitely would hold a hearing Tuesday on Sumners' request for a special rule to bring the Sumners resolution before the House.

King declared last night he "hoped to have good news" for advocates of votes for Washington after the subcommittee meeting today. He had previously said conversations with other members of the subcommittee gave promise of prompt action.

A plan to enlist Nation-wide support for national representation will be launched at a luncheon today by the Junior Board of Commerce. With the cooperation of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and its nearly 1,000 affiliated chapters, the board plans to bring the question to the attention of the Nation's voters.

Paul E. Lesch, long identified with the fight for representation, will address the gathering to which have been invited Congressional and civic leaders, including:

Representative Randolph, chairman of the House District Committee; Senators King, Capper, and Ashurst; John T. O'Rourke, managing editor of the Daily News; Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, publisher of the Times-Herald; Theodore Noyes, editor of the Evening Star; Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, and Jesse Suter, vice chairman of the Joint Committee on National Representation.

An introductory address will be delivered by James S. Beattie, director in charge of national representation of the board.

Hatch Act to Need 200 to Enforce It

New Organization Expected to Handle 2,000 Violations

By Edward Ryan

A crew of more than 200 lawyers, investigators and others are expected to be needed to administer the Hatch "clean politics" law for the Civil Service Commission, it was estimated yesterday.

In terms of jobs, this will probably mean "no help wanted," because the Hatch Act enforcement staff would be organized from available Civil Service employes and other eligible candidates already listed.

The new organization, however, will be equipped to handle an expected 1,600 to 2,000 violations of the clean politics rules during the first months of enforcement. Commission officials and the Budget Bureau have started conferring about the money that will be needed to start the enforcement.

Both the commission and the Justice Department have been planning ways to give a public play by play description of who can violate the expanded Hatch Act, and how the violations might occur. This involves drawing up formal rules and definitions to tell Government, State and local employes covered in the act what they can and can't do. It also inoles figuring out some potential legal tangles on the question of who is covered by the act.

So far, Justice officials said, no agency has called for help in defining what persons are covered by the act, but the first bids for rulings by the Attorney General to clear up tricky questions are expected soon.

One problem already troubling officials in some agencies, like Federal Works, is the question of how closely a State or local government employe has to be "connected with" Federal funds to come under the "no politics" ban. The act bars political activity for State and local employes who work "in connection with" any activity financed in whole or in part by Federal funds.

Hatch Called to Help

On other problems, Attorney General Jackson has already called to Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, author of the act, for legislative help. Jackson urged that Congress write "specific" language into the act to forbid the plan of subdividing political cash contributions suggested by Henry P. Fletcher, counsel for the Republican National Committee. He also asked that penalties for those who buy campaign books, political advertising and the like be extended to those who sell them.

In both the Civil Service Commission and the Justice Department officials said that the new Hatch Act had brought a flood of inquiries about its operation, but so far no complaints that it has been violated.

Ship-of-State Note: In one Government agency only the Hatch Act is holding back an active, but carefully controlled, movement to draft "Wrong-Way" Corrigan, well known aviator, to answer Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's recent speech on American foreign policy. Backers of the draft-Corrigan campaign claim they would let their man take either side in the proposed debate, either with or against Lindbergh.

Budget Director Harold D. Smith has been asked for a public statement about how the President's nondefense economy program will affect Federal employes.

The request was presented through Frederick J. Lawton, assistant to Smith, by a delegation of local representatives of the United Federal Workers, Eleanor Nelson, U. F. W. secretary and chairman of the delegation, said they had asked assurance that economies in the nondefense agencies would not result in salary cuts, payless furloughs, firings, reduction of annual and sick leave, increases in overtime or other moves that would impair working conditions.

Lawton said he had not been able to give the group an estimate of how large the savings would be under the economy program. He said it would be a couple of weeks before the Budget Bureau could tell how large the reserves set up from nondefense funds would be.

Earlier reports from some Government agencies indicated that the nondefense savings being sought would amount to about $400,000,000.

Jobs. A competitive exam to fill 20 jobs in the Navy's Dental Corps will be held December 2 at the Naval Medical School in Washington and the naval training stations at Great Lakes, Ill., and San Diego, it was announced yesterday. The examination is open to graduates of a standard dental college, who are between 21 and 32 years old at the time of their appointment.

New civil service exams have been opened for junior graduate nurses, $1,620 a year, for the Public Health Service and the Veterans' Administration; medical officers, with three salary grades from $3,200 to $4,600, for appointment in the Public Health Service, Food and Drug Administration, Veterans' Administration, Civil Aeronautics Board and the Indian Service; medical pathologists, $3,800, and research veterinarians, $3,800, for Chemical Warfare Service, and ornithologists, $3,800, for the Interior Department Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Registration places" would be every District public school and for added convenience the following universities: American, Catholic, Georgetown, George Washington, Gallaudet, and Howard.

Persons in the 21-31 age group in public institutions such as the District Jail and St. Elizabeth's Hospital would be registered by heads of their respective institutions. The plan, of course, would vary somewhat, depending on the legislation's final form—the age group, for example.

A special squad of registrars would take care of persons ill in hospitals or their homes. Late registrants would go to selection boards in their vicinity.

Registration places would remain open "until all had been registered" in accordance with the intention of the selection program to register all the Nation's available men in a single day.

Policemen would be specially instructed in the selection machinery so as to be able to expedite registration in their precincts. Police would be stationed at the schools "to maintain order."

Another provision specifies that men should register in absolute privacy.

On completion of registration, chief registrars would count the cards and take them to the registration board whence they would be transferred to the selective service executive, preparatory to the secondary stages of classification, then induction of men by lottery.

The plan states that "the secretary of the joint Army and Navy selective service committee will acquaint the commissioners with the plan of operation . . . and their appointive and administrative powers."

Local officials also would be aided by reserve officers who are specialists in selection methods. But here, as elsewhere throughout the country, the selection process would be administered by civilians.

The second stage in marshalling District men for Army training is "classification," which would be administered by local selection boards, one for each 30,000 persons. Based on the 1936 census, the plan of the Joint Army and Navy Committee provides for 24 such boards here, but more would be necessary under the 1940 total.

Members of these selection bodies, whose number would be determined by the Selective Service executive, would be entrusted with the discretionary power involved in deferments.

In general men would be deferred if they are physically unfit for duty, have one or more dependents, are engaged in occupations essential to the national defense, are Government officials, or for miscellaneous reasons such as conscientious objection or allegiance to foreign countries.

Superior to the selection units would be boards composed of "appeal agents," which would consider controversial cases. To staff these, the plan contemplates seeking volunteer lawyers, unavailable for actual training.

The selective service executive should "avail himself of such judicial officers as may be available," and private attorneys by an "open letter appealing to the patriotism of the District Bar Association.

Similarly, the executive is directed to appeal to the "chief of the health department, the head of the district medical association and the heads of Government hospitals, in preparing a list of prospective candidates" to serve on advisory medical boards which would decide questions of the physical fitness of trainees.

House Acts to Save British Children

thousands of youngsters from beleaguered England.

Declaring that there are 200,000 children in England "who could be loaded on shipboard if there were ships to carry them," Representative Hennings declared that "this is something that we can do: We can hold the children of British democracy while their fathers fight for their lives."

"Every child of intelligent British parents who survives in the safety of America may yet become a power in the reestablishment of the democratic ideal around the earth. The world of tomorrow will stand in desperate need of those who have been brought up in a tradition of tolerance and fair play," he declared.

Representative Fish, of New York, ranking minority member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, termed the bill a "humanitarian measure," and he added that he did not believe Congress "should put in any monkey wrenches to delay passage." Representatives Fish and Wadsworth, of New York, were among the very few Republicans who did not vote for the Schafer amendment.

"This is the opening wedge; this legislation is to be followed up by similar legislation which will inevitably get us into the conflict unless we're almighty careful," shouted Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan; while Representative Smith (Republican), of Ohio, charged that the "real purpose" of the bill is "to throw responsibility on Congress if anything should happen to these children."

"It's unnecessary and fraught with danger—yet I'm going to vote for it," commented Representative Vorys (Republican), of Ohio.

by persons close to the Chief Executive as pleasing.

The scheduling of the Wallace-Hopkins parley tomorrow indicated that the President would wait until Friday to start another personal inspection of strategic segments of the $10,000,000,000 defense program.

Itinerary Not Announced

He continued to withhold the itinerary, but it appeared likely that he would show up at the Boston Navy Yard and at naval bases at Portsmouth, N. H., and New London, Conn.

There has been talk also of the possibility of his looking over the defenses of New York City and of the chances of his boarding a naval vessel at one of the New England ports to cruise back toward Washington.

White House officials said Wallace would spend tomorrow afternoon with the President. Hopkins originally was expected here today, but later his arrival time was said to be indefinite.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be hostess tomorrow afternoon to several hundred women Democrats from five New York counties, who have been invited to a tea and garden party at her cottage on the family estate.

Empress Zita Happy in America

plain New England home lent her by the New York banker, Calvin Bullock.

An hour earlier, I had rung the doorbell of the white house with its neat white fence and its prim green shutters. Ever since I had been informed in New York that the empress would receive me at Royalston, I had envisioned an uncomfortable ten minutes with a cold, austere woman, fanatical in her determination to regain a throne for her son, the Archduke Otto.

For years everything I had read about the former empress described her manner as imperial and herself as a stickler for strict observance of rigid court etiquette, even in exile. I was prepared for a bleak and forbidding encounter.

So I would like to put down in black and white now that I have never spent a more pleasant hour than that with this kind, sympathetic and intelligent woman who was so briefly an empress and has been so long an exile.

The moment I entered her drawing room—a light, airy, unabashed American "parlor"—it was as if I had simply come to pay a first call on a pleasant woman who had just moved into the neighborhood. She moved forward with a warm, welcoming smile and reached out to shake the hand which I had hesitated to put forward lest such a familiarity be frowned on in court circles.

From the moment I was ushered into her presence, I realized that the former empress, like Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is a victim of photography. The former is no more photogenic than the latter. In person, she is much younger and far more handsome than in print. One sees in this mature woman of 48 many traces of the dark, vivid young beauty who looks out from photographs of the Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary when she shared the throne of a great empire with Emperor Carl from 1916 to 1918.

She has expressive dark brown eyes and a smooth, clear, olive skin and complexion. Her fine, dark brown hair is parted on the left side, arranged loosely and becomingly around her face and drawn into a chignon just above the nape of her long, slim neck.

There is not so much as one gray hair to indicate 22 years of rigorous exile first in Switzerland, then the Isle of Madeira, next Spain, eventually Belgium and now, America. It is the oval face, marked with a few fine lines and so sad in repose, that tells the story. But it is not a plaintive face. She has sorrowed for many persons in her years of exile, but obviously never for herself.

Ever since the death of her exiled husband in 1922 on Madeira, the former empress has worn depeest mourning. From her ears to her ankles, she is sheathed in dull black crepe.

It is, alas, a shapeless uniform that conceals her slim, straight figure. It is a grim dress, unrelieved by a single ornament.

Of all the magnificent jewels that once she wore as an empress, only one is left her now. It is the plain, old-fashioned gold-band wedding ring, undistinguished from those worn by millions of old-fashioned American women who have not yet traded them in on the newer, more stream-lined platinum variety. It is the only ring on her square, capable-looking hands.

In the meantime, the former empress had sat down and motioned me into a chair opposite. Then in her fluent, excellent English, spoken with only a trace of an accent, she started the conversation with such an animated, gay, sincere and lyric pean of appreciation of America and Americans that the American sitting with her blushed with pride and pleasure.

Harrison Foresees Fingerprinting Required of All

Earl G. Harrison, director of registration, told aliens last night that they should not fear fingerprinting under the new Registration Act and predicted that "it will not be long before it is required of everybody."

"There is no stigma attached to being fingerprinted in this day and age," Harrison said in a radio address over N. B. C. as part of a campaign to bring aliens to postoffices for registration between August 26 and December 27.

Harrison said that aliens should realize "that the measure is intended to safeguard the land that has given many of them sanctuary from oppression." He expressed the hope that "they will have reason to appreciate the difference in spirit and method of registration here and that which might be present elsewhere.

Stockholm, Aug. 7 (AP).—The first of three special trains departed today for the Arctic port of Petsamo bearing a part of the 700 Americans en route home from Scandinavian and Baltic countries.

The Americans will sail from Petsamo August 13 aboard the United States Army transport American Legion.

Among those leaving here were Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, and Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling, wife of the Minister to Sweden. Sterling will accompany them as far as Petsamo.

Arms Strikes Unlikely, Says Miss Perkins

Labor Head Sees Business Benefiting From Defense Drive

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 7.—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins scoffed today at the possibility of strike-disruption of this country's national defense program and expressed belief that employment would rise and the farmer and businessman benefit in coming months along with expansion of the "war material" industries.

Speaking at the fifty-fifth annual convention of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, she told the delegates that "the rights and liberties we enjoy carry certain duties and obligations to promote the welfare of others" and that "we now realize in the light of the emergency that individual rights must be secondary to the welfare of the entire nation."

Commending the cooperation between labor and industry on national defense, Miss Perkins predicted that strikes would not hamper the program as they did in 1917, because "labor now has the rights for which it struck then—recognition and decent working conditions."

She maintained that the defense program was breaking down prejudice in industry against men over 40 on the grounds that employers were discovering "more than ever before" their value in experience and in ability to teach apprentices.

At the same time, she declared there was no shortage of skilled labor, with the exception of coppersmiths for work on warships, and expressed doubt that a long work week would speed up defense on the grounds that experience in the last war had shown it was possible to make more goods, more quickly with a short-hour week.

She declared American wage earners had made greater gains under the New Deal than in any comparable period of history.

NEW HELP FOR FOLKS OVER 40
Who "Feel Old" From Need of Iron & Vitamin B1
A large number of people over 40 do not get enough iron to make red blood; and they also fail to get enough vital Vitamin B1.
As a result, these folks are in poor health. They have too little energy or appetite. They sleep restlessly and often develop certain types of nervousness and neuritis. Their shortage of Vitamin B1 indirectly may affect the glands, stomach, intestines and other organs.
A shortage of Iron and Vitamin B1 often causes the following:
Low vitality
Frequent spells of ill health
Tiredness
Pallor
Pale tongue
Sleepless nights
Certain nerve disorders, possibly
Lack of vigor
Short breath
Loss of appetite
If this is the case, try ENRICH.
Men and women over 40 can now obtain extra iron and extra Vitamin B1 by taking delicious "ENRICH," a new diet-aid which is helping thousands who frequently feel pepped out and tired from insufficient iron and Vitamin B1. Just to show you how much iron and Vitamin B1 is in ENRICH read this:—
You would have to eat 2½ pounds of beefsteak or 7 lbs. of spinach every day to get the same amount of iron daily as in ONE OUNCE OF ENRICH. And besides you would have to eat ½ pound baker's yeast every day to get the same Vitamin B1 now obtained daily from ENRICH.
ENRICH tastes good and often produces an amazing improvement in a short time. Costs but a few cents a day; sensible as alcohol or stimulant drugs. Does not blacken teeth. Gives satisfaction or money refunded.
One Bottle $1.79. 2 Bottles $3.00.

Doings of Diplomats Chief Social Activity

Envoys Form Steady Procession in and Out Of Capital These Mid-Summer Days; Ambassador Bullitt Due at End of Week

By Dudley Harmon

Comings and goings are the chief activity on the social front these midsummer days. South American diplomats, bewildered political refugees from Europe, United States Ambassadors home to report, all form a steady procession in and out of the Capital.

Ambassador William Bullitt, now vacationing in the Berkshires, will return the end of the week. He has been here off and on since his arrival from Europe, and spends his late afternoons cooling off in the Shoreham pool.

Archduke Otto is back with us again, occupying the Shoreham apartment of the Norwegian Financial Counselor and Mrs. Lars Christiansen, who loaned it to him while they're away. He likes to stand with folded arms and watch the swimmers in the pool.

Several residents who have been stoically here through most of the heat are now vacation bound. Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller left yesterday for California, where she will remain until early October.

Mrs. Miller Goes To California

Just returned from that State is Robert Woods Bliss, who made a brief trip to his summer home at Santa Barbara. Mrs. Bliss is still busy with her Red Cross and other war relief work and doesn't expect to leave Dumbarton Oaks all summer.

Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Capital columnist and president of the Women's National Press Club, will sail next Wednesday with Mrs. William Morgan for a vacation in Mexico. They will land at Vera Cruz and go from there to Mexico City, returning here September 2. Mrs. Essary covered both political conventions this summer and says she can use a little rest.

Miss Marian Trumbull is back after choosing for a rest, of all places, New York City. She reports that she found Manhattan both cool and deserted and recommends it to vacationists in search of repose. She was joined during her two-day stay by Mrs. Kent Legare, who is summering at her place in Connecticut.

Hugh Wilson, former Ambassador to Germany and now in the State Department, has gone to Boston by motor with Mrs. Wilson. They stopped in New York at Hampshire House en route.

Mme. van Kaathoven Plans Trip North

In Washington at the moment, but poised for escape North, is Mme. van Kaathoven. She will visit Mrs. Henry Clews in Newport. Merritt Swift has just returned from a vacation in North Carolina and is planning to move into the house he recently bought in Georgetown.

Visiting dignitaries from Brazil kept Senhora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, away from the opening of the Brazilian room at the Latin-American exhibition in New York. She hopes to get up later, for there are five pieces of her own sculpture on view there. Four of these are small—a nude, a two-figure group, a statue of St. Francis, and a decorative work called "Search for Light," done in a green-blue patina.

Senhora de Martins did most of this since her arrival in Washington less than a year ago. She works every afternoon in the studio in the attic of the embassy on Massachusetts avenue.

Evelyn B. Merkle Plans Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Merkle, of Brentwood, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Evelyn Barbara Merkle, to William L. Farley, of Washington.

The wedding will take place the end of August at St. James Church, Mt. Ranier. Miss Catherine Merkle will be her sister's only attendant and J. Philip Merkle, her brother, will be best man.

Chevy Chase Man to Wed Texas Girl

Mrs. John Richard Johnson, of Galveston, Tex., announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Marjorie Buhmann, to Raymond L. Senasack, son of Mrs. George Senasack, of Chevy Chase. The wedding will be solemnized September 4 at a candlelight ceremony at Mrs. Johnson's home.

The bride-to-be attended Mary Hardin Baylor College. She is a member of the Cotillion Club and was a princess in the Galveston Mardi Gras Court of 1938.

Mr. Senasack attended Central College, Springfield, Mo., and Washington Seminary and College here. He is at present connected with the United States Engineer Office, Galveston, Tex., and after October 1 will be stationed with the Indian Service of Los Angeles.

At his wedding, he will have his brother, Leroy A. Senasack, as best man.

Nancy Leiter Takes Part In Race Week

Competing in Sailing With Former Secretary Of Navy Adams

Our social sentry stationed at Cape Cod writes that Miss Nancy Leiter, who prefers a long summer of sailing to any other kind of vacation, is taking a leading role in Marblehead Race Week.

At the tiller of her yacht, "Ventura," Miss Leiter is competing against no less a veteran skipper than Charles Francis Adams, who was formerly Secretary of the Navy. This race, the most thrilling of all the summer sporting events in Massachusetts, ends Saturday. This year it drew 415 starters.

Other enthusiastic skippers are Miss Angelica Lloyd and her brother, Demarest, daughter and son of Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, of Washington. From their summer home at New Bedford they compete with each other while their young sister, Miss Karen Lloyd, races and wins in her class boat, "Pollywog."

3 Young Refugees Enjoying Summer

The three young refugees whom John Foster of the British Embassy recently adopted for the duration are enjoying a pleasant summer with Mr. and Mrs. Redgars Opie of the embassy at her Cotuit cottage. Mrs. Opie is the daughter of Professor Taussig, the famous economics teacher at Harvard. Mrs. Opie also has as her guests Mr. and Mrs. William Lacy, of Wasnington.

Other diplomatic families on the Cape are Capt. and Mme. Pierre Benech and M. and Mme. Charles Lucet of the French Embassy. With their children they are installed together in one house.

York Harbor Colony Active in War Work

Further north, our correspondent reports that the York Harbor, Me., summer colony is very active in its war relief work. In fact, the York branch has just announced that it is the first in the United States to double its quota. Mrs. Vincent Sheean, wife of the author and newspaper correspondent, is very active socially there. She is the daughter of Lady Forbes-Robertson and the late Sir William Forbes-Robertson, whose Shakespearean roles are remembered by many.

Mrs. Corcoran Christens Ship

Mrs. Thomas Corcoran, wife of the special counsel of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who is better known as one of President Roosevelt's advisers, went to Newport News, Va., yesterday to christen the new ship, President Monroe.

After the launching, Mrs. Corcoran was guest of honor at a luncheon at the James River Country Club.

Arrived at the Chamberlin Hotel, Old Point Comfort, Va., are Dr. and Mrs. Hugh de Valin, of Washington. They will spend a month here. Col. and Mrs. Allen Kimberley, who have been in Rio de Janeiro, where the colonel headed the American military mission, are also at the Chamberlin. They will soon come to Washington, where the colonel has been assigned to duty.

Jean Ann Pharo To Become Bride Of Merton Lilly

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Pharo, of 1713 Thirty-seventh street, have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Jean Ann Pharo, to Merton Brainard

MISS JEAN ANN PHARO

Lilly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott H. Lilly, of Toledo, Ohio. The wedding will be August 24 at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, and will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Orlo Choguill, of Emporia, Kans.

Miss Pharo attended Oberlin College, majoring in practical art. Mr. Lilly was graduated from Oberlin College in chemistry. He is in the legal department of the Western Electric Co. in Washington, and is attending George Washington Law School.

On returning from their wedding trip, the couple will live at 506 Flower avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Frysinger Clan Gathers For Birthday

Mrs. George Frysinger To Mark Traditional 54th Anniversary

Members of the family of Mrs. George P. Frysinger are gathering here from as far West as California to help her celebrate her birthday Saturday. Mrs. Frysinger's age, she says, is "perpetually 54," according to a family tradition when one has passed that age. She will be honored at a dinner on the Shoreham Terrace.

Two of her daughters, Mrs. Paul K. Richter, of Pasadena, Calif., and Mrs. Harry R. Applegate, of Chicago, already have arrived for the celebration and will be here two weeks. Her son, Edward B. Frysinger, of Chicago, is coming Saturday. Another daughter, Miss Grace Frysinger, lives with her mother at the Shoreham, and is an economist for the Department of Agriculture.

Guests at the dinner will be relatives and intimate friends of Mrs. Frysinger.

Robert Tinsleys On Wedding Trip Through North

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Katherine Augusta Roolvink, of this city and Elizabeth, N. J., to Robert James Tinsley, of Elizabeth. The marriage took place on July 16 in the Cathedral of St. Matthew in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley left on a wedding trip to Asbury Park and points north. After September 1, they will be at home at the Park Lane Apartments.

Mrs. Tinsley is associated with the Treasury Department and is a member of the staff of the D. O. D. O. Nuze, a publication of the department.

Miss Ruth Powell Wed to Dr. Strine

Of interest to Washington is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Powell of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth I. Powell, to Dr. Howard F. Strine, on Tuesday, in Warrenton, Va.

The bride is well known here, where she was engaged in the real estate business. Dr. Strine, who is a surgeon, is a former commander of the United States Navy. He holds the Navy Cross. The couple are now on a trip through the New England States.

Welles Gives Dinner Party For Dr. Melo

Members of Congress, Service Heads Also Meet Pedro Rios

Leading members of Congress and the two highest ranking Army and Navy officials were invited by Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, to meet Dr. Leonoldo Melo and Pedro Rios, at dinner last night. Dr. Melo headed the Argentine delegation to the Havana Conference and Senor Rios was chief of the Uruguayan delegates.

At the dinner, which was held at the Mayflower, were Argentine Ambassador Espil and Dr. Jose Richling, Minister of Uruguay. Also present were Dr. Jose Otero, of the Uruguay delegation; the Secretary of the Navy, Col. Frank Knox; Senator Tom Connally, Senator Elbert Thomas, Senator Guy M. Gillette, Representative Luther Johnson, Representative Ed. V. Izac, Representative Foster Stearns, the Chief of Staff of the Army, Gen. George C. Marshall, Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations; Assistant Secretaries of State Henry Grady and Breckinridge Long, Phillip Bonsal and H. Charles Spruks, of the State Department, and, from the press, Felix Belair, jr., Constantine Brown and Ernest Lindley.

D. C. Salon 14 Plans Marche

The fifteenth annual Marche of the District of Columbia Salon 14, des Huit Chapeaux et Quarante Femmes, will be held August 15 and 16 at the Hotel Washington. Chapeau Departemental Edith P. Landvoigt will preside over all the sessions, with Secretaire Mabel F. Staub as chairman of the Marche.

The first night of the Marche will be devoted to business of the Marche and election of new officers. The second evening will feature a memorial service to deceased partners, which will be in charge of Memorial Chairman Marion Money. The national scholarship awards will be presented to Mary Elizabeth Marsh and Walter Clement, of Washington, and Janet English, of Alexandria. Many other important events will be held during the Marche.

Mrs. VanTuyle Visits At Bolton Landing

Mrs. George C. Van Tuyl is spending the month at the Sagamore Hotel, Bolton Landing, N. Y. Her sister, Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, has left there for Lenox, Mass., to visit friends and will return to Bolton Landing, N. Y., later this month.

Mrs. Donaldson, known professionally as Frances Starr, the actress, has spent a number of summers at Bolton Landing. Also at the popular resort is James C. Parker, jr., who is passing a few days at the Sagamore.

George A. Eddy Will Marry Miss Eileen O'Daniel in Fall

Engagement Told By Bride-Elect's Parents in New York

MISS EILEEN O'DANIEL

Of interest to Washington is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar V. O'Daniel, of Bronxville, N. Y., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eileen O'Daniel, to George A. Eddy, of Washington.

The prospective bride came to Washington several years ago, following graduation from Smith College, to work for the Republican National Committee. She served first as secretary to the chairman, John Hamilton, and was recently promoted to be a regional director in the women's division of the committee. She is making her headquarters in Chicago until the election, serving as director of the women's division for Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Miss O'Daniel was president of student government in her Smith College career, and is now a member of the Smith Alumnae Board. She made her debut in Bronxille in 1930. Miss O'Daniel's father was recently elected a director at large of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Eddy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Brewer Eddy, of Newtonille, Mass., and West Falmouth, Mass. He is a graduate of Yale and the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, and is now with the Treasury Department here. In recent years he served as an economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the Journal of Commerce, and the Treasury.

The wedding will not take place until after the elections in November, as Miss O'Daniel intends to stay on the job until that time.

Mrs. N. M. Cohen Gives Lawn Party for B. P. W.

Mrs. N. M. Cohen, of Allison street, entertained the Business and Professional Women's chapter of Hadassah at a lawn party on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Raphael Turover discussed the war in Europe and its effect upon the Jewish situation in Palestine. She stressed the fact that though the plight of the Jews appears to be more serious than ever, the will to live and continue as a people is still paramount and intense, and that with such a will no people can be eliminated.

Mrs. Moe Offenberg, president of Senitor Hadassah, spoke briefly, and Mrs. Yvonne Kushner conducted an "Information Please" program. New members were welcomed by Miss Jessie Breier. Miss Libby Scherr was chairman.

Willkie Greets Mrs. Ward

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, who left for Colorado Springs last week with the hope of meeting Wendell Willkie there, writes that her wish has come true. Perhaps it was because she was wearing a Willkie button, but anyway, as she was chatting on the Broadmoor terrace with Lou Wentz, Republican National Committeeman, Joseph Martin, Gov. Stassen and Henry Fletcher came out with the Republican nominee to be photographed. Mr. Wentz introduced Mr. Willkie to his admirer, and Mrs. Ward reports that she was much impressed.

"Meeting Willkie" is becoming a favorite pursuit with Washington women. One of them was going up in an elevator with a friend at the Philadelphia convention and, getting in conversation with another passenger, a complete stranger, she informed him of her wish. He said he knew Mr. Willkie very well, and would arrange it. So he took the two women up to the candidate's suite, and lo, their dream came true.

Mrs. Ward writes that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, jr., come in to the Broadmoor every day from their home near Colorado Springs, and that their baby daughter, Emily, has just celebrated her first birthday.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 18, Idolatrously Loves Man, 26, Who Was Once Ardent Suitor but Is Now Moodily Indifferent; Should She Ask Explanation or Bait Him With Rivals?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 18, very much in love with a man who is 26. We have been going together for more than a year, and during this time other boys have wanted to date me, but I couldn't think of going out with anyone else. I realize now that I should have developed these friendships, but he was all I lived for.

During the last three months, however, his attitude toward me is so changed that he seems a different person. I don't understand him at all. He is quite moody and I do my best to dispel his moodiness, but find it impossible. Lately, when we are out with our crowd, he pays no attention to me whatsoever, and yet I don't think there is any other girl. Is this his way of slowly breaking off?

My closest girl friend tells me to go out with other boys. She says if I do, and he hears of it and really loves me, he will ask me to go only with him. I don't want to do this but if it would bring me peace of mind, I shall try it. I love him so much that I cry myself to sleep nearly every night. This feeling of uncertainty—of not knowing what to do—is making me a nervous wreck.

Up to three months ago, I couldn't have asked for more attention, love and good times and there were occasions when we talked seriously of the future—but that was long ago. We continue to go out together as much as ever, but he just isn't the same.

So this is my problem: Should I go out with other boys? Or should I have a talk with him and try to find just where I stand? He means more to me than life itself. I love him more than words could express. Please advise me soon, as I am going away next week. Sincerely HEARTBROKEN.

Actions Should Reflect One's Basic Philosophy

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: The solution—at once simple and difficult—of your problem of anguished uncertainty, of "not knowing what to do," lies in getting control of yourself. And that means, as some psychologist has phrased it, "restoring the center of gravity to the self."

In process of recapturing serene self possession, you must first stop tearing yourself to pieces with morbid self analyses and feverish post mortems of past conversations and episodes—the supposed purpose of which is to determine what you may have said or done (or failed to say or do) that might be responsible for the man's changed attitude.

Also, you need some sort of philosophy by which to order your (shall we say?) love life. And I think the core of that philosophy should be the absolute certainty that those who are "meant for us" (as the saying goes) in the sense of representing what we essentially need and essentially are, will cleave to us through thick and thin, if ever the Fates should throw us together.

Thus, I think you should enter fully into, and quietly abide by, the conviction that if you were meant for this man, and he for you, then there is no need of your striving desperately to keep the relationship keyed constantly to concert pitch of romance. You must be prepared and content to let the interchange define its own nature—to the extent that the true personality of each of you is candidly pictured, so that it may be honestly ascertained whether you are fundamentally en rapport or fundamentally alien to each other.

If such is your philosophy expressed in deportment, the fact that your current beau, after a whirlwind preliminary courtship, gradually subsides to an attitude of quasi-indifference or even downright neglect—this fact will not be sufficient to throw your own life out of joint. It will not seriously affect either your conduct or outlook. It may be impossible, of course, not to feel some concern or disappointment at first.

But the point to remember is that IF the relationship ever contained the genuine "makings" of a bonafide, reciprocal "great love," those elements cannot be destroyed, even though they may undergo an eclipse, while certain conflicts of temperament are warring their way to some sort of conclusion. The thing to do, therefore, is to keep your poise and perspective, to the fullest possible extent, so that if there are, fundamentally, more harmonious than discordant factors involved, the former may more quickly and forcefully assert themselves.

If, in taking this quiescent attitude, you do eventually lose the companionship and devotion of the party of the second part so greatly desired—you may know that the sentimental adventure was a flash in the pan, and that you had been captivated (and he likewise) more by the role that each was playing for the other's benefit, than by the intrinsic personality of the so-called beloved.

Looking at your problem from this viewpoint, you should readily see that it doesn't matter much whether you "go out with other boys" or continue to string along with your mysteriously moody favored suitor—so long as you can develop and subtly read into the record of your relationship a quality, on your part, of imperturbable spiritual calm and philosophical capacity to adjust yourself to the truth-of-things, whatever that truth may prove to be.

However, it certainly would do no harm to mend your fences, socially. It may be, indeed, that your personality and conversation have grown threadbare of surprise elements—so far as your best beau is concerned—for the very reason that you have no social or intellectual life apart from him. Thus, if you should have other invitations, it might really benefit this most important relationship if you were to accept them—not with the intent of provoking jealousy, but rather for the purpose of enriching your personality through enlarging your social experience, general knowledge and human understanding.

Textile Designer To Tour for Year In South America

New York, July 00 (AP).—Ruth Reeves, textile designer and winner of a 1940 Guggenheim fellowship, will fly to South America this October "to take a nose dive into living materials" for modern textile designs.

What she brings back from a year's tour down South America's coast may mean something new and different in draperies, carpets or clothes for you before the end of 1941. For Miss Reeves, one of the United States' leading textile experts and the first to win a Guggenheim fellowship, expects to translate the ideas she gets from ancient Inca and Peruvian culture into the last word in modern textiles. She's a creator of both weaves and design patterns.

Traveling in a commercial airliner or on a burro's back, she intends to scoop up information in marketplaces or museums, in ruins or jungles for impressions in color, weaving or design.

A Gifted Cook Can Lend Charm Even to Dieting

Low Calorie Recipes May Be Delightful; Try Banana Whip

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU have a flair for cooking, you start on a diet with a couple of strikes against you—you are so used to stirring in six eggs, cream, chocolate and chopped nuts to make dishes delectable that your imagination balks at the idea of food without these high-calorie ingredients.

But if you are a natural-born cook you can turn your talents to low-calorie recipes that will add to your culinary fame. You can be just as renowned for your angel food cake as for chocolate layer. A 2-inch sector of angel food contains only 100 calories; chocolate layer, 400 calories; sponge cake, 130 calories.

You might be interested in some of the low-calorie recipes tested by the students at the Columbia University nutrition laboratories. Here are four:

Snowy Washing Easy to Achieve

Every homemaker wants her washing to be snowy white. But in spite of her best intentions, it may not be. What prevents grayness?

Watch a few essentials. Be sure the water is soft. Never run your washer longer than the instructions say, for then the dissolved soil settles back into the fabrics.

Fairly clean things never should be washed in the same washer load with very soiled articles. Nor should suds be used after they become quite soiled and break down. Thorough rinsing helps keep washing white, but there is no reason for excessive rinsing unless you have made the mistake of putting some really dirty articles in with some a great deal less soiled.

If anything needs more than three rinses, plus a fourth bluing rinse in some cases, it should have been washed sooner.

Anything Can Happen at Normandy Farm—And Does, but the Staff Is Unruffled

ANYTHING can happen at Normandy Farm. A kind guest, seeing six kittens tripping up the waitresses, donates six more; a persistent customer benumbs the imagination of the kitchen staff by ordering the "mystery dinner" for the sixth successive night; Charley, the 75-year-old popover chef, finds religion again as he is rushed into town for an emergency operation; a dozen debutantes announce they wish to dine a la Roman, lying on couches before the fireplace.

Marjory Hendricks

This perpetual series of crises, enough to overwhelm the proprietor of a more conventional restaurant, merely amuses Marjory Hendricks, who manages to sail through all emergencies with the same poise she evidences as she offers you a second cup of coffee.

When the depression forced her to fire her expensive French chef, she replaced him with a boy who had never boiled water. She did a lot of the cooking herself that first year, but she also trained the boy, who's now one of the best.

Her latest inspiration is a weekly religious service for her staff. The idea came to her one Sunday morning when she heard her girls humming hymns as they picked beans. She thinks it will be fine for the chef, who swears frequently, and for Charley, who has recovered from his operation and would like to tell about finding Jesus. "Very odd, Miss Hendricks," was a nearby pastor's reaction to her proposition, but he'll probably be glad to lead the service.

TOURIST NOTE—One man we've heard about will live to regret his visit to Mount Vernon. His wife, entranced with the trees clipped in designs along the wall of the kitchen garden, said to him, "Let's fix our trees that way when we get home." It may look as easy as cutting paper dolls, but any gardener will tell you it's a full-time job.

Not even a war can rob France of its sense of style, according to Dora Miller, newly returned French representative of an international lace guild, who spent a day here recently. She says the army tanks seen anywhere last winter were painted a drab brown to harmonize with winter's mud. But along about Easter they blossomed out in new coats of pastel green.

A Washington woman who wears her false teeth only on formal occasions found herself in a tough spot one evening when she was expecting guests. Everyone in the family helped her hunt for her plate, but it was not to be found. The search ended only with the arrival of the first guest, who noticed that the cocker spaniel which greeted him at the door was wearing an unusually toothy grin.

TRAFFIC HIGHLIGHTS—A gray sedan (Virginia tags) whose owner has had copper screening put at all the windows . . . An elderly colored woman driving a shiny new Pontiac coupe and wearing a pink-and-white sunbonnet reminiscent of plantation days.

Peaches Make Tangy Hot or Frozen Concoctions

THE MARKETS now have a splendid variety of fresh peaches that the alert housewife may serve in many ways. Even the most languid appetite will respond to a baked peach, especially if it is baked in wine. The blending of mace, lemon and wine with peaches produces just the tangy flavor to delight most any palate. The following method of preparation is simple to follow.

Peel 6 large peaches and put them in a covered baking dish and then add 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup water, ½ teaspoon mace, 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons of white wine or brandy. Grate the rind of 1 lemon over the top. Cover and bake in 400-degree oven until the peaches are tender. Serve hot. The peach pits flavor the fruit so delicately that they should not be removed. This is a dessert that is equally delicious whether served hot or cold. Canned peaches may be used and 1 tablespoon Muscatel wine added to replace the fresh peach pit flavor. Place a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each peach, and garnish with maraschino cherry.

Peaches also make a delicious refrigerator dessert called Peach Mousse. It can be made in the cool of the morning, tucked into the refrigerator and be ready to serve for dinner. The recipe follows:

Peach Mousse

Combine 1 cupful of peach pulp with ½ teaspoon lemon juice, few grains of salt and 2-3 cup powdered sugar. Sprinkle 1 teaspoonful gelatine in cold water, then dissolve it over hot water. Add to the peach mixture. Combine with 1 pint cream that is whipped stiff. Rinse a mold in cold water and fill with mixture. Freeze in refrigerator. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

Fur Sales Win New Favor This Season

Hollywood Stylist Likes Practicality Of Chic Jackets

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE "hottest" news in the fashion world is the August fur sales.

But puzzled buyers are wondering why there is so much more excitement over the summer fur sales this year than formerly. This summer's fur coat popularity is hard to explain, especially with election and wartime budget pinchings, but it is more than gratifying to dealers who have been waiting for the fur sales to fly.

Two explanations for the scores of women to be found late and early in every fur salon in the city are: the comfort of the air-cooled salons, and the savings offered over later purchases. But aside from these is the fact that everyone is more fur conscious today, due to the becoming stylings furs have taken on. Thus, even though furs are higher in price this year than last, they are being considered, like diamonds, good investments.

Jackets Popular

Due to chic cut and flare, the humbler furs are achieving distinction. Especially is this true of the furs handled by a famous Hollywood stylist, Edward Stevenson, who, between costume designing for R. K. O. stars, finds time to point out silhouette highlights. He especially likes the practicality of jackets—but in their proper proportions.

According to Stevenson, jackets should not be worn longer than hip length if the wearer would be in tune with 1940-41 dictums. About 20 to 24 inches from the shoulder to hem is a smart length for shorter jackets, while three-quarter or fingertip length coats run around 32 inches. The seven-eighth length coat is dowdy looking this year, while the chubby (neither short nor long) coat looks definitely passe.

The exception to the three-quarter length rule lies in the very brief evening jacket, which, in mink or cheaper mink tails, should be as short as the law allows. A number of the film stars wear Stevenson-designed bellhop jackets that barely hit the ribs, but are given a little dignity by surplus closings. As for the full length coat, it should cover the dress entirely this year, being from 40 to 42 inches in length for the average person five feet five.

Sleeves Are Fuller

The real news in the cut of the new furs is the shoulder line. There is no gay nineties puffiness, yet sleeves are fuller and bell or bishop shaped. The whole effect is smoother with yokes giving a clean cut casualness to furred shoulders. Sports furs, like kidskin, mouton and beaver are flared from yoked shoulder to hem while dressy ermines and caraculs often have tapered yokes with soft pleats or gathers worked down to the hem, another proof of furs beating fabrics at their own game.

Stevenson gives final fur facts which prove to be just as practical for Washingtonians as for movie stars. He urges buying now before winter prices rise and from reputable dealers who don't specialize in "bargains, too good to be true." He stresses buying the best fur your money can buy as furs may be higher still next year. Final caution, after the coat is bought—brush it after each wearing, and have it glazed, not once, but twice a year if it is worn consistently.

Summer Masks

DO YOU sometimes look in the mirror at the end of a hot summer day and gasp at the tired lines in your face? If so, it seems that your face has aged two years with fatigue. Almost—but not quite—you are ready to cancel your dinner engagement. You think: "If only I could sleep three hours the haggard look will disappear!" But there is no time for even a short nap. The next best thing to sleep and rest is a quick facial.

There are many effective hot weather pickups on the market. The mask is one of the quickest types of facials. One, "Hot Weather Mask," is a scented white preparation that dries quickly and leaves you refreshed, and cool-looking. Here's the way to use it: First cleanse the skin, then bathe with a mild skin lotion or cool water. Apply the white mask while your skin is still moist. Cover both face and neck. Remove with cool water and proceed with your makeup.

Another summer mask that is effective, cooling and easy to apply is "Vivacite." It has the cooling quality of mint and may be rinsed off with cold water. Still another mask is "Revenascence," a creamy, grayish preparation that smooths on easily. This cream stimulates the circulation in the face, erases fatigue lines and leaves the skin fresh and glowing.

None of these new type masks harden on the face like the old type ones that resembled a plaster cast and were just about as difficult to remove.

The Summer House Guest

(How to be a successful summer guest is discussed today by Miss LaJeanne DeSpain, expert on fashion, beauty, love, etiquette, politics, canapes, charm, international relations, knitting and pingpong.)

By La Jeanne De Spain

I have received so many inquiries on how to be a smart and fascinating summer house guest that I am going to pass on the results of my latest research on the problem.

Miss De Spain

Now many house guests, I feel, are disappointing to their hosts and hostesses because they are not well rounded personalities, that is, they cannot fit into any company or occasion. That is why before accepting any invitation for a week-end you should be sure that you are a skilled swimmer, golfer, equestrienne, gardener, dancer, cook, photographer, picknicker and chambermaid, also an expert at tennis, badminton, bridge, ping pong, checkers, authors, dominoes, quiz games and gossip.

Sword Swallowing Is Helpful

The well-rounded house guest also should be an expert at parlor tricks and able to perform at least one unusual stunt such as standing on her head, doing a chalk talk or swallowing a sword.

Now a great many of my inquiries have to do with the relation of the feminine house guest to the man of the house. Many correspondents want to know how they can avoid sitting in the host's favorite chair. A tactful way to avoid this is always to sit on the divan. In fact, my advice to all women in strange houses is always to sit on the divan as this breaks down dignity and invites companionship. As you may recall, most of the fascinating women of history are pictured on divans.

Feminine house guests also tell me they suffer embarassment over the bathroom problem. In homes where they must use the community bathroom they are always encountering the host coming or going—and when both ar ein dishabille.

How to Settle The Amorous Host

My suggestion for meeting such a problem is very simple—dark glasses. Also a small artificial mustache would add to the disguise. Then you could make your bathroom entrances and exits incognito, and be spared the effort, on meeting your host, of smiling sheepishly or self-consciously looking the other way.

I am also frequently asked how the feminine house guest can preserve an impersonal manner toward the host. Here is what one correspondent writes:

"DEAR MISS DeSPAIN: I always try to be a model house guest, and in so doing listen rapturously to all my host's stories and political dissertations, and laugh faithfully at his ancedotes. But frequently my eagerness to please is misunderstood—that is, it results in my host's becoming amorously inclined toward me. Naturally I cannot permit such behavior to go on—nor can I act too aloof toward my host in his own house. What shall I do?

MAYBELLE.

My advice to Maybelle and similarly embarrassed house guests is simply—don your dark glasses and your mustache. I am sure any gentlemanly host will take the hint.

Finally the ideal house guest will bring along a wardrobe that will occupy a minimum of space in the guestroom closet (where the family's best clothes are also parked) and at the same time meet every occasion that may arise—such as a hunt breakfast, a morning hike, tennis game or swim, a luncheon, cocktail party, tea, reception, buffet supper, garden party, country picnic, church service, extemporaneous wedding, etc. One particularly clever guest I know has her entire wardrobe of cellophane. This also solves the laundry problem.

Last, it goes without saying that the up-to-date house guests will be informed on all subjects of the day, particularly political and international—but with no well defined opinions of her own, especially when the host is around.

Theater of War Shifts To Deserts of Africa

ADVANCE of Italian troops across the border of British Somaliland (A) Tuesday began the struggle for power in Africa between Britain and Italy. A British communique announced yesterday that Il Duce's columns had captured Zeila, Hargeisa and Oadweina while the penetration of Kenya was continuing. Italians apparently are trying to gain control of the southeastern entrance of the Red Sea, thus getting into position to attack Egypt from Libya on one side and the Red Sea on the other. Cudahy Faces U. S. Reprimand

State Department Calls for Text Praising Nazis

An official reprimand for John P. Cudahy, American Ambassador to Belgium, became a possibility yesterday as the State Department called for full text of Cudahy's interview in London praising conduct of German soldiers and by implication reflecting on Britain's blockade of Europe.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, conceding that his action indicated official concern, told reporters he had cabled for complete information on the interview. Cudahy, it was made plain, gave the interview, while visiting Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy in London, without permission from the State Department or without notifying it.

The Ambassador to Belgium was quoted as saying that German soldiers occupying Belgium "behaved better than United States soldiers would have done under the circumstances," and said people in Belgium faced, by mid-September conditions "close to famine" unless they were supplied with American food.

Basis for a reprimand was seen in that delivered a few months ago by Secretary of State Hull to James H. R. Cromwell, then Minister to Canada, following a pro-Ally speech by Cromwell.

Hull told Cromwell that the speech "contravened standing instructions to American diplomatic officers, adding that "public discussion of controversial policies of other governments, particularly of governments engaged in war, without the prior knowledge and permission of this Government, is not in accord with such instructions."

Japan Snubs U. S. Request As to Aims

Silent on Attitude Toward Indo-China, Dutch East Indies

By the United Press

Tokyo (Thursday), Aug. 8.—Newspapers said today the government had sidestepped a request of the United tSates that Japan redefine her attitude toward French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies.

The government's attitude was tantamount to a rejection of the American request presented yesterday by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, it was indicated.

The newspaper Asahi said that Japan will hasten her southward policy "in silence and firm determination irrespective of the attitude of the United States."

The American Ambassador's call on Foreign Minister Matsuoka was connected with an American request for an explanation of Japan's attitude toward south Asia and specific statements with regard to negotiations between Japan and French Indo-China, Asahi said, adding that the United States' move probably was inspired by Great Britain and designed to bolster Britain's "dwindling influence in the Far East."

Matsuoka refused to commit Japan except to state that this government is not bringing improper pressure to bear on Indo-China, according to the newspaper.

British-Japanese relations continued stalemated today while Japan made a number of moves for closer cooperation with Germany and Italy.

Indicative of the pro-Axis trend, which is certain to be intensified if Germany should start a successful invasion of the British Isles. The Domei News Agency reported yesterday that the Bank of Japan soon will send representatives to Berlin and Rome.

Germany already has submitted an outline of her post-war economic plans, it was understood, and a feature of the plans is the complete elimination of the financial dominance of London over world bank transactions, particularly those in the Far East.

German Sea Raider Reported In New Battle With Cruiser

Alcantara Catches Up With Nazi Marauder Off Her Coast, Brazil Reports, And Engages in Running Gun Fight

By the Associated Press

Victoria, Brazil, Aug. 7.—A new sea battle between the British armed cruiser Alcantara and a German raider—both already battle-scarred—was believed to have been fought today off the South American coast.

The resumption of their running engagement for a second time within two weeks was indicated by loud explosions reported at sea and a radio message to a government station saying two armed ships were sighted off the Brazilian coast.

The Alcantara left Rio de Janeiro, 300 miles southwest of Victoria, Monday after four days of repairs required by its sea fight with an unidentified raider July 28.

The raider also was reported to have been hit in the fight and there was speculation that it might have met the armed merchant ship coming from port while heading ashore to have its own damage repaired.

The radio message that two armed ships were seen, was received by the local government radio station. It said the message came from the 4,872-ton Brazilian passenger ship, Ararangua.

The message gave no details, and further word was lacking because the Ararangua has not yet been reported in at any port near here.

30,000 Tons Reported Sunk

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP).—The German high command announced today that a German raider had sunk 30,000 tons of British merchant shipping overseas. No further details were given. (It was presumed to refer to the South Atlantic raider, believed to be a converted merchant ship sailing as the Swedish Narvik.)

Takoma Chamber Seeks Some Action On Town Hall

An inquiry into the proposed municipal building for Takoma Park was ordered by the Takoma Park Chamber of Commerce last night.

The question "What has become of the proposed town hall?" brought up by Robert Lyon, followed a lengthy discussion on the project by former Mayor John R. Adams, who appointed a committee to study the matter. Recommendations were to be made by the committee within six weeks after its appointment. The chamber requested its secretary, Leo J. Hubbard, to write a letter to Mayor Oliver W. Youngblood, asking him for a report.

Harley Gates was appointed chairman of the dinner dance to be held in October. Arthur Walters, president, named Judge Ralph G. Shure, Russel H. Lampson, George A. Cook and James Walker to assist Gates.

The new Takoma Park recreation center to be represented by Robert M. Kennedy, manager, was accepted into membership.

Gestapo Ushers German Pilots From Colombia

Copyright by New York Times

Panama City, Aug. 7.—Thirty Germans sailed today on the Japanese steamship Yasukumi Maru. Twenty were pilots and technicians employed by the Colombo-German Scadta Company, pioneers in commercial aviation in Latin America.

These men were discharged by the Columbian Avianca Company which took over the former Scadta. The Colombian government, resident Colombians and Pan-American Airways are now reported to control the new company. The Germans, possibly under pressure of Nazi agents, tried to retain at least a minority interest but the government of Colombia insisted on a clean sweep.

Eighty German pilots, mechanics, radiomen and photographers were discharged last June. At that time the German legation announced that the German staff of Scadta would remain in Colombia, as the pilots, who are military reserve officers, explained that their services were not needed in Germany. Apparently the situation has changed as it is reported they are returning on orders of Adolf Hitler and to make sure that they do not miss the ships they are ushered out of Colombia by members of the Gestapo there.

Petain to See That French Obey New Laws

Government Plans To Ban Apertifs, Regulate Liqueurs

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Aug. 7.—One test of the new order is now due—that of the application of the laws and regulations it has been enacting since it came into power almost a month ago.

One signal failure of the former regime, by common consent, was that while it produced laws by the hundred many went no further than the paper they were written on. The statute book was cluttered with ineffective legislation.

As a result, there developed in bureaucratic circles the impression that the only duty of senators and deputies was to issue regulations without responsibility for their application.

So Marshal Petain and his ministers face the double task of enacting new measures and compelling their observance. In the final analysis, it is on the marshal himself that this duty devolves, since the ministers are responsible personally to the head of the state, who may remove them at will.

An indication that henceforth laws must be obeyed is seen in the nomination of new prefects and subprefects which is understood to affect an aggregate of 172 posts. Henceforth it is announced that prefects will be expected to show initiative under their own responsibility, especially since communications with the central authority are difficult.

While the return of the government to Paris remains an ever-present possibility, communication between the occupied and unoccupied zones continues to be hedged in with restrictions.

A reminder comes today that no newspapers of any kind, even of ancient date, are permitted entry into the occupied area under "very grave" penalties. Similarly packages sent to prisoners of war must not be wrapped in newspapers.

France will soon be placed under a modified form of prohibition if a proposal discussed by the council of ministers is adopted.

There is no question of abolishing wines and champagnes in France and there probably never will be, but already it appears certain that the government intends to prohibit the manufacture of certain beverages known under the name of aperitifs, and will probably regulate severely the sale and distribution of liqueurs and other drinks of high alcoholic content.

The proposal would abolish all aperitifs containing more than 15 per cent alcohol. The sale of liqueurs and brandies in restaurants, bars and other public establishments would be permitted only after the noon day meal and prohibited after 3 p. m.

Britain Pledges To Free France After War

Churchill, DeGaulle Sign Pact on Status Of French Forces

By International News Service

London (Thursday), Aug. 8.—An agreement between Great Britain and Gen. Charles de Gaulle's "French National Committee," pledging the British to establishment of an "independent" France after the war, was announced early today.

Retroactive to July 1, 1940, but not signed until August 7, the pact consists of a memorandum of agreement signed by Prime Minister Churchill and an acceptance signed by Gen. de Gaulle, who was condemned to death a few days ago by the Petain government in France.

The accord outlines the status of the French armed forces outside of France which are under the leadership of De Gaulle and, having defied the French-German and French-Italian armistices, have placed themselves at Britain's service.

In his memorandum Churchill embodied the following solemn pledge:

"When the victory is gained, the Allied arms will secure the full restoration of the independence and greatness of France."

It guarantees that De Gaulle's followers and forces "will never be required to take up arms against France."

De Gaulle's reply said:

"The capacity in which I am recognized by His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom is that of leader of all free Frenchmen wherever they may be, who rally to me in support of the Allied cause.

"I accept the memorandum . . . I confirm to you that the French force now in progress of constitution is intended to take part in operations against our common enemies including defense of French territories, territories under French mandate and defense of British territories and communications and territories under British mandate."

The agreement stipulates that de Gaulle's committee, set up in London shortly after France capitulated to Germany, and its component bodies will retain their French national characteristics, subject only in their war activities to the British high command.

The French warships taken over by Britain will, under the Churchill-De Gaulle pact, be manned as much as possible by French officers and seamen. Those that cannot be staffed by Frenchmen will be manned only by British subjects or the nationals of Britain's active Allies such and Poland and Norway. All these ships will remain French property.

The British government undertakes in the agreement to supply to the De Gaulle organization all necessary funds.

Last week a military court at Clermont-Ferrand found Gen. de Gaulle guilty in absentia of deserting his country in time of war and acting from without its frontiers against the security of the French state. He was sentenced to die. De Gaulle pronounced this verdict "null and void" and declared he will be ready after the war to "submit myself to the judgment of the French people."

D. C. Court Worker Held in Alleged DivorceConspiracy

John Henry Adams, 40, colored, of 1708 Vermont avenue, a District Court messenger, was arrested here yesterday for Baltimore police in connection with an alleged divorce conspiracy case involving a Washington couple. Two Washington women and two Baltimore men are also being held.

The case involves the divorce of Mrs. Lucille Jones, Social Security clerk, from David E. Jones, of the 300 block of Rhode Island avenue northeast, a bus driver.

Mrs. Jones and Dorothy Garnett, 41, colored, of 1029 Euclid street northwest, have been released on $500 bonds as State witnesses. William T. Buckner, Baltimore lawyer, is charged with conspiracy to obtain the divorce on perjured testimony and subornation of perjury, and Linwood Frazier, Baltimore notary public, with conspiracy and perjury. The two men were held on $2,500 bond.

Court records show Mrs. Jones, in obtaining her divorce in Baltimore June 19, accusing her husband of misconduct, and that Miss Garnett testified she was a maid for the Joneses and supported the accusation.

Windsors to Reach Bermuda Today; to Stay in Mansion

Duke and Duchess Will Occupy Suite In Government House; No Formal Social Events Planned During Stay in Hamilton

By the Associated Press

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 7 (AP).—Government House, an 18-room turreted mansion set amid a 45-acre park of lawns and cedar groves and built of native coral, was made ready today for the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who arrive here tomorrow.

Mrs. Hastings Brooke, sister of the colony's bachelor governor, who will be the Windsors' hostess, showed correspondents today through the mansion, which is the residence of her brother.

The Duke and Duchess will occupy a suite of two bedrooms and baths on the south side of the house, opening on a veranda commanding a view of Hamilton. Both rooms, like the remainder of the House, are furnished simply and decorated in pastel shades.

Room For Bodyguard

The room to be occupied by the Duchess contains twin beds of ordinary white-painted iron with brass knobs, such as might be found in any summer seaside residence. In the room is an antique mahogany chiffonier, a dressing table and wardrobe and a flowered chintz chaise longue matching the draperies of the French windows.

The Duke's bodyguard will occupy a guest room next to his and the Duchess' personal maid will have a room adjoining hers.

Ascending the main staircase from the ground floor the Windsors will be faced by an enlarged framed photograph on the landing showing the Duke with a coronet on his head and wearing the royal robes he wore at the coronation of his father in 1911.

The hostess, a handsome gray-haired woman, is a leader in the colony's war relief work despite her 60-odd years.

She said it was unlikely that there would be any formal social activities planned for the stay of the Duke and Duchess, neither of whom she has met before.

Golfin, Sailing Planned

She added it was likely that her brother the governor, who is an enthusiastic yachtsman, would take the Duke sailing in his racing boat and golf with him, either at the Mid-ocean course or on a nine-hole course the governor had constructed on Government House grounds.

The Windsors will swim at the private Government House beach about a half mile from the house.

Mrs. Brooke said the only opportunity of leaders in Bermuda's official life to meet the Duke and Duchess may be at a small cocktail party on the terrace of the mansion, although other social functions may be arranged if the Windsors wish.

The length of their stay is still undecided. Arrangements for their transportation to Nassau, where the Duke will serve as governor and commander in chief of the Bahamas, remain a military secret.

Auto Plunges Off Road, Lynchburg Man Dies

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—Charles Harold Owen, 45, secretary and assistant treasurer of the Lynchburg Foundry Co., was killed instantly this afternoon, when his automobile failed to take a curve in Liggates road, plunged 150 feet and crashed on the main line of the Norfolk & Western Railway.

Hungary Seeks 75% Of Transylvania

Nazis Say Rumania Is Prepared to Give Bulgaria Concessions

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 7.—Hungary served notice tonight that in her 20-year-long territorial dispute with Rumania she will be satisfied with nothing less than a return of 75 per cent of Transylvania.

This word, it was learned on high authority, was given to Raoul Bossy, a Rumanian envoy, in a half-hour talk with Hungarian Premier Teleki at the foreign office.

Bossy, it was announced, will return to Bucharest tomorrow to inform his government of Hungary's position.

Signs that Germany was prodding Rumania to make a quick settlement of Hungary's claims were seen today in Bucharest.

The newspapers there ceased all claims for resistance against the Hungarian demands. Instead, they reprinted a Berlin foreign office article which criticized Rumanians "who have assumed an attitude of false heroism in settling relations with Hungary."

Nazis Report Concessions Imminent

(The German wireless, attributing its information to the Bucharest radio, reported that Rumania was prepared to make concessions to another territorial claimant—Bulgaria—but that these must not be "one-sided."

(This report added that Bulgaria would be asked to consent to the transfer back home of Rumanians now living in that country and that Rumania was not willing to return all of Dobruja, the region claimed.

(Rumania is "fundamentally prepared," it was added, to return the two districts of Durostor and Caliacra, but made reservations regarding the town of Silistra on the Danube.)

Meanwhile preparations were being made at Craiova, southwestern Rumania, for a final conference tomorrow which is expected to end in Rumania's cession of the province of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, which owned it until 1913.

Rumania Has New Jewish Law

Bucharest, Aug. 7. (AP).—The Rumanian cabinet promulgated tonight a new Jewish law which was a major step in this country's adoption of Nazi ideas.

The law separates Rumania's 750,000 Jews in three categories.

To the first—Jews who have fought in the front line for Rumania, and their descendants—are accorded some of the rights of Christians. Those of this class who hold public office may keep their jobs, but no new appointments will be made.

Jews in the second and third categories—those in regions annexed to Rumania, after the World War and those of the old Rumania who never were in active combat for the fatherland—are barred from public office, from professions "having direct liaison with the public authority," and from operating cafes, tobacco shops, movie theaters and many other enteprises.

All Jews are prohibited from owning farms. Those now owning such properties will lose them to the government and be recompensed with bonds.

(The official Hungarian newspaper Uj Magyarsag editorially advocated today a third Jewish law for Hungary, with intensified anti-Semitic measures. The paper suggested that economic measures against Jews be so intensified that Jews would voluntarily leave "out of the knowledge that they cannot prosper as heretofore.")

Special Pressure on Turkey Denied

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP).—Authorized German sources said today that, although "the fact that Turkey has certain understandings with our enemy, England, naturally demands alert watchfulness," Germany was not exerting any special pressure on Turkey for clarification of her stand in the war.

Reports that Germany and Italy had asked the Ankara government to define its attitude were current yesterday in Rome. (Today, however, Italian authorities cast doubt on these reports, saying Italy's policy toward Turkey was "one of reserve."

(Soon after the European war began, Turkey concluded a mutual assistance pact with the British-French Allies by which she undertook to go to their aid in the event of an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean area. However, although Italy and Britain now are at war in the Mediterranean, Turkey has remained neutral.)

Night After Night, British Relentlessly Raid Reich

By Robert P. Post.

Copyright by New York Times

An Airport Somewhere in England, Aug. 7.—A flare path, a dim line of light specks, stretched off into the darkness as a group of correspondents stood on the edge of this flying field and watched big Wellington bombers tak off one after another, headed for the Ruhr.

When the last one was gone there was a little pause around the dark airport and the lights went out. The group of correspondents returned to the mess, where officers, hungry for the sight of a fresh face, entertained them far into the morning until we heard the first roar of the returning planes.

For some time the planes circled the ground, then one by one they dropped down from the sky. It seemed hours as we waited to make sure that all the planes had returned safely. One finally was seen to be missing, but a few moments later we learned he had reported and was on his way in.

Conditions Bad

Then we sat down to breakfast in the mess, lit only by candles since there was an air-raid warning on. In trooped the pilots, gunners and navigators, fresh from their interrogation by intelligence officers. Still deafened by the roar of the motors and dazzled by German searchlights and the flash of anti-aircraft shells, they sat down after some five hours of steady flying.

Conditions had been very bad. A thick mist had hidden all primary targets, which were oil tanks. The weather even hid the steely glimmer of the Rhine, standby of navigators. Therefore, none of the planes had reached their primary targets or even their secondary ones.

But one crew coming home found a break in the mist above a munitions factory. The bomb doors swung open. "We got it square with our incendiaries," said the captain of the bomber. "I could see the flames break out as we headed homeward."

Nor was a fruitless evening for many others. Almost all of them found a German air field of one kind or another, mostly in Holland, on their way homeward, and sowed their bombs across it. One of them caught German planes engaged in night flying.

The Germans dismissed the damage done by this and other British raids with the word "negligible." It was only a sentence or two in the British communique. The weather turned the "show" into something of a failure and from the pilots' point of view it was just another operation which had not been completely successful.

Night After Night

That was all there was to it. Nobody seemed to stress the fact they had gone deep into German territory, interrupted the sleep—and work—of the entire industrial countryside and ended up by bombing several enemy-occupied air fields.

The Royal Air Force, though numerically inferior, is making successful raids on Germany night after night, establishing something close to superiority in the air over the Reich and carrying out the only form of active offense momentarily available to this country.

Officers of this successful squadron stressed the fact that bombs are never dropped promiscuously.

Unless the targets given the crews can be picked out and verified the bombs come back with the machines. Even if the machine gets into difficulties and the pilot has to drop his bombs in order to limp home, they must be dropped safe—that is, with the pins in them so they do not explode.

Nazis Planning To Drive Jews From Europe

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 7.—A German peace will mean a Jew-less peace, Das Schwarze Korps, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler's elite SS Guard, proclaimed today.

Once the war is won, some area remote from Europe will be set apart for Jewish colonization, the paper said, and then the continent will be cleared entirely of Jews.

Hitler's air force and raiding warships meanwhile battered against the only obstacles to a German peace—the island fortress of England and British sea power.

The Nazi high command announced a German raider had sunk 30,000 tons of British merchant shipping "overseas" and that German bombers had raided airports near Tynemouth and St. Athan, the Vickers-Armstrong airplane factories in Chester, and munitions plants in Swansea. Night-raiding British planes dropped bombs in Holland and western Germany but failed, the high command said, to inflict any "damage worth mentioning."

Hitler Signs Decrees

As Europe waited for the long-heralded grand assault on Britain, Hitler signed decrees bringing portions of the continent closer to annexation by the Reich.

German was declared the official language of occupied Luxemburg. The civil administrations of Luxembourg, Alsace and Lorraine were taken from the military and placed under civil administrators, directly responsible to Hitler.

The Fuehrer appointed Joseph Buerckel to head the civil administration of Lorraine, and named Reich Youth Leader Baldur von Schirach as governor of Austria to succeed Buerckel. Robert Wagner and Gustav Simon were named respectively chiefs of the civil administrations in Alsace and Luxembourg.

Visits Krupp Works

Von Schirach's place as youth leader will be filled by Chief District Leader Arthur Amann.

Hitler visited Germany's greatest arms factory—the Krupp works at Essen—and decorated the head of the firm, Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, on his seventieth birthday anniversary.

Das Schwarze Korps' discussion of a "peace without Jews" declared Jews had cooperated with Britain in an attempt to "convert all Europe into a chaotic, blood-soaked battlefield."

Therefore they must pay the bill, the paper said.

British Raid Nazi Bases

By International News Service

London, Aug. 7.—British bombing planes tonight were believed violently attacking German bases and concentrating along France's northern coast across the English Channel, as if to destroy possible blitzkrieg invasion springboards.

Royal Air Force squadrons kept flying across the Channel throughout the day in forays against Nazi objectives. All day long the heavy fire of German antiaircraft batteries on the northern French coast could be heard.

'Tainted Money' Issue at Trial

Frenchmen and the press to spur France's declaration of war last September 3.

If evidence of such "tainted money" is found, it was said, the court will be instructed to return indictments against both those who distributed the money and those who received it.

This branch of the inquiry may be connected with the evidence to be produced against Mandel, who faces a possible death sentence, while Daladier, Gen. Gamelin and the others face maximum sentences of life imprisonment. Mandel was transferred under heavy guard to Riom from the military prison at Meknes, Algeria, after an attempt to escape by boat. He is accused of conspiring against French security with a foreign power.

Daladier, Blum and Reynaud also arrived at Riom today but they are not in formal custody since, at this stage, they are merely witnesses in the trial to be held in the gothic Palais of Justice of this sleepy and sweltering county seat whose history dates back to the twelfth century.

After tomorrow's formal installation of the court, the judges will recess until next Tuesday, when the trial itself will start with the reading of the indictment to be drawn up in the meantime.

Many persons were ordered to leave Riom today and gendarmes began asking everyone whether they had any business connected with the court.

The town has only modest hotels, all taken over by the magistrates and their attaches.

Swarms of war refugees, including many Belgians who had fled from the north, were told to leave Riom.

In recent weeks there have been many accusations that foregin money was responsible to a large extent for France's entry into the war. Some reports have claimed that Russia financed left-wing French newspapers to "push" France into the war during the drawn-out negotiations between Russia and the Allies beginning in April, 1939, and continuing until the month before the outbreak of war.

There also have been unofficial accusations that British money found its way into French hands, particularly in support of Allied aid to Poland which seemed to have been a far more popular cause in England than in France.

A number of French Socialists and political writers who have since fled France were said to have been sympathetic to the British war aims both before and after the Polish campaign and they will be especially investigated by the Supreme Court.

The story behind the French declaration of war is one that has never been told. It concerns Britain's rejection of eleventh-hour peace appeals by Premier Mussolini of Italy.

cially to be pursuing a strategy of "active defense," and one spokesman asserted that Italy's African colonies would be held "just where we want them."

The expected attack from Libya was characterized as reflecting the "desperation" of Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, to achieve a victory to offset British successes in smashing at Libya's air and naval bases and, Britons said, wrecking water pipelines and supply concentrations.

Thirst, Heat British Allies

Graziani, they added, must face not alone the British regulars—seasoned troops with long experience in Africa—but two great natural allies: thirst and intense heat. Between the Italian positions and the British Egyptian base at Mersa Matrun, on the Mediterranean, there is a shimmering, waterless stretch of almost 400 miles.

Should the Italians break through the British outposts, they would still face a long march across the desert and, said a British source, because of heavy British air bombing they would have little hope of more supplies or of keeping contact with the rear base.

The British naval blockade of Libya has prevented supply ships from getting through from Italy, British sources said.

Suez is the Key

In explaining that Britain's "active defense strategy presently meets our ends best," one informant put it this way:

"By taking the offensive, the Italians are losing both men and materials—none of which can be replaced. Every shot fired by the enemy, every plane lost, brings the day closer when Mussolini's African Empire must crumble. For the British Navy's control of Suez makes it impossible for ships to bring fresh aid."

The Italian drive into British Somaliland apparently is designed primarily to remove that potential source of a British attack against Italian Somaliland, Eritrea and Ethiopia. The capture of British Somaliland would give the Italians a valuable strip of coastline as a base for attacks on Aden.

Sidelights of the War

Canada Omits Allegiance Oath So Americans Can Enlist in Her Land, Sea and Air Forces

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 7.—An important move to facilitate enlistment in Canada's defense forces by citizens of foreign countries, especially the United States, was announced today by Defense Minister J. L. Ralston.

An order-in-council has been passed under the War Measures Act which will enable men of a foreign country to enlist in Canada's military, naval or air forces without taking the oath of allegiance if by so doing they forfeit their own citizenship. For many months Americans have been desirous of joining the Royal Canadian Air Force but they hesitated when they found they would be required to take the oath of allegiance.

So far as the United States is concerned, any citizen who took a Canadian oath of allegiance would forfeit his United States citizenship automatically, and suffer the additional disadvantage of not acquiring Canadian citizenship automatically.

British Shipping Strength Increased

London, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Ministry of Shipping announced tonight that British shipping strength had been increased by about 10,000,000 deadweight tons as a result of the German invasion of Poland, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands and France.

In gross tonnage, which is approximately five-ninths of the deadweight tonnage, the total would be 5,500,000, or more than one-fourth the empire's prewar shipping gross tonnage of about 21,000,000.

[The German high command announced Tuesday that "enemy merchant shipping space and space useable by the enemy" sunk since the war started totaled 4,986,860 tons—a figure which the British at once challenged as a four-to-one exaggeration.]

Noting is unusual appearance, they questioned him and then marched him off to the authorities.

Pontiff Inveighs Against Propaganda

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 7.—The Pope today urged the abandonment of propaganda campaigns fostering hatred among foreign nations in a speech he delivered to about 1,000 people at the weekly audience in the Vatican.

It was clear that the pontiff's words were especially addressed to the belligerent countries. He deplored the lies which he said are appearing daily in a "certain press," and appealed to journalists and writers in general to show a greater sense of responsibility toward their readers.

"Would God," he said, "that history recorded no war provoked by and ably spread lie. . . A literature based on falsehoods may become just as deadly as armored cars and bombing aircraft.

They were accused of aping American movie stars; of wearing costumes which not only were in bad taste but sacrificed the wearers' femininity.

Jumbina Falls at Zoo As Newcomers Arrive

Those who take their political symbols seriously may regard this as an omen.

An elephant took a fall yesterday.

It happened at the Zoo. Cavorting in her outside inclosure, Jumbina, the big African, got excited when a work truck drove past and she skittered too close to the moat, her 4-ton frame toppling over the 3-foot drop.

After two hours of head scratching, attendants got Jumbina out by dumping a load of dirt into the moat and leveling it off so that a sort of ramp was formed. The elephant walked out with only a bruised skin and a broken toenail to show for her experience.

The incident distracted somewhat from keepers' activities yesterday in uncrating and placing on exhibition the animals brought from Liberia by the Smithsonian-Firestone expedition, led by Zoo Director William M. Mann, which disembarked at Norfolk Tuesday.

Meantime, Dr. Mann, suffering from the recurrence of an old malarial infection, entered Naval Hospital to recuperate.

Pigeon Falls Dead At Watchman's Feet

William I. Howard, watchman at Harvard Village, yesterday asked The Post to help locate the owner of a homing pigeon which fell dead almost at his feet.

A band on the bird's leg bore the following identification: AU39H736.

"It tumbled down from a tree on Ontario road, near the apartment house where I work," Howard said. Harvard Village is at Eighteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

2 From Here Win Dancing Prizes

Two Washingtonians took first prize with their exhibition polka at the opening of the fifty-seventh convention of the Dancing Masters of America, being held in Pittsburgh, it was announced yesterday.

The winners are Mrs. Julius Richards, of 3813 Veazey street northwest, and Leroy Thayer, jr., of 6435 Barnaby street northwest. Young Thayer is the 15-year-old son of the association's president.

More than 300 dancing instructors are participating in the session, which will continue through tomorrow. Thayer, serving his second term as president, is a candidate for reelection.

Water Heater Explodes At Clinic, 3 Burned

Three men were burned slightly yesterday when a gas hot water heater exploded at the Child Health Clinic, 16 D street northwest.

The injured, all employes of the District Health Department, received first aid on the scene. They are Sanford Witnowski, 21, of 423 Ingraham street northwest; Herbert Thompson, colored, 21, 1105 Ninth street northwest, and Alphus Hughes, colored, 28, 1531 S street northwest.

Man Gets Year in Theft Of Legislator's Pistols

Four charges of petit larceny, including the theft of two target pistols from the automobile of Representative Charles I. Faddis, (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, netted Stanley M. Shirley, 26, of 932 I street northwest, a year in jail yesterday.

Shirley pleaded guilty when he appeared before Police Court Judge John P. McMahon. Besides the pistols, he was accused of stealing cameras from three other automobiles.

"This is a mean, vicious form of thievery, young man," Judge McMahon told the defendant. "I am going to give you 90 days in each case."

New York Holds Man For D. C. Holdup Attempt

A 22-year-old man, sought by Washington police for the attempted holdup July 13 of Gerhard Eck's shoe store at 442 Ninth street northwest, was held in New York yesterday for District authorities.

His alleged companion in the unsuccessful holdup was captured by Washington police after an automobile chase in which several shots were fired on the night of the attempt.

The robbery was foiled when Eck hurled one of the men over a stool and snatched a pistol from the other.

Beer Drinker Robs Waitress of $20

After drinking beer in a restaurant for almost an hour, a young white man threatened a waitress by holding his hand as if he had a gun and forced her to surrender $20 from a cash register.

The robbery occurred at 22 F street northwest, shortly afternoon. The waitress, Mrs. Kennely Plummer, told police she had served the man several times and that when she approached his table, he told her to get him the money. He ran from the place and hailed a taxicab.

Police Stop Clash Between Boy Gangs

A dozen policemen, arriving in scout cars and on motorcycles, last night stopped a clash between gangs of white and colored boys at Randolph place and North Capitol street.

Both gangs appeared in the neighborhood at about 10 p. m., residents said. The colored youths were on foot, the white youths crammed into four or five open cars.

Rocks were hurled and bottles thrown. It could not be determined whether anyone was injured. At the sound of police sirens the youths vanished.

Conflicting stories of the origin of the battle were told by residents and the white youths who reassembled when police left.

One report was that a colored youth, beaten by a group of white boys, returned with 50 friends to seek his assailant. The other report was that a white youth, beaten by colored boys, assembled his gang for revenge.

Truce Sends 10,000 Idle Back to Jobs

Employes of Six Brickyards Agree To Work While Union Negotiates

Ten thousand construction workers in the Washington area will march back to their jobs today in the wake of an armistice halting hostilities in the brickyard strike.

More than 40 Government and private projects, valued at $25,000,000, will hum again after a week of ensued idleness that for a time tied up work on the National Defense Commission's new home in the Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board buildings.

A battalion of the Nation's outstanding labor mediators, spurred on by Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillmann, brought about the truce yesterday in a final three-hour conference.

Pickets to Be Withdrawn

Under its terms 500 laborers in six brick plants in the Washington area will return to work while resuming negotiations with the operators over wages, hours and union recognition. Picket lines at all construction jobs, which kept out more than 9,000 laborers and skilled workmen, will be withdrawn.

Meanwhile, The Post learned that Assistant Secretary of Labor Dan W. Tracy had intervened personally in an effort to settle an A. F. L. jurisdictional dispute between plasterers and carpenters that is slowing work on the Social Security Building.

Tracy, former president of the A. F. L.'s Electrical Workers Union, and John P. Coyne, president of the A. F. L. building trades department, conferred at length yesterday with Hillman. Long-distance telephone conversations were also held with William L. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters' International Union, in Indianapolis.

Asked whether a settlement may be expected today, Tracy said:

"I feel that way, and I certainly hope so."

He said he would hold informal discussions today with representatives of the plasters' international.

The plasterers and carpenters are battling over the installation of 750,000 feet of acoustical tile at the Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board buildings. Coyne handed down a decision last week giving the work to the carpenters.

More than 300 plasterers and cement finishers struck Friday in protest. Yesterday they were still on strike, but 2,000 other workers continued in their jobs.

Since every day of the plasterers' strike will delay completion of the defense buildings that much longer, Tracy said he will seek today to get the men back to work while the negotiations continue.

The crack crew of labor mediators that brought about the brickyard truce included one of Hillman's special representatives, Joseph Keenan, former president of the Chicago Building Trades Council. Another member of the group was Duncan Campbell, Federal Works Agency labor relations expert, who was lent to the Labor Department by Administrator John Carmody.

A large section of the Labor Department's Conciliation Service, headed by Director John R. Steelman, was also engaged actively in the week's negotiations.

The brick plants affected by the strike included the West Brothers Brick Co., the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., the United Clay Products Co., the Woodridge Clay Products Co., the Hudson Supply & Equipment Co., and the Washington Brick Co.

Nearly ten Government construction jobs were involved, including work at the Navy Yard, the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., the Virginia Public Service Co., at Alexandria, the District National Guard Armory and housing projects in the vicinity of Navy place southeast, and Fort Dupont.

President of Union And Wife Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Orville P. Clark were guests last night at a party given by Local No. 7, of the Postoffice Mechanics Union. Clark is national president.

The party was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Estes, 1743 Lang place northeast, following the regular business meeting of the union. Clark is here from Minneapolis on union business.

Senate Group Subpenas 2 Capital Men

'Real Estate' Pair Paid For 'Nuisance Value,' Says R.C.A. Attorney

By the Associated Press

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee issued subpenas for two Washington men yesterday after an attorney for the Radio Corporation of America testified he paid them $1,250 apeice for their "nuisance value."

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, announced that Levin Handy and Wyland Shaffer, described by a witness as "real estate" brokers, would be summoned today.

Robert D. O'Collaghan, New York, was the R. C. A. attorney who said he had paid $1,250 to each of the men. He testified that they "claimed they introduced us to a good lawyer" who in turn introduced O'Collaghan and David Sarnoff, R. C. A. president, to former Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, at Concord, N. H., the "good lawyer," he said, was Roger Whiteford, of Washington.

Recommends Hastings

Later, O'Collaghan said, Moses recommended the R. C. A. employ the law firm of Daniel O. Hastings, former Delaware senator, to obtain postponement of an anti-trust suit, filed at Wilmington, Del., in 1932 against R. C. A., General Electric, Westinghouse and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in 1932.

"That sounds pretty fishy," Wheeler declared. "What would a couple of real estate brokers have to do with settling a court case in Delaware?"

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, who had requested that Sarnoff and R. C. A. officials be summoned, declared that Hastings and Moses had been paid about $8,000 each by R. C. A.

Sarnoff testified that Moses' services were in connection with an investigation of radio and investment conditions in Europe.

O'Collaghan said the Hastings law firm was employed about "a week or ten days" on the case.

Explains Visit

Sarnoff asserted that he saw "no impropriety in consulting or seeking advice from Senators and Representatives on a public matter which had been discussed on the Senate floor."

The purpose of a visit he made to Moses, Sarnoff said, was to present R. C. A.'s side of the case and to "outline a complicated situation." This involved, he added, an oral agreement between the various companies named in the Government suit just before the case was to be called.

Sarnoff said he wanted time enough to get the agreement straightened out before continuing with the case.

Postlude

National Symphony Orchestra collaborates with Daltry Opera Company in presenting Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "Trial By Jury" at the Potomac Watergate Wednesday night, under the director of Joseph S. Daltry. Cast of characters:

A crescent moon glowed above the quarter-deck of H. M. S. Pinafore anchored last evening not in Portsmouth Harbor, where Gilbert and Sullivan had ordered it, but at the Potomac Watergate, where the National Symphony Orchestra and the Daltry Opera Company were in command of the officers and crew. One of the largest audiences of the summer season, comfortably ensconced along the terrace, enjoyed the well-remembered melodies of the music and the quips of the text with never a care for a shower in the offing. Degrees of temparature and a percentage of humidity were forgotten on a night as pleasant as though it had been guaranteed for the occasion.

Although records are not available for all the performances of "Pinafore," it is safe to say that this was one of the few times, if not the only time, when the operetta was staged on the water. The choice was a happy one on the part of the collaborating managements, for the natural setting gave verisimilitude to the nautical ways of the plot. The crowd on the shore and the flanking flotillas of canoes assisted in the illusion that Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., was being hailed by the populace on his visit of inspection.

Joseph Daltry's youthful company of singers romped through a jolly performance without a dull or laggard moment in it, and romping is not to be taken as a derogatory verb in this instance. It indicates, rather, the indefatigable vim and the unremitting zest of principles and chorus, who made their disciplined routine appear a spontaneous pastime. One of the best parts of their training was the crispness of their diction which slurred over none of lines and made every verbal intricacy clear. That was no small feat in itself, for Gilbert delighted in combinations of syllables difficult to articulate in singing.

Frank Kierman, as the pompous First Lord of the Admiralty, is an expert in Gilbertian patter and a comedian of no mean talent. It would be inappropriate to an outdoor performance to say that he brought down the house with his antics during the trio in the second act, but it was he alone who was responsible for the demanded repetitions of the final verse.

Dean Gehring as Josephine disclosed one of the best soprano voices in the troupe with a pellucid quality of tone, and she used it with an artistry which the part does not always receive. Catherine Judah was vocally satisfying in an excellent portraiture of Little Buttercup, and Mary Merrill was a piquant Hebe.

Clifford Johnson did full justice to the tenor role of Ralph Rackstraw and was well matched by Leonard Stocker whose barytone voice was pleasantly modulated in the part of Capt. Corcoran. Ernest Eames did a commendable piece of character work as the mock-sinister Dick Deadeye.

Because William S. Gilbert was a satirist with a sure touch upon foibles, his operetta texts have a timeless applicability. "Pinafore" was a topical work in 1879, and in the part of Sir Poseph Porter the finger of ridicule was pointed at W. H. Smith, a newspaper agent who had been appointed first lord of the admiralty.

"Trial by Jury," usually a curtain-raiser, was relegated last night to the position of after-piece. This delightful cantata, crammed with parodies of musical forms from floratura arias to fugues, was mirthfully handled by Frank Stone as the judge, Derna De Pamphilis as the plaintiff, Joseph Sheckard as the defendant, and Leonard Stocker as counsel for the defense.

Wives of Two Diplomats Now U. S. Citizens

Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, Mrs. Elvin Seibert Swear Allegiance

Mrs. Edgar L. G. Prochnik, wife of the former Austrian Minister to the United States, is one of America's new citizens.

MRS. SEIBERT

So is Mrs. Elvin Seibert, daughter of Baron Johan Beck-Friis, former Counselor of the Swedish Legation here.

But being an American, it seems, is hardly novel to either.

Mrs. Prochnik was born in Boston but lost her citizenship by marrying the Austrian diplomat in 1915, under a law then in effect.

And Mrs. Seibert, though a Swedish subject, spent such a large part of her time in Washington that "I already felt like an American," she said last night.

However, said the former Baroness Christina Beck-Friis, "I am frightfully glad it is now official."

Mme. Prochnik

Her remarks were relayed over the telephone by her husband, a secretary of the United States Legation in Bangkok, Thailand (Siam), who is assigned to duty at the State Department here for the summer. Mrs. Seibert was feeding the baby, their younger son, Anthony.

The Seiberts were married in 1936 in Shanghai, where he was vice consul and her father was Swedish Minister to China. Seibert was the first American diplomat to marry a foreign subject after the State Department had adopted a rule forbidding such marriages by its employes without permission. Seibert gained permission with little ado.

Mrs. Seibert, while her father was here, attended Western High School and made her debut. Despite her American education she "boned hard" for the naturalization exam, she said.

Mrs. Prochnik disclosed on the other hand, that she did little studying for the test. Asked if her husband was considering taking out citizenship papers, she said his plans were "unsettled." Minister Prochnik became a "man without a country" when the Austrian Legation was closed after Germany annexed his homeland. Now a lecturer at Georgetown University, he is also writing a book on diplomacy.

With 62 other aliens who became Americans at the same time, both Mrs. Prochnik and Mrs. Seibert swore allegiance to the United States Tuesday in District Court here.

32 States Trail D. C. in Income Tax Payments

The District poured $9,696,000 in Federal income taxes into the Treasury last year, more than did 32 States, according to figures released yesterday.

Issuing a series of tables on income for the calendar year, 1938, and on which taxes were paid in 1939, the Treasury Department revealed that a grand total of 6,303,890 returns were filed by the States and Territories. Of this number, 114,445 were filed in or from the District, of which 113,869 showed a net income of $321,128,000.

In addition, there were 576 local returns reporting no net incomes but, rather, an aggregate deficit of $1,829,000.

Maryland individuals and business firms filed 137,104 returns and paid $15,225,000 in income taxes. Virginia had 73,522 returns and paid $7,829,000. The net incomes on which these taxes were paid were $423,888,000 and $228,428,000, respectively.

For the country as a whole, a total of $765,887,000 was paid in income taxes on net incomes aggregating $18,897,374,000.

Three persons were revealed to be in the "$5,000,000 and over" income class, but their identities were not divulged. This trio had a combined net income of $21,604,000 in 1938 and paid $6,664,000 income taxes.

Fifty-seven individuals, including the three cited above, were in the "$1,000,000 and over" income class, of whom 30 fell in the $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 bracket.

Banquet to Open Legion Auxiliary Convention Here

The fifteenth annual convention of the District Department, American Legion Auxiliary, will open with a banquet in the Mayflower Hotel tonight at 7 in honor of Mrs. Helen Lee Gilbert, national vice president for the eastern division.

Speakers at the banquet will include Mrs. Gilbert and John Blaine Fitzgerald, national vice commander, American Legion; William H. Hargraves, department commander, and Mrs. Mary B. McMillin, department auxiliary president.

The business session of the convention will be held tomorrow evening at the Department of Commerce Auditorium. National Vice Commander Fitzgerald will be principal speaker. Presentation of trophies and awards will be made.

Gas Price War Slated, Poage Hears

Congressman Told 3-Cent Cut Due Monday; Dealers Deny Reports

Washington motorists should not be burdened with an unnecessary tax solely for the purpose of narrowing the spread between District, Maryland and Virginia gasoline levy rates, Representative W. R. Poage, chairman of the special House gas tax subcommittee, declared last night.

Poage made the declaration after receiving reports of an impending District gasoline price war, denied by local distributors and dealers, and following a storm of protest by organized motorists and civic groups against a bill sponsored by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, to increase gas tax here from 2 to 3 cents a gallon.

At the close of the second day of hearings yesterday an Arlington County dealer informed Poage that District gasoline prices are to be slashed 3 cents a gallon, effective Monday. Such a move would signal a price war here, but no distributor or retailer reached by The Post last night was able to confirm the report.

Deny Slash Is Planned

Several dealers pointed out that some Washington stations are advertising a 2- and 3-cent discount, but all denied that a general price reduction is impending.

Emphasizing that he was speaking personally and not for his subcommittee, Poage declared that the necessity for the tax increase should be determined by the need for District street and highway construction and improvement.

He added the fact that the Maryland State tax is 2 cents and the Virginia rate 3 cents above the District could not be entirely eliminated in consideration of the bill, but that Washington needs should be the primary factor.

The chairman's views were developed following testimony of Luther C. Steward, chairman of the advisory board of the Keystone Automobile Club.

At the hearing, Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, explained the District's relatively low gasoline tax by pointing out that States have highway systems "ten times" larger than Washington.

"The District should not be taxed beyond its needs just to satisfy a special group in Maryland and Virginia," Nichols declared.

Says Question Obscured

Steward, referring to a statement of a previous witness, complained that the gas tax question was being obscured by an inclination to discuss the whole problem of the District's fiscal relations with the Federal Government.

"I think," said Steward, "that the subject should be considered solely on the merits of this bill which is a measure to increase the gas tax here."

"I think so, too," replied Poage, "but I can't agree with you that we can assume there is no need for higher gasoline taxes and that we have no right to make an investigation."

Steward joined Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District division of the American Automobile Association, in protesting the increase and the suggestion of some proponents that a higher tax should be diverted for other than highway purposes. Both witnesses reported difficulty in comprehending "sources" for agitation for the measure.

Recalls Petition

Cleveland pointed out "what appears to be unusual circumstances in connection with the holding of this hearing." He testified that a petitioned signed by 30,000 Washington motorists had defeated a similar proposal in 1937 and pointed out that at least twice this session the District Committee has refused to report favorably on the present bill.

"This hearing presents a unique and extraordinary, although I would not say illegal, parliamentary situation," Cleveland declared. "A special committee has been appointed not to consider the bill itself, because action on the bill has been withheld for this session by the full committee, but to consider the subject of increasing the District gasoline tax."

Cleveland declared that when he had asked for legislation to have the personal property tax apply only to automobiles registered in the District on the date the tax is assessed, he was advised there was no chance for any bill during the remainder of the session.

Twenty-three civic organizations were listed by Cleveland as opposed to the bill.

Dr. Willis Wins Sweepstakes Honors In Takoma Club's Gladiolus Show

Havre de Grace Man Takes 7 Blue Ribbons And Gets Certificate

Capturing seven blue ribbons, the best flower in the show, and the certificate of recognition, Dr. G. A. Willis, of Havre de Grace, Md., won the sweepstakes at the twentieth annual gladiolus show of the Takoma Horticultural Club, which opened last night at the Public Library, Fifth and Cedar streets northwest.

A ripple-edged "New Era" in deep pink exhibited by Dr. Willis was adjudged the best bloom. Honors for the second best bloom in the show also went to Dr. Willis for his exhibit of a salmon colored "Picardy." Lawrence L. Powers, 214 Colesville road, Hyattsville, Md., took the ribbon for the third best spike with a mauve "Sahara" which scored first in the smoky class.

All but two of the 27 exhibitors went home with either a red, white, or blue ribbon, the first time, according to the committee that practically every person was given an award. Nearly all the exhibitors were nonmembers from far in Maryland and Virginia. I. Lee Amann, 2032 Belmont road northwest, exhibiting for the first time, took first, second and third awards in various classes.

Maj. Merle H. Davis, U. S. A., judged all the classes. Clarence W. Moore was chairman.

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 7.—Hungary served notice tonight that in her 20-year-long territorial dispute with Rumania she will be satisfied with nothing less than a return of 75 per cent of Transylvania.

This word, it was learned on high authority, was given to Raoul Bossy, a Rumanian envoy, in a half-hour talk with Hungarian Premier Teleki at the foreign office.

Bossy, it was announced, will return to Bucharest tomorrow to inform his government of Hungary's position.

Signs that Germany was prodding Rumania to make a quick settlement of Hungary's claims were seen today in Bucharest.

The newspapers there ceased all claims for resistance against the Hungarian demands. Instead, they reprinted a Berlin foreign office article which criticized Rumanians "who have assumed an attitude of false heroism in settling relations with Hungary."

Nazis Report Concessions Imminent

(The German wireless, attributing its information to the Bucharest radio, reported that Rumania was prepared to make concessions to another territorial claimant—Bulgaria—but that these must not be "one-sided."

(This report added that Bulgaria would be asked to consent to the transfer back home of Rumanians now living in that country and that Rumania was not willing to return all of Dobruja, the region claimed.

(Rumania is "fundamentally prepared," it was added, to return the two districts of Durostor and Caliacra, but made reservations regarding the town of Silistra on the Danube.)

Meanwhile preparations were being made at Craiova, southwestern Rumania, for a final conference tomorrow which is expected to end in Rumania's cession of the province of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, which owned it until 1913.

Rumania Has New Jewish Law

Bucharest, Aug. 7. (AP).—The Rumanian cabinet promulgated tonight a new Jewish law which was a major step in this country's adoption of Nazi ideas.

The law separates Rumania's 750,000 Jews in three categories.

To the first—Jews who have fought in the front line for Rumania, and their descendants—are accorded some of the rights of Christians. Those of this class who hold public office may keep their jobs, but no new appointments will be made.

Jews in the second and third categories—those in regions annexed to Rumania, after the World War and those of the old Rumania who never were in active combat for the fatherland—are barred from public office, from professions "having direct liaison with the public authority," and from operating cafes, tobacco shops, movie theaters and many other enteprises.

All Jews are prohibited from owning farms. Those now owning such properties will lose them to the government and be recompensed with bonds.

(The official Hungarian newspaper Uj Magyarsag editorially advocated today a third Jewish law for Hungary, with intensified anti-Semitic measures. The paper suggested that economic measures against Jews be so intensified that Jews would voluntarily leave "out of the knowledge that they cannot prosper as heretofore.")

Special Pressure on Turkey Denied

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP).—Authorized German sources said today that, although "the fact that Turkey has certain understandings with our enemy, England, naturally demands alert watchfulness," Germany was not exerting any special pressure on Turkey for clarification of her stand in the war.

Reports that Germany and Italy had asked the Ankara government to define its attitude were current yesterday in Rome. (Today, however, Italian authorities cast doubt on these reports, saying Italy's policy toward Turkey was "one of reserve."

(Soon after the European war began, Turkey concluded a mutual assistance pact with the British-French Allies by which she undertook to go to their aid in the event of an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean area. However, although Italy and Britain now are at war in the Mediterranean, Turkey has remained neutral.)

Night After Night, British Relentlessly Raid Reich

Copyright by New York Times

An Airport Somewhere in England, Aug. 7.—A flare path, a dim line of light specks, stretched off into the darkness as a group of correspondents stood on the edge of this flying field and watched big Wellington bombers tak off one after another, headed for the Ruhr.

When the last one was gone there was a little pause around the dark airport and the lights went out. The group of correspondents returned to the mess, where officers, hungry for the sight of a fresh face, entertained them far into the morning until we heard the first roar of the returning planes.

For some time the planes circled the ground, then one by one they dropped down from the sky. It seemed hours as we waited to make sure that all the planes had returned safely. One finally was seen to be missing, but a few moments later we learned he had reported and was on his way in.

Conditions Bad

Then we sat down to breakfast in the mess, lit only by candles since there was an air-raid warning on. In trooped the pilots, gunners and navigators, fresh from their interrogation by intelligence officers. Still deafened by the roar of the motors and dazzled by German searchlights and the flash of anti-aircraft shells, they sat down after some five hours of steady flying.

Conditions had been very bad. A thick mist had hidden all primary targets, which were oil tanks. The weather even hid the steely glimmer of the Rhine, standby of navigators. Therefore, none of the planes had reached their primary targets or even their secondary ones.

But one crew coming home found a break in the mist above a munitions factory. The bomb doors swung open. "We got it square with our incendiaries," said the captain of the bomber. "I could see the flames break out as we headed homeward."

Nor was a fruitless evening for many others. Almost all of them found a German air field of one kind or another, mostly in Holland, on their way homeward, and sowed their bombs across it. One of them caught German planes engaged in night flying.

The Germans dismissed the damage done by this and other British raids with the word "negligible." It was only a sentence or two in the British communique. The weather turned the "show" into something of a failure and from the pilots' point of view it was just another operation which had not been completely successful.

Night After Night

That was all there was to it. Nobody seemed to stress the fact they had gone deep into German territory, interrupted the sleep—and work—of the entire industrial countryside and ended up by bombing several enemy-occupied air fields.

The Royal Air Force, though numerically inferior, is making successful raids on Germany night after night, establishing something close to superiority in the air over the Reich and carrying out the only form of active offense momentarily available to this country.

Officers of this successful squadron stressed the fact that bombs are never dropped promiscuously.

Unless the targets given the crews can be picked out and verified the bombs come back with the machines. Even if the machine gets into difficulties and the pilot has to drop his bombs in order to limp home, they must be dropped safe—that is, with the pins in them so they do not explode.

Nazis Planning To Drive Jews From Europe

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 7.—A German peace will mean a Jew-less peace, Das Schwarze Korps, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler's elite SS Guard, proclaimed today.

Once the war is won, some area remote from Europe will be set apart for Jewish colonization, the paper said, and then the continent will be cleared entirely of Jews.

Hitler's air force and raiding warships meanwhile battered against the only obstacles to a German peace—the island fortress of England and British sea power.

The Nazi high command announced a German raider had sunk 30,000 tons of British merchant shipping "overseas" and that German bombers had raided airports near Tynemouth and St. Athan, the Vickers-Armstrong airplane factories in Chester, and munitions plants in Swansea. Night-raiding British planes dropped bombs in Holland and western Germany but failed, the high command said, to inflict any "damage worth mentioning."

Hitler Signs Decrees

As Europe waited for the long-heralded grand assault on Britain, Hitler signed decrees bringing portions of the continent closer to annexation by the Reich.

German was declared the official language of occupied Luxemburg. The civil administrations of Luxembourg, Alsace and Lorraine were taken from the military and placed under civil administrators, directly responsible to Hitler.

The Fuehrer appointed Joseph Buerckel to head the civil administration of Lorraine, and named Reich Youth Leader Baldur von Schirach as governor of Austria to succeed Buerckel. Robert Wagner and Gustav Simon were named respectively chiefs of the civil administrations in Alsace and Luxembourg.

Visits Krupp Works

Von Schirach's place as youth leader will be filled by Chief District Leader Arthur Amann.

Hitler visited Germany's greatest arms factory—the Krupp works at Essen—and decorated the head of the firm, Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, on his seventieth birthday anniversary.

Das Schwarze Korps' discussion of a "peace without Jews" declared Jews had cooperated with Britain in an attempt to "convert all Europe into a chaotic, blood-soaked battlefield."

Therefore they must pay the bill, the paper said.

British Raid Nazi Bases

By International News Service

London, Aug. 7.—British bombing planes tonight were believed violently attacking German bases and concentrating along France's northern coast across the English Channel, as if to destroy possible blitzkrieg invasion springboards.

Royal Air Force squadrons kept flying across the Channel throughout the day in forays against Nazi objectives. All day long the heavy fire of German antiaircraft batteries on the northern French coast could be heard.

'Tainted Money' Issue at Trial

Frenchmen and the press to spur France's declaration of war last September 3.

If evidence of such "tainted money" is found, it was said, the court will be instructed to return indictments against both those who distributed the money and those who received it.

This branch of the inquiry may be connected with the evidence to be produced against Mandel, who faces a possible death sentence, while Daladier, Gen. Gamelin and the others face maximum sentences of life imprisonment. Mandel was transferred under heavy guard to Riom from the military prison at Meknes, Algeria, after an attempt to escape by boat. He is accused of conspiring against French security with a foreign power.

Daladier, Blum and Reynaud also arrived at Riom today but they are not in formal custody since, at this stage, they are merely witnesses in the trial to be held in the gothic Palais of Justice of this sleepy and sweltering county seat whose history dates back to the twelfth century.

After tomorrow's formal installation of the court, the judges will recess until next Tuesday, when the trial itself will start with the reading of the indictment to be drawn up in the meantime.

Many persons were ordered to leave Riom today and gendarmes began asking everyone whether they had any business connected with the court.

The town has only modest hotels, all taken over by the magistrates and their attaches.

Swarms of war refugees, including many Belgians who had fled from the north, were told to leave Riom.

In recent weeks there have been many accusations that foregin money was responsible to a large extent for France's entry into the war. Some reports have claimed that Russia financed left-wing French newspapers to "push" France into the war during the drawn-out negotiations between Russia and the Allies beginning in April, 1939, and continuing until the month before the outbreak of war.

There also have been unofficial accusations that British money found its way into French hands, particularly in support of Allied aid to Poland which seemed to have been a far more popular cause in England than in France.

A number of French Socialists and political writers who have since fled France were said to have been sympathetic to the British war aims both before and after the Polish campaign and they will be especially investigated by the Supreme Court.

The story behind the French declaration of war is one that has never been told. It concerns Britain's rejection of eleventh-hour peace appeals by Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Sidelights of the War

Canada Omits Allegiance Oath So Americans Can Enlist in Her Land, Sea and Air Forces

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 7.—An important move to facilitate enlistment in Canada's defense forces by citizens of foreign countries, especially the United States, was announced today by Defense Minister J. L. Ralston.

An order-in-council has been passed under the War Measures Act which will enable men of a foreign country to enlist in Canada's military, naval or air forces without taking the oath of allegiance if by so doing they forfeit their own citizenship. For many months Americans have been desirous of joining the Royal Canadian Air Force but they hesitated when they found they would be required to take the oath of allegiance.

So far as the United States is concerned, any citizen who took a Canadian oath of allegiance would forfeit his United States citizenship automatically, and suffer the additional disadvantage of not acquiring Canadian citizenship automatically.

British Shipping Strength Increased

London, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Ministry of Shipping announced tonight that British shipping strength had been increased by about 10,000,000 deadweight tons as a result of the German invasion of Poland, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands and France.

In gross tonnage, which is approximately five-ninths of the deadweight tonnage, the total would be 5,500,000, or more than one-fourth the empire's prewar shipping gross tonnage of about 21,000,000.

[The German high command announced Tuesday that "enemy merchant shipping space and space useable by the enemy" sunk since the war started totaled 4,986,860 tons—a figure which the British at once challenged as a four-to-one exaggeration.]

Yon Fido May Get Lean, Hungry Look

Amsterdam (via Berlin), Aug. 7 (AP).—Dutch cats and dogs have to get in line with Nazi orders for eating.

A rationing order today said cats must have no more than a kilogram and a half (3 1-3 pounds) of food in August. Dogs are allowed from 3 to 12 kilograms, depending on size.

Titled Englishwoman Captures Nazi Flier

London, Aug. 7 (AP).—A titled Englishwoman, Lady Buckland, and her chauffeur today captured a Nazi aviator who had been roaming England nine days. They came upon the airman as they motored along a country road near Bristol.

Noting is unusual appearance, they questioned him and then marched him off to the authorities.

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 7.—The Pope today urged the abandonment of propaganda campaigns fostering hatred among foreign nations in a speech he delivered to about 1,000 people at the weekly audience in the Vatican.

It was clear that the pontiff's words were especially addressed to the belligerent countries. He deplored the lies which he said are appearing daily in a "certain press," and appealed to journalists and writers in general to show a greater sense of responsibility toward their readers.

"Would God," he said, "that history recorded no war provoked by and ably spread lie. . . A literature based on falsehoods may become just as deadly as armored cars and bombing aircraft.

Duce Doesn't Like Garbo Fashions

Rome, August 7 (AP).—Italian women who wear trousers and big sun glasses were upbraided today by Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia.

They were accused of aping American movie stars; of wearing costumes which not only were in bad taste but sacrificed the wearers' femininity.

cially to be pursuing a strategy of "active defense," and one spokesman asserted that Italy's African colonies would be held "just where we want them."

The expected attack from Libya was characterized as reflecting the "desperation" of Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, to achieve a victory to offset British successes in smashing at Libya's air and naval bases and, Britons said, wrecking water pipelines and supply concentrations.

Thirst, Heat British Allies

Graziani, they added, must face not alone the British regulars—seasoned troops with long experience in Africa—but two great natural allies: thirst and intense heat. Between the Italian positions and the British Egyptian base at Mersa Matrun, on the Mediterranean, there is a shimmering, waterless stretch of almost 400 miles.

Should the Italians break through the British outposts, they would still face a long march across the desert and, said a British source, because of heavy British air bombing they would have little hope of more supplies or of keeping contact with the rear base.

The British naval blockade of Libya has prevented supply ships from getting through from Italy, British sources said.

Sues is the Key

"In explaining that Britain's "active defense strategy presently meets our ends best," one informant put it this way:

"By taking the offensive, the Italians are losing both men and materials—none of which can be replaced. Every shot fired by the enemy, every plane lost, brings the day closer when Mussolini's African Empire must crumble. For the British Navy's control of Suez makes it impossible for ships to bring fresh aid."

The Italian drive into British Somaliland apparently is designed primarily to remove that potential source of a British attack against Italian Somaliland, Eritrea and Ethiopia. The capture of British Somaliland would give the Italians a valuable strip of coastline as a base for attacks on Aden.

$25,000 Fire Sweeps School in Virginia

Lawrenceville, Va., Aug 7 (AP).—Fire damaged Maurice Hall at St. Paul's Normal and Industrial School for Negroes here yesterday, burning through two floors of the five-story structure.

A. H. Turner, business manager, estimated damage to the building at $20,000 and loss in equipment at $5,000.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, AUGUST 8, 1940

Capial News In Brief

Jumbina Falls at Zoo As Newcomers Arrive

Those who take their political symbols seriously may regard this as an omen.

An elephant took a fall yesterday.

It happened at the Zoo. Cavorting in her outside inclosure, Jumbina, the big African, got excited when a work truck drove past and she skittered too close to the moat, her 4-ton frame toppling over the 3-foot drop.

After two hours of head scratching, attendants got Jumbina out by dumping a load of dirt into the moat and leveling it off so that a sort of ramp was formed. The elephant walked out with only a bruised skin and a broken toenail to show for her experience.

The incident distracted somewhat from keepers' activities yesterday in uncrating and placing on exhibition the animals brought from Liberia by the Smithsonian-Firestone expedition, led by Zoo Director William M. Mann, which disembarked at Norfolk Tuesday.

Meantime, Dr. Mann, suffering from the recurrence of an old malarial infection, entered Naval Hospital to recuperate.

Pigeon Falls Dead At Watchman's Feet

William I. Howard, watchman at Harvard Village, yesterday asked The Post to help locate the owner of a homing pigeon which fell dead almost at his feet.

A band on the bird's leg bore the following identification: AU39H736.

"It tumbled down from a tree on Ontario road, near the apartment house where I work," Howard said. Harvard Village is at Eighteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

2 From Here Win Dancing Prizes

Two Washingtonians took first prize with their exhibition polka at the opening of the fifty-seventh convention of the Dancing Masters of America, being held in Pittsburgh, it was announced yesterday.

The winners are Mrs. Julius Richards, of 3813 Veazey street northwest, and Leroy Thayer, jr., of 6425 Barnaby street northwest. Young Thayer is the 15-year-old son of the association's president.

More than 300 dancing instructors are participating in the session, which will continue through tomorrow. Thayer, serving his second term as president, is a candidate for reelection.

Water Heater Explodes At Clinic, 3 Burned

Three men were burned slightly yesterday when a gas hot water heater exploded at the Child Health Clinic, 16 D street northwest.

The injured, all employes of the District Health Department, received first aid on the scene. They are Sanford Witnowski, 21, of 423 Ingraham street northwest; Herbert Thompson, colored, 21, 1105 Ninth street northwest, and Alphus Hughes, colored, 28, 1531 S street northwest.

Man Gets Year in Theft Of Legislator's Pistols

Four charges of petit larceny, including the theft of two target pistols from the automobile of Representative Charles I. Faddis, (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, netted Stanley M. Shirley, 26, of 932 I street northwest, a year in jail yesterday.

Shirley pleaded guilty when he appeared before Police Court Judge John P. McMahon. Besides the pistols, he was accused of stealing cameras from three other automobiles.

"This is a mean, vicious form of thievery, young man," Judge McMahon told the defendant. "I am going to give you 90 days in each case."

New York Holds Man For D. C. Holdup Attempt

A 22-year-old man, sought by Washington police for the attempted holdup July 13 of Gerhard Eck's shoe store at 442 Ninth street northwest, was held in New York yesterday for District authorities.

His alleged companion in the unsuccessful holdup was captured by Washington police after an automobile chase in which several shots were fired on the night of the attempt.

The robbery was foiled when Eck hurled one of the men over a stool and snatched a pistol from the other.

Beer Drinker Robs Waitress of $20

After drinking beer in a restaurant for almost an hour, a young white man threatened a waitress by holding his hand as if he had a gun and forced her to surrender $20 from a cash register.

The robbery occurred at 22 F street northwest, shortly afternoon. The waitress, Mrs. Kennely Plummer, told police she had served the man several times and that when she approached his table, he told her to get him the money. He ran from the place and hailed a taxicab.

Police Stop Clash Between Boy Gangs

A dozen policemen, arriving in scout cars and on motorcycles, last night stopped a clash between gangs of white and colored boys at Randolph place and North Capitol street.

Both gangs appeared in the neighborhood at about 10 p. m., residents said. The colored youths were on foot, the white youths crammed into four or five open cars.

Rocks were hurled and bottles thrown. It could not be determined whether anyone was injured. At the sound of police sirens the youths vanished.

Conflicting stories of the origin of the battle were told by residents and the white youths who reassembled when police left.

One report was that a colored youth, beaten by a group of white boys, returned with 50 friends to seek his assailant. The other report was that a white youth, beaten by colored boys, assembled his gang for revenge.

Truce Sends 10,000 Idle Back to Jobs

Employes of Six Brickyards Agree To Work While Union Negotiates

Ten thousand construction workers in the Washington area will march back to their jobs today in the wake of an armistice halting hostilities in the brickyard strike.

More than 40 Government and private projects, valued at $25,000,000, will hum again after a week of ensued idleness that for a time tied up work on the National Defense Commission's new home in the Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board buildings.

A battalion of the Nation's outstanding labor mediators, spurred on by Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillmann, brought about the truce yesterday in a final three-hour conference.

Pickets to Be Withdrawn

Under its terms 500 laborers in six brick plants in the Washington area will return to work while resuming negotiations with the operators over wages, hours and union recognition. Picket lines at all construction jobs, which kept out more than 9,000 laborers and skilled workmen, will be withdrawn.

Meanwhile, The Post learned that Assistant Secretary of Labor Dan W. Tracy had intervened personally in an effort to settle an A. F. L. jurisdictional dispute between plasterers and carpenters that is slowing work on the Social Security Building.

Tracy, former president of the A. F. L.'s Electrical Workers Union, and John P. Coyne, president of the A. F. L. building trades department, conferred at length yesterday with Hillman. Long-distance telephone conversations were also held with William L. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters' International Union, in Indianapolis.

Asked whether a settlement may be expected today, Tracy said:

"I feel that way, and I certainly hope so."

He said he would hold informal discussions today with representatives of the plasters' international.

The plasterers and carpenters are battling over the installation of 750,000 feet of acoustical tile at the Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board buildings. Coyne handed down a decision last week giving the work to the carpenters.

More than 300 plasterers and cement finishers struck Friday in protest. Yesterday they were still on strike, but 2,000 other workers continued in their jobs.

Since every day of the plasterers' strike will delay completion of the defense buildings that much longer, Tracy said he will seek today to get the men back to work while the negotiations continue.

The crack crew of labor mediators that brought about the brickyard truce included one of Hillman's special representatives, Joseph Keenan, former president of the Chicago Building Trades Council. Another member of the group was Duncan Campbell, Federal Works Agency labor relations expert, who was lent to the Labor Department by Administrator John Carmody.

A large section of the Labor Department's Conciliation Service, headed by Director John R. Steelman, was also engaged actively in the week's negotiations.

The brick plants affected by the strike included the West Brothers Brick Co., the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., the United Clay Products Co., the Woodridge Clay Products Co., the Hudson Supply & Equipment Co., and the Washington Brick Co.

Nearly ten Government construction jobs were involved, including work at the Navy Yard, the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., the Virginia Public Service Co., at Alexandria, the District National Guard Armory and housing projects in the vicinity of Navy place southeast, and Fort Dupont.

President of Union And Wife Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Orville P. Clark were guests last night at a party given by Local No. 7, of the Postoffice Mechanics Union. Clark is national president.

The party was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Estes, 1743 Lang place northeast, following the regular business meeting of the union. Clark is here from Minneapolis on union business.

Senate Group Subpenas 2 Capital Men

By the Associated Press

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee issued subpenas for two Washington men yesterday after an attorney for the Radio Corporation of America testified he paid them $1,250 apeice for their "nuisance value."

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, announced that Levin Handy and Wyland Shaffer, described by a witness as "real estate" brokers, would be summoned today.

Robert D. O'Collaghan, New York, was the R. C. A. attorney who said he had paid $1,250 to each of the men. He testified that they "claimed they introduced us to a good lawyer" who in turn introduced O'Collaghan and David Sarnoff, R. C. A. president, to former Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, at Concord, N. H., the "good lawyer," he said, was Roger Whiteford, of Washington.

Recommends Hastings

Later, O'Collaghan said, Moses recommended the R. C. A. employ the law firm of Daniel O. Hastings, former Delaware senator, to obtain postponement of an anti-trust suit, filed at Wilmington, Del., in 1932 against R. C. A., General Electric, Westinghouse and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in 1932.

"That sounds pretty fishy," Wheeler declared. "What would a couple of real estate brokers have to do with settling a court case in Delaware?"

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, who had requested that Sarnoff and R. C. A. officials be summoned, declared that Hastings and Moses had been paid about $8,000 each by R. C. A.

Sarnoff testified that Moses' services were in connection with an investigation of radio and investment conditions in Europe.

O'Collaghan said the Hastings law firm was employed about "a week or ten days" on the case.

Explains Visit

Sarnoff asserted that he saw "no impropriety in consulting or seeking advice from Senators and Representatives on a public matter which had been discussed on the Senate floor."

The purpose of a visit he made to Moses, Sarnoff said, was to present R. C. A.'s side of the case and to "outline a complicated situation." This involved, he added, an oral agreement between the various companies named in the Government suit just before the case was to be called.

Sarnoff said he wanted time enough to get the agreement straightened out before continuing with the case.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

National Symphony Orchestra collaborates with Daltry Opera Company in presenting Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "Trial By Jury" at the Potomac Watergate Wednesday night, under the director of Joseph S. Daltry. Cast of characters:

A crescent moon glowed above the quarter-deck of H. M. S. Pinafore anchored last evening not in Portsmouth Harbor, where Gilbert and Sullivan had ordered it, but at the Potomac Watergate, where the National Symphony Orchestra and the Daltry Opera Company were in command of the officers and crew. One of the largest audiences of the summer season, comfortably ensconced along the terrace, enjoyed the well-remembered melodies of the music and the quips of the text with never a care for a shower in the offing. Degrees of temparature and a percentage of humidity were forgotten on a night as pleasant as though it had been guaranteed for the occasion.

Although records are not available for all the performances of "Pinafore," it is safe to say that this was one of the few times, if not the only time, when the operetta was staged on the water. The choice was a happy one on the part of the collaborating managements, for the natural setting gave verisimilitude to the nautical ways of the plot. The crowd on the shore and the flanking flotillas of canoes assisted in the illusion that Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., was being hailed by the populace on his visit of inspection.

Joseph Daltry's youthful company of singers romped through a jolly performance without a dull or laggard moment in it, and romping is not to be taken as a derogatory verb in this instance. It indicates, rather, the indefatigable vim and the unremitting zest of principles and chorus, who made their disciplined routine appear a spontaneous pastime. One of the best parts of their training was the crispness of their diction which slurred over none of lines and made every verbal intricacy clear. That was no small feat in itself, for Gilbert delighted in combinations of syllables difficult to articulate in singing.

Frank Kierman, as the pompous First Lord of the Admiralty, is an expert in Gilbertian patter and a comedian of no mean talent. It would be inappropriate to an outdoor performance to say that he brought down the house with his antics during the trio in the second act, but it was he alone who was responsible for the demanded repetitions of the final verse.

Dean Gehring as Josephine disclosed one of the best soprano voices in the troupe with a pellucid quality of tone, and she used it with an artistry which the part does not always receive. Catherine Judah was vocally satisfying in an excellent portraiture of Little Buttercup, and Mary Merrill was a piquant Hebe.

Clifford Johnson did full justice to the tenor role of Ralph Rackstraw and was well matched by Leonard Stocker whose barytone voice was pleasantly modulated in the part of Capt. Corcoran. Ernest Eames did a commendable piece of character work as the mock-sinister Dick Deadeye.

Because William S. Gilbert was a satirist with a sure touch upon foibles, his operetta texts have a timeless applicability. "Pinafore" was a topical work in 1879, and in the part of Sir Poseph Porter the finger of ridicule was pointed at W. H. Smith, a newspaper agent who had been appointed first lord of the admiralty.

"Trial by Jury," usually a curtain-raiser, was relegated last night to the position of after-piece. This delightul cantata, crammed with parodies of musical forms from fioratura arias to fugues, was mirthfully handled by Frank Stone as the judge, Derna De Pamphilis as the plaintiff, Joseph Sheckard as the defendant, and Leonard Stocker as counsel for the defense.

Gas Price War Slated, Poage Hears

Congressman Told 3-Cent Cut Due Monday; Dealers Deny Reports

Washington motorists should not be burdened with an unnecessary tax solely for the purpose of narrowing the spread between District, Maryland and Virginia gasoline levy rates, Representative W. R. Poage, chairman of the special House gas tax subcommittee, declared last night.

Poage made the declaration after receiving reports of an impending District gasoline price war, denied by local distributors and dealers, and following a storm of protest by organized motorists and civic groups against a bill sponsored by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, to increase gas tax here from 2 to 3 cents a gallon.

At the close of the second day of hearings yesterday an Arlington County dealer informed Poage that District gasoline prices are to be slashed 3 cents a gallon, effective Monday. Such a move would signal a price war here, but no distributor or retailer reached by The Post last night was able to confirm the report.

Deny Slash Is Planned

Several dealers pointed out that some Washington stations are advertising a 2- and 3-cent discount, but all denied that a general price reduction is impending.

Emphasizing that he was speaking personally and not for his subcommittee, Poage declared that the necessity for the tax increase should be determined by the need for District street and highway construction and improvement.

He added the fact that the Maryland State tax is 2 cents and the Virginia rate 3 cents above the District could not be entirely eliminated in consideration of the bill, but that Washington needs should be the primary factor.

The chairman's views were developed following testimony of Luther C. Steward, chairman of the advisory board of the Keystone Automobile Club.

At the hearing, Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, explained the District's relatively low gasoline tax by pointing out that States have highway systems "ten times" larger than Washington.

"The District should not be taxed beyond its needs just to satisfy a special group in Maryland and Virginia," Nichols declared.

Says Question Obscured

Steward, referring to a statement of a previous witness, complained that the gas tax question was being obscured by an inclination to discuss the whole problem of the District's fiscal relations with the Federal Government.

"I think," said Steward, "that the subject should be considered solely on the merits of this bill which is a measure to increase the gas tax here."

"I think so, too," replied Poage, "but I can't agree with you that we can assume there is no need for higher gasoline taxes and that we have no right to make an investigation."

Steward joined Washington & Cleveland, manager of the District division of the American Automobile Association, in protesting the increase and the suggestion of some proponents that a higher tax should be diverted for other than highway purposes. Both witnesses reported difficulty in comprehending "sources" for agitation for the measure.

Recalls Petition

Cleveland pointed out "what appears to be unusual circumstances in connection with the holding of this hearing." He testified that a petitioned signed by 30,000 Washington motorists had defeated a simlar proposal in 1937 and pointed out that at least twice this session the District Committee has refused to report favorably on the present bill.

"This hearing presents a unique and extraordinary, although I would not say illegal, parliamentary situation," Cleveland declared. "A special committee has been appointed not to consider the bill itself, because action on the bill has been withheld for this session by the full committee, but to consider the subject of increasing the District gasoline tax."

Cleveland declared that when he had asked for legislation to have the personal property tax apply only to automobiles registered in the District on the date the tax is assessed, he was advised there was no chance for any bill during the remainder of the session.

Twenty-three civic organizations were listed by Cleveland as opposed to the bill.

Wives of Two Diplomats Now U. S. Citizens

Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, Mrs. Elvin Seibert Swear Allegiance

Mrs. Edgar L. G. Prochnik, wife of the former Austrian Minister to the United States, is one of America's new citizens.

MRS. SEIBERT

So is Mrs. Elvin Seibert, daughter of Baron Johan Beck-Friis, former Counselor of the Swedish Legation here.

But being an American, it seems, is hardly novel to either.

Mrs. Prochnik was born in Boston but lost her citizenship by marrying the Austrian diplomat in 1915, under a law then in effect.

And Mrs. Seibert, though a Swedish subject, spent such a large part of her time in Washington that "I already felt like an American," she said last night.

However, said the former Baroness Christina Beck-Friis, "I am frightfully glad it is now official."

Mme. Prochnik

Her remarks were relayed over the telephone by her husband, a secretary of the United States Legation in Bangkok, Thailand (Siam), who is assigned to duty at the State Department here for the summer. Mrs. Seibert was feeding the baby, their younger son, Anthony.

The Seiberts were married in 1936 in Shanghai, where he was vice consul and her father was Swedish Minister to China. Seibert was the first American diplomat to marry a foreign subject after the State Department had adopted a rule forbidding such marriages by its employes without permission. Seibert gained permission with little ado.

Mrs. Seibert, while her father was here, attended Western High School and made her debut. Despite her American education she "boned hard" for the naturalization exam, she said.

Mrs. Prochnik disclosed on the other hand, that she did little studying for the test. Asked if her husband was considering taking out citizenship papers, she said his plans were "unsettled." Minister Prochnik became a "man without a country" when the Austrian Legation was closed after Germany annexed his homeland. Now a lecturer at Georgetown University, he is also writing a book on diplomacy.

With 62 other aliens who became Americans at the same time, both Mrs. Prochnik and Mrs. Seibert swore allegiance to the United States Tuesday in District Court here.

32 States Trail D. C. in Income Tax Payments

The District poured $9,696,000 in Federal income taxes into the Treasury last year, more than did 32 States, according to figures released yesterday.

Issuing a series of tables on income for the calendar year, 1938, and on which taxes were paid in 1939, the Treasury Department revealed that a grand total of 6,303,890 returns were filed by the States and Territories. Of this number, 114,445 were filed in or from the District, of which 113,869 showed a net income of $321,128,000.

In addition, there were 576 local returns reporting no net incomes but, rather, an aggregate deficit of $1,829,000.

Maryland individuals and business firms filed 137,104 returns and paid $15,225,000 in income taxes. Virginia had 73,522 returns and paid $7,829,000. The net incomes on which these taxes were paid were $423,888,000 and $228,428,000, respectively.

For the country as a whole, a total of $765,887,000 was paid in income taxes on net incomes aggregating $18,897,374,000.

Three persons were revealed to be in the "$5,000,000 and over" income class, but their identities were not divulged. This trio had a combined net income of $21,804,000 in 1938 and paid $6,664,000 income taxes.

Fifty-seven individuals, including the three cited above, were in the "$1,000,000 and over" income class, of whom 30 fell in the $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 bracket.

Banquet to Open Legion Auxiliary Convention Here

The fifteenth annual convention of the District Department, American Legion Auxiliary, will open with a banquet in the Mayflower Hotel tonight at 7 in honor of Mrs. Helen Lee Gilbert, national vice president for the eastern division.

Speakers at the banquet will include Mrs. Gilbert and John Blaine Fitzgerald, national vice commander, American Legion; William H. Hargraves, department commander, and Mrs. Mary B. McMillin, department auxiliary president.

The business session of the convention will be held tomorrow evening at the Department of Commerce Auditorium. National Vice Commander Fitzgerald will be principal speaker. Presentation of trophies and awards will be made.

Dr. Willis Wins Sweepstakes Honors In Takoma Club's Gladiolus Show

Havre de Grace Man Takes 7 Blue Ribbons And Gets Certificate

Capturing seven blue ribbons, the best flower in the show, and the certificate of recognition, Dr. G. A. Willis, of Havre de Grace, Md., won the sweepstakes at the twentieth annual gladiolus show of the Takoma Horticultural Club, which opened last night at the Public Library, Fifth and Cedar streets northwest.

A ripple-edged "New Era" in deep pink exhibited by Dr. Willis was adjudged the best bloom. Honors for the second best bloom in the show also went to Dr. Willis for his exhibit of a salmon colored "Picardy." Lawrence L. Powers, 214 Colesville road, Hyattsville, Md., took the ribbon for the third best spike with a mauve "Sahara" which scored first in the smoky class.

All but two of the 27 exhibitors went home with either a red, white, or blue ribbon, the first time, according to the committee that practically every person was given an award. Nearly all the exhibitors were nonmembers from far in Maryland and Virginia. I. Lee Amann, 2032 Belmont road northwest, exhibiting for the first time, took first, second and third awards in various classes.

Maj. Merle H. Davis, U. S. A., judged all the classes. Clarence W. Moore was chairman.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Season Summery Rates Brief Summary

Capital's Hot-Weather Diversions Hit New High; Producer Jules Levey Plans Peek at His Film; This, That and the Other About the Theater

IT SEEMS ABOUT TIME to remark that by virtue of splendid attractions, scrupulous management and a genuine desire to serve the public, Washington's strictly hot-weather amusements are compiling one of their banner years.

BELL

Take Glen Echo Park, for example—as almost everybody does. Despite a laggard spring and a long stretch of unseasonably chilly and rainy weather, this "miniature world's fair" that has served so long and so honorably as one of the Capital's favorite amusement centers, under the guidance of Leonard B. Schloss, is piling up a record attendance now that summer really has become summer. That Crystal Pool, all those refreshing and thrilling rides, the excellent restaurants and picnic groves and everything else that goes to make up the 40 acres of fun are "piling 'em in" these days.

The same thing is true of the Wilson Line's new streamlined excursion boat, the S. S. Mount Vernon. Already the Mount Vernon has surpassed every earlier season's record for the number of organization outings it has accommodated amid surroundings that are the last gasp in luxurious short-cruising—church, commercial, social, political, school and other groups have scrambled for dates on this sumptuous steamer—to the great glee of Manager Harry Baker, who doesn't number this achievement among any of his sleight-of-hand tricks. Just a matter of superlative service, says he.

Among the al fresco theaters, the National Sylvan and that other Mount Vernon, the automobile, drive-in skydrome, have done very nicely, too.

If the casual resident would just stop to think about it—and apparently most of them do—he would discover that there is more in the way of wholesome fun available in and about the District in the summertime than in the winter. Maybe not quite so easy to reach, all of it, but there it is.

And in its enthusiasm over its own haymow playhouses, there is another thing that Washington may have overlooked. That is that the Hilltop Theater, over Baltimore way, is going great guns in its third season of amateur theatricals—or are they semi-professional? At any rate, the Hilltop is in the midst of the second week of the greatest hit in its history. Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" is the bill and a Twentieth Century-Fox talent scout has described the production and performance as the best of its kind he ever has encountered in a lifetime of swooping around. Something was said here a few days ago about Rita Swann, Baltimore critic, being knee-deep in this enterprise. That was because her son, Don, jr., founder of the group, is doubling his managerial duties with the Frank Craven role, and her daughter, Lyn, is playing the role she understudied on Broadway last season. The outfit is so good that it has stepped out and joined the Actors Equity Association. So there.

It may not be today and it may not be tomorrow, but sometime during the run of "The Boys From Syracuse," opening this morning on the screen at RKO-Keith's, Producer Jules Levey will pop into town just to check the reaction of his old pals to his maiden effort in a new field. In a former incarnation, Jules was a local fixture, wheedling large sums of money out of the motion picture exhibitors for the films it was his job to peddle. It would not be surprising if Meyer Davis, the orchestra tycoon, tagged along with him, since they are a modern Damon and Pythias.

I haven't the remotest idea whose monkey wrench it was, or who heaved it, but Meyer Davis missed being a summertime theatrical impresario in these environs by no more than an eyelash. A long-distance phone call one early morning informed me that the thing practically was "in the bag." But that summer theater out Georgia avenue way didn't operate this year, so the bag must have gone boom, or got wet, or something.

Bob Holben, first sax in Paul Kain's Orchestra, out in the Spanish Garden Ballroom at Glen Echo Park, on July 28 married Dorothea Bowers, it now leaks out. Mrs. Holben is a sister of the well-known songstress, "Penny" Ford, and the only member of her family who is not actively musical. Conglomerations is what Frank Orth and I always say!

And if you care to go back as far as that RKO-Keith item, you may add that Ginger Rogers and Ronald Colman, appearing together for the first time on the screen, will follow "The Boys From Syracuse" on Fifteenth street, in something called "Lucky Partners."

Also, when the UFWA presents that "Thunder Over Mexico," in Pierce Hall tomorrow night, Charlie Chaplin in a revival of "Easy Street" will be on the same bill.

Times-Being-What-They-Are Note

How do you mean, "Easy Street?"

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Aug. 7.

When Hollywood actors finish their nightly prayers, they wind up with "And God bless Frank Capra—and please don't let anything happen to him." For he's our super-star-maker. In each picture, he'll pick an actor or actress, who's always been good, mind you, but never had a whack at a star part before. Such a one is Jimmy Gleason. I watched him do a scene the other day in "Meet John Doe" that will tear at your heart-strings. He's just a drunken bum, telling the story of his life to Gary Cooper, and says, "I like you, because you're gentle." With another gulp of whisky, he goes on, "But I'm hard, see?" Then tells what made him that way.

HOPPER

"But you know something? I'm a sucker for 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'" And Capra got in as neat a bit of Americanism as you'll meet up with in many a day, interspersed with lots of laughs so simple that it's a wonder to me other people haven't thought of them. And when the picture's finished, every studio in town will be begging for the services of Jimmy Gleason.

You thought we were kidding when Ann Sheridan was picked as the favorite of the Truck Drivers' Association because of her performance in "They Drive By Night." Well, the laugh's on someone—maybe Annie—because a 15-ton truck arrives today for her from Kansas City. It's about half a block long, and Annie's going to give a cocktail party in it. It will be moored beside the theater showing the picture. Which may have a faint flavor of publicity—but who cares? It's another party.

Because the Fred Allens wanted to live here as they do back East—quietly—Mrs. Fred (Portland) has let it be known that she was out of town, so when they turned down those dinner invitations, which are mountainous, there would be no hard feelings . . . Director Preston Sturges practically bought out the whole edition of that magazine which gave "Boom Town" double space—but its picture of merit for the month was "The Great McGinty."

For a year Donald Crisp has been getting his boat ready with new gadgets, radio equipment, and had studio permission to take that Alaskan vacation. He was all set to sail when his English friends descended upon him and said, "You've got to stay and be in the picture we're going to make for British Relief or we'll consider it unpatriotic." No definite plans have been made—story isn't ready, and they have no releasing date. Yet Crisp has postponed his vacation which he's planned, dreamed, and worked over for a year.

What an opening "Tonight at 8:30" will be at the El Capitan Theater. Can you picture stars like Connie Bennett, Doug, Jr., Reggie Owen, Binnie Barnes, Reggie Gardner, all working in perfect harmony—and for $40 a week? And maybe we'll be lucky enough to have Noel Coward in attendance. Our Hollywood stars should really do themselves proud, because they are the people Noel has written about.

Wins Chance the Hard Way

By Alexander Kahn

Hollywood, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Ann Edmonds is a girl with a determined chin—a pretty chin, it's true—but one she holds high, even after taking a few punches from life.

Perhaps that ability to make the best of it is the reason why Ann today, at the age of 21, is under contract to a movie studio and may some day be a film star.

She wasn't handed a movie contract because of her beauty and talent. She had to fight her way up, learn to act, and then convince Hollywood she had the ability if given a chance.

"Three years ago," Ann said as we sat in the Warner Bros. cafe, "I was working in Santa Rosa as a domestic, taking care of children and doing housework. I had been doing that for several years while my mother worked in Truckee, Calif.

"Like so many girls my age, I dreamed of being an actress, although acting is a remote field for a girl busy at housework. But one day I read in a movie magazine that Olivia de Havilland and her sister, Joan Fontaine, had received their dramatic training at Saratoga, a town about 100 miles from Santa Rosa, from a Miss Dorothea Johnston, who put on plays at an inn owned by her family.

Hitch-hiked to Opportunity

"I wrote Miss Johnston and to my surprise, a few days later, I received a telephone call to come to Saratoga. I packed my few belongings in a suitcase, wrote a letter to my mother, and started off."

Miss Edmonds hitch-hiked.

"I must have been a sight as I rang the doorbell," she recalled. "I was dusty from riding in all sorts of automobiles and my two braids were tangled and twisted. Miss Johnston seemed to gasp, inwardly, and then she smiled. I knew I had won when she smiled. For she invited me in and asked me all about myself.

"I didn't know how to wait on tables, but I did know how to make beds and sweep. So I became a chambermaid at the inn while I studied acting. Later I was promoted to washing dishes, great stacks of them, and eventually to waiting on tables.

"The big play of the summer had already been cast when I arrived, but Miss Johnston let me do a walk-on part. It was the greatest thrill of my life and seemed to make everything worthwhile."

Miss Edmonds spent three years at the inn with Miss Johnston, attending high school in nearby Los Gatos, working and studying drama.

"At last Miss Johnston decided I knew the fundamentals of acting and was ready to try my ability outside the walls of the inn. So she wrote a friend who was a Hollywood agent. He came up, saw me act in a play last spring and said if I came to Hollywood he would try to arrange a screen test.

"I didn't have any money. Miss Johnston printed a special program for our next show with a note that any money raised from the sale of the program would go to send me to Hollywood. We raised $100 that way."

And now she is working a few hours every day with the studio dramatics coach and already has played her first bit part in "City for Conquest." The studio gradually intends to give her larger parts and if she wins public favor, the name of Ann Edmonds may be in electric lights.

Louella O. Parsons'

Hollywood, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—I hate to say, "I told you so," but Darryl Zanuck is making all arrangements to produce "Tobacco Road," Jack Kirkland's realistic play of an ignorant backwoods family. At the time I printed that Darryl had bought the Kirkland play and paid a godly sum, there were denials to the right and left. Among the rumors was one that Charles Laughton would play Jeeter Lester. I knew well this couldn't be true, for Charlie's English accent does not belong to the American Jeeter.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Just as "Grapes of Wrath" called for careful editing and elimination of censorable portions, so will "Tobacco Road" be treated to a bath.

Chatter in Hollywood: I always took with a grain of salt the rumors that Ginger Rogers and Howard Hughes were contemplating a trip to the altar. Neither Ginger nor Howard ever confirmed the report that both of them seemed annoyed at the continued gossip that they expected to wed when her divorce from Lew Ayres became final. Obviously, the whole thing is a lot of hooey, for Ginger has been seen night after night in company with Oren Magland, Priscilla Lane's ex, while Howard is keeping engagements with Ruth Perry, a talented young actress.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: You may expect to hear any moment now that Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier are one; Eddie Buzzell and Jane Frazee are pricing wedding rings. That will make Eddie and Norman Krasna brothers-in-law; Liz Whitney and Victor Mature didn't miss a dance at Ciro's; really looks serious. Billy Rose in town to seek talent, having dinner at the Derby with Sid Grauman; Simone Simon really a cutie, with Jean Negulesco, whose accent is just about as thick as hers; Helen Vinson seems to get around these pleasant evenings. Saw her at a table for two at Ciro's with Louis Shurr.

Mrs. Clarance Lindner, the proudest grandmother in captivity, at Ciro's with a party of friends and her husband, publisher of the San Francisco Examiner; Lana Turner is dieting like mad to lose the eleven pounds she gained in Honolulu; Don Barry, hero of "Red Ryder," at Republic, and Peggy Stewart have set the date in September; Dolores Del Rio picks Orson Welles up at the studio every day to see that he gets home safely.

'Tis rumored that Edwin Marin and Ann Morriss will trip to the altar when his divorce becomes final in October; Lili Damita is reading two playz sent her by the Theater Guild and if she can win Errol's permission she'll appear in one of them; Hal Wallis so elated he telephoned the boys at the studio that he caught a 250-lb. Marlin. Day before he bagged a 201-pounder.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

New Screen Plays, Summer Drama and The Open on Tap

"THE BOYS FROM SYRACUSE." This morning the film version of the Broadway musical comedy, for which Rogers and Hart wrote one of their most appealing scores, will open at RKO-Keith's Theater. Allan Jones, Joe Penner, Martha Raye, Rosemary Lane, Irene Hervey, Charles Butterworth, Alan Mowbray, Eric Blore and Samuel S. Hinds are the leading players in this twice-removed adaptation of Shakespeare's "A Comedy of Errors," that tale of two pairs of twins in the warring Greek cities of Syracuse and Ephesus. The score, which introduces two new numbers as well as the original tunes, includes "Sing for Your Supper" and "This Can't Be Love." The "March of Time's" discussion on the Dutch East Indies, "Spoils of Conquest," is the leading short subject.

Capitol

"THE GREAT McGINTY." Brian Donlevy is the star of this new comedy written and directed by Preston Sturges, telling the story of the crook whose one honest deed was his downfall and of the honest man whose only crime became his Waterloo. The Governor of a great State, a tropical bartender, his gruff boss and an honest wife are some of the characters. Akim Tamiroff and Muriel Angelus have the other leads. Cinda Glenn, spoofer of stuffed shirts, is the Capitol's stage headliner for the coming week, sharing the spotlight with the Bricklayers, Comic Bert Nagle, Jimmy Edmunston and the Rhythm Rockets. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT." George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart and Ida Lupino are the central figures in this comedy-drama of truck-driving and its little-known thrills. Roscoe Karns, Gale Page, Joyce Compton, Henry O'Neill, George Tobias and John Litel are featured. Red Skelton, whose arrival in Hollywood has been set back a week, spends his final seven days in the East as headliner of the Earle's stage for second week. He promises an all-new collection of gags. Rita and Ed Oehman, Tommy Trent and Lalage join the Roxyettes in the supporting assignments. Opens tomorrow morning.

Palace

"PRIDE AND PREJUDICE." With Laurence Olivier and Greer Garson in the pivotal roles, this screen adaptation of the Jane Austen continues into a second week on F street with Edna May Oliver, Mary Boland, Edmund Gwenn, Maureen O'Sullivan and Melville Cooper in the oter leads. Aldous Huxley and Jane Murfin wrote the screen play from Helen Jerome's dramatization.

Metropolitan

"ALL THIS AND HEAVEN TOO." Bette Davis and Charles Boyer return in this screen version of the Rachel Field book which has just completed a record-breaking three weeks at the Earle. Jeffrey Lynn, Barbara O'Neil, Virginia Weidler, Helen Westley, Walter Hampden, Henry Daniell, June Lockhart and Harry Davenport are in the supporting company. Opens tomorrow morning.

Columbia

"MARYLAND." The climax of this Technicolor horse story was filmed last spring at the running of the Maryland Hunt. Fay Bainter, Walter Brennan, John Payne, Brenda Joyce, Hattie McDaniel, Charlie Ruggles ad Marjorie Weaver are in the cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Trans-Lux

"CURACAO." The nearby Dutch colony is the subject of this Technicolor travelogue, central short subject on the new bill for the newsreel house. "Stray Lamb," the story of a St. Bernard dog; "Silent Wings," a sports short on gliding, and "Officer Duck," a Disney cartoon, are the others. Opens tomorrow morning.

Willard Roof

"THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16TH." Drawing its jury panel directly from its audience, this courtroom drama by Ayn Rand continues its Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening engagement on the top floor of the Willard Hotel. Curtain is at 9. The cast includes Maxine Mitchell, John Van Sikken, Frances Brunt, Morris Arkin, Elinor Evans, Maurice Jarvis, Robert T. Miller and Thomas M. Cahill.

Cross Roads

"WHAT A LIFE!" This comedy, in which the now famous Henry Aldrich made his first appearance, will open a two-week engagement at the Virginia barn theater Monday evening with Gordon Gray, who scored recently in "The Skull," as the sorely-tried high school student. Phyllis Warner, Bill Draper and Sidney Bassler are some of the other Cross Roaders involved. Noel Coward's marital comedy, "Fallen Angels," with Catharine Ryan and Elizabeth Ryan in the leads, continues through this Saturday evening.

Roadside

"MURDER IN THE RED BARN." The players on the Rockville pike are currently offering the greatest success of their seven seasons, this being the fourth distinct revival of the old melodrama. Eugene Kressin, Betty Gray, Norman Rose, Betty Brunstetter, Lois Alexander and Ken Banghart are in the cast. "She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured" is the entr'acte.

Sylvan

"MIS' NELLEY of N'ORLEANS." Lourence Eyre's celebrated comedy, which was one of Mrs. Fiske's most lively vehicles of a generation ago, will be revived Tuesday evening at the Sylvan by the Players Club of Central Community Center. A concert at 7:30 p. m. by the Washington Garlight Co. Employes Band precedes the play.

Open-Air

"HIS GIRL FRIDAY." Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell are the stars of this trunabout version of the Hect-MacArthur newspaper play, "The Front Page." This time the comedy's lead is a girl reporter. Opens a three-night run this evening, sharing the drive-in theater screen with the Ralph Bellamy-Chester Morris film, "Coast Guard."

CRUISES by moonlight and daylight are scheduled by the S. S. Mount Vernon, whose Washington berth is at the Seventh street wharves. Trips down the Potomac to Marshall Hall amusement park with hour-and-a-half stopovers at Mount Vernon sail at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. McWilliams' orchestra plays for dancing on the moonlight trips, sailing every evening except Mondays and Tuesdays at 8:30 p. m. Kiddies' days every Friday and Monday.

University Theater

"MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS." With Frederic Tozere in the starring role, this first local production of the William Saroyan play continues its engagement at the Catholic University Campus Theater tonight and tomorrow evening. It is the summer's final production of the university's speech and drama department.

A Swashbuckler and His Love

[Leonard Lyons, regular conductor of this column, is vacationing.]

BEING THROWN into the "Lyons" den even for one column is probably an experience I'll never forget. At the risk of being called a copycat I'm going to try to pattern these pieces on the style of your accustomed Broadway Medley. An already prepared formula is so much safer to carry out than a new venture in type.

MOVIES: On the set of "They Knew What They Wanted," I was watching Carole Lombard and Frank Fay shooting a long, hard scene. Just before calling "Camera!" Garson Kanin leaned over to me and whispered, "If Fay gets through this scene without a mistake it's a miracle. If he doesn't watch how he alibis out of it." Sure enough Fay forgot the lines and in that innocent, naive manner of his, he turned to Gar and said, "Hey, boss, are you sure you want me in this picture?"

RADIO: Jack Miller, who conducts and composes the original music for the Aldrich family and the Kate Smith show, noticed that someone had carved this inscription in his leaders' stand, "Jewel Loves Gary." He showed it to Author Clifford Goldsmith, whose only comment was "I guess it came off the tree that way."

THEATER: You always have some weird experiences in these straw hat theater tours such as I'm making now. Weird and amusing, I might add. For instance, Jitterbetty Hutton, during rehearsals of "The Greeks Had a Word For It," was telling me about an open air theater outside of Buffalo. It was near a railroad track and every night during the second act a long freight rumbles by. Or rather, it did until the management was able to adjust starting time so that the train would pass during an intermission.

One week, an actor who was also an author, brought in a play which seemed ideal for the spot. The setting was a railroad depot in a small town. No train sound effects were put in, the management relying on the real thing to supply the vital freight noises necessary in the second act. That night no train! And next day the management got a polite note from the railroad company announcing that the freight's schedule had been changed so that it would pass the theater after the final curtain and hoping they'd be pleased about it!

FAIR NOTE: One of the more amusing attractions on the midway at the New York Flushing Meadows is the concession which has customers throw balls at a target which, when hit, turns a bed over, dumping a girl on the floor. One girl recently resigned. "There are too many dead-eye Dicks," she explained, "and I'm geting calloused in the most ungainly places."

OBIT DEPARTMENT: "Scatterbrain" was killed by an auto a few days ago. His funeral was attended by the entire Frankie Masters orchestra which played the song after which he was named. The pooch was picked up by Masters right after he composed the tune and was considered by the band as good luck. Since they adopted him they got numerous hotel and radio engagements.

SPORTS: The other night at the Red Cross Benefit Game at Ruppert Field in Newark three attendants were trying in vain to lift a huge wooden drum containing raffle stubs. Jack Dempsey strode over, waved them aside, and by himself raised the tremendous drum into position, and he didn't even get a hand from the 20,000 in the stands. A short circuit had blown all the lights.

HOBBY CORNER: Mine is eating. My favorite is barbecued spare ribs at Harry (Benny's older brother) Goodman's Pick-A-Rib on Fifty-second street. Next is real Southern fried chicken as prepared by Dick Huey, Harlem's only theatrical agent, in his picturesque Aunt Dinah's Kitchen. For steaks in a quaint atmosphere I'm afraid I can be found too often at Billy's on Second avenue, the only gas light bar left in New York. And the only place I know of to get "pop-overs" is the Candlelight in Brooklyn. A fish or seafood tinner finished off with wonderful ice-box cake can be had at Eddie's on Eighth avenue. For Chinese food, which I negotiate very well with chopsticks, even if I say so myself—no one else will—I go to two places. House of Chan uptown, where they speak better English than the Duke of Windsor and Yat Bien Ling in Chinatown, where they don't speak unless made to at the point of an egg roll. Oh, I almost forgot "Mr. G's" wonderful Hotel President Delicatessen, especially the dill pickle. After all this, I have no particular preference as to which drug store sells me bicarb of soda.

Little Revives Grace Moore's Pace-Setter

"One Night of Love" Returns Six Years After Creating Vogue

By Richard L. Coe

Ah, me! Remember the days when young Americans went to Europe instead of to the Metropolitan to study voice? Those were the days so slavishly dramatized in the cycle of musical films begun by Grace Moore's "One Night of Love." Back in 1934 folk went around boasting of tenth and twentieth doses of "One Night of Love" Now, after two years of trying, the Little has managed to locate a print for its widespread, revival-fond public.

So yesterday morning, with a gnawing wonder about how this pace-setter would look to an aging admirer, we had ourself wheeled over to the Little. The music remains exceptional even now, tuneful and unique in its variety, tripping off the sound track clearly. The story, because of the imitative variations which followed, is even more absurd than we had recalled. Miss Moore's windmill 'kerchief and glove arm-waving is comical but not much more so than that of several current cinema canaries. And the fuzzy film is that way because since then studio technicians have improved the grade of film used in our movie-making.

But what drew in 1934 and what will draw in 1940 is the music Miss Moore was so instrumental in making a vogue on the screen. In this first of all the films with a musical background the Tennessee soprano sang the Habenera from Bizet's "Carmen;" Cio-Cio-San's entrance and "Un Bel Di" aria from Puccini's "Madama Butterfly;" the "Sempre Libera" from Verdi's "La Traviata;" Ciri-Biri-Bin" and "The Last Rose of Summer." Styles in acting, in clothing and in plots may change, but these notes do not. And that is why "One Night of Love" was so popular in the first place and always will be. Tullio Carminati, Lyle Talbot and Luis Alberni are the other faces you'll recognize.

"Soldiers With Wings," a timely "March of Time," and an "Our Gang" comedy, "Dad for a Day," are the short subjects.

Contract Bridge

Cecil Head, Yale College Club champion, accomplished six hearts with four trumps against him on today's hand in a duplicate tournament. Cecil, while a model contract player and a pet of duplicate directors, does frequently try their patience with his painfully slow and thoughtful considerations.

Today's Hand

East-West Vulnerable.

SOUTH DEALER.

Opening lead: K ♣.

His concentration is so complete that his adversaries may become restless; the director may call "all change," and the new players may impatiently hover about the table, as the kibitzers, weary with waiting, get up and noisily drag their chairs to another spot; but Cecil remains calm, cool, and his decision is unhurried and usually faultless.

Though today's hand is not difficult, Cecil managed it neatly. North led the king of clubs, which was won by dummy's ace. A low heart picked up South's king with declarer's ace, and a small club to dummy was ruffed. The last losing club was thrown on the diamond ace.

Now the queen and ace of spades were played and when the favorable split was revealed, declarer took the queen of hearts and led the ten, which lost to the jack. The queen of clubs was trumped and declarer won the rest of the tricks in spades and hearts.

Cecil made six hearts, losing one trump trick.

Va. 'Jaycee' Heads Back Conscription

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Virginia State Junior Chamber of Commerce is united in sentiment for the passage of compulsory military training legislation by Congress, B. Powell Harrison, jr., State president, said.

Harrison said all of the 56 officers of the State Junior Chamber had given him their views, unanimously favoring such legislation. The 25 units within the State were said to be planning special meetings this week to formulate plans for a campaign to carry their ideas to Congress.

J. R. Mahoney, Temperance Leader, Dies

Was a Founder Of Antisaloon League; Funeral Tomorrow

John R. Mahoney, a leading national and District temperance leader, died yesterday at Sibley Hospital following a six weeks' illness. He was 94.

Mr. Mahoney was a founder of the Antisaloon League of America, an official in the Rechabites for many years and financial secretary of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants for 33 years. He was also a member of the International Order of Good Templars and served as chief templar.

Born in Indian Territory, now Oklahoma, Mr. Mahoney came to Washington at the age of 12, when the Capital was a city of but 36,000. He early became active in the prohibition movement. It was in his home that a convention of all interested organizations was called in 1895, leading to the formation of the Antisaloon League of America.

In the 1860s Mr. Mahoney served as a policeman here, but later established his own paperhanging business, from which he retired only five years ago. He made his home at 333 C street southeast.

On his birthday three years ago felicitations were sent by President Roosevelt and Mr. Mahoney was feted by the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at the Old Union Engine House. Last night Mr. Mahoney was eulogized at a meeting of the association.

Mr. Mahoney was twice married. He survived both wives, Marion Parker Mahoney and Sadie Hissey Mahoney.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Emily R. Pollock, of Washington; a granddaughter, Mrs. Edyth Gralley, of Baltimore; two grandsons, Robert E. and Charles W. Mahoney; a niece, Mrs. Bertha Davis, and a nephew, William Mahoney, all of this city.

Services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the James T. Ryan funeral home, 317 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, with burial to follow at Congressional Cemetery.

A committee, named by the Oldest Inhabitants to attend the funeral, includes John Clagett Proctor, Christian Heurich, Charles A. Langley, Fred A. Emery, Joseph I. Keefer, John B. Dickman, Elra C. Palmer, Jesse C. Suter, L. E. Bruenlnger, Walter E. Allen, Anthony Denekas, and Dr. Hugh M. Smith.

Silver Spring Red Cross Plans Benefit Show

Mrs. James Wilson, chairman of the American Red Cross War Relief campaign in Silver Spring, Md., announced plans yesterday for a benefit show, which will be given at the Silver Spring Theater, Colesville road, on August 24.

Heart Attack Kills Kearful, FCC Official

Collapses After He Parked His Auto In Back of Offices

John M. Kearful, 58-year-old Farm Credit Administration official, collapsed and died yesterday shortly after parking his automobile in the rear of the FCA offices, 1301 E street northwest.

MR. KEARFUL

Mr. Kearful parked his car and had answered the greeting of another employe. A few minutes later he was discovered slumped over the wheel. His death was attributed to a heart attack.

A veteran of 21 years in Government service, he was first employed in the Bureau of the Budget in 1921.

Member of the Bar

From 1930 to 1932 Mr. Kearful worked for the Personnel Classification Board, leaving there in 1932 to join the Federal Farm Loan Bureau, which was merged with the Farm Credit Administration in 1933.

A member of the District Bar, he had at one time been a law professor at Southeastern University. He was born in St. Joseph, Mo., and would have been 59 years of age on August 25. He made his home at 1235 Kearney street northeast.

Funeral Saturday

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Agnes Kearful; a son, William H. Kearful, employed in the Treasury Department, and a daughter, Miss Rosemary Kearful.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery following the mass.

Morse Rites To Be Held In D. C. Today

Funeral services for William Henry Morse, 94, night librarian of the Supreme Court Law Library for 33 years until his retirement 10 years ago, will be held at 4 p. m. today at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Morse, active in Yale University alumni affairs here for many years, died Tuesday at a local nursing home.

A nephew of Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, he was in charge of the Supreme Court Library nights when it was located in the Capitol basement, in the same room from which the world's first telegraphic line was established—from Washington to Baltimore.

Upon graduation from Yale, and New York University law school, Mr. Morse became one of the first stenographic law reporters in New York City.

He came to Washington in 1897 and served in the library until his retirement, when the House of Representatives passed a resolution of appreciation of his "service to his country."

He was a son of Jedidiah Morse, author of the first geography written in America.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Marie L. T. Morse and Miss Gertrude T. Morse, both of Washington.

Funeral Services For Dr. McKimmie To Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Dr. Oscar Addison Mack McKimmie, 72, retired Washington surgeon who for many years was a staff member of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Hysong funeral home, 1300 N street northwest.

He died yesterday at that hospital. Burial will be private.

Dr. McKimmie began practice here in 1901 after graduation from Columbian College, now George Washington University, and postgraduate study in London, Paris and Vienna.

During his career he served as professor of oto-laryngology at George Washington University, and in the World War was a member of the medical advisory board and the hospital unit of the aviation examining board. He retired from practice five years ago but remained a member of the Episcopal hospital's board.

He made his home at the Cecil Apartments, 1026 Fifteenth street northwest. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rebe Coleman McKimmie, and a brother, Simon McKimmie, of Washington.

Young Shortstop Connects for Two Homers, Single In 9-to-3 Victory

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Lou Boudreau, Cleveland's sparkling young shortstop, drove in the six marginal runs with two homers and a single today as the Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3, and took the series, three games to one.

Johnny Rigney, tall Chicago right-hander, was the victim of Boudreau's spree and suffered his thirteenth defeat, against ten victories. Boudreau's first home run, his eighth of the year, tied the score at 1-all in the fourth. He connected again in the seventh after Pitcher Al Smith walked and Ben Chapman singled. Boudreau singled in his other two runs in the ninth.

Smith was credited with his twelfth victory, against four defeats, although he was removed for Harry Eisenstat after Digney doubled to open the seventh. Eisenstat retired the next nine Sox batters in order, fanning three.

A ladies' day crowd of 11,169 saw the game.

Two-Man Team Mat Matches On Tonight

Warren Bockwinkle, Golden Terror Meet In Feature Bout

Something new and different will be offered tonight at Turner's Arena. Two-man team matches will be inaugurated on the weekly wrestling bill, which finds Warren Bockwinkle, the St. Louis blond, engaging The Golden Terror, minus hood, in the headline bout.

On one team will be Ed Newman and Lou Plummer, a couple of reformed football players, and on the opposing duo will be two clean, scientific matmen, otherwise identified as Tommy O'Toole and Tommy Mahoney.

All four grapplers will enter the ring at the same time, and let fly with everything they have. It will be the best two out of three falls.

Newman and Plummer are regarded as toughies who have little regard for wrestling rules and therefore considerable fisticuffing is expected.

The feature match also will be packed with action. Bockwinkle was responsible for the Terror's elimination in six minutes from last week's battle royal won by the Missourian.

Two other bouts are slated. Frank Sexton, Ohio Adonis, meets Tommy Rae and Maurice LaChappelle, French star, takes on Emil Dusek.

Action begins at 8:30.

Mike Jacobs Seeks to Buy Dodgers

Club Owners Veto Idea At Start

Fight Czar Wants Full Ownership, but McKeever Heir Blocks Plan With Holdout

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Mike Jacobs, the boxing czar, revealed today that he and a group of unnamed associates were prepared to buy the Brooklyn Dodgers, but one of the owners promptly replied that she wasn't interested in selling.

Mrs. James M. Mulvey, daughter of the late Stephen McKeever and possessor of a quarter interest in the club, made it plain she would block such a deal even if the National League gave its official approval of Jacobs as a club owner.

"I've stuck with them all through the hard times," said Mrs. Mulvey. "Why should I sell now when things are getting better?"

The Dodgers had many lean years before Larry MacPhail was brought in as president, but they passed the million mark in attendance last season and have packed them in many an afternoon and night this summer.

Half of the club's stock in held by the Brooklyn Trust Co., on behalf of the heirs of the late Charles Ebbetts. Mrs. Mulvey owns one-quarter, and the other 25 per cent belongs to the estate of Edward J. McKeever, a brother of the late and colorful Stephen.

Jacobs said the trust company had offered to sell his syndicate controlling interest in the club, but Mike said he wanted to buy the Dodgers only if he could get them "100 per cent." George A. Barnewall, vice president of the trust company and of the Dodgers, as well, confirmed that the bank had approached Jacobs and would like to dispose of its interest.

President Ford Frick of the National League pointed out that no sale could be made until the purchaser was approved by the other club owners.

Hare, Seymour Shine as 'Skins Undergo Drill

Rookies From Gonzaga, Oklahoma Give Coach Thrill; All Muscles Sore

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 7.—The work of a pair of rookie halfbacks had Coach Ray Flaherty's face wreathed in smiles this morning after a strenuous session of signal drills on White Field at Gonzaga University.

It was the fashion in which Ray Hare, who starred for the past two years at Flaherty's old alma mater, Gonzago, and Bob Seymour, former Oklahoma ace, handled themselves that had Flaherty humming happily to himself.

Both boys appeared in top form in handling the ball during signal drill, but it was the ease in which they worked their assignments that particularly pleased the Redskin coach.

Flaherty was so pleased that he said he may order out the blocking pads Saturday for a bit of rough work. As the boys turned out for the second day of training, sore muscles from yesterday's work were in evidence everywhere.

The rookie contingent of 13—8 of whom are seeking line places and 5 seeking backeld spots—seemed to weather the first day's work a bit better than some of the regulars.

Ernie Pinskert, veteran of nine years in the 'Skin backfield, said the new men looked too good and outlined a plan whereby he will steal among them at night while they are sleeping, seize a baseball bat and quietly break each rookie's leg so that he will be assured of his spot this fall.

Oscar Vitt Opposes Bandage for Hurt Buck Newsom

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Manager Oscar Vitt, of the Cleveland Indians, declared today that he will not consent to the use of tape on Lou (Buck) Newsom's thum if the Detroit pitcher attempts to wear the bandage when the Tigers meet the Indians.

"That's the silliest thing I ever heard of," said Vitt. "The rules state distinctly that a pitcher can't have tape anywhere on his throwing hand. Using tape must give a pitcher an advantage; other wise there wouldn't be any rule against it. And I'm certainly not giving the Tigers any advantages."

Since Newsom returned to action 10 days ago he has protected with tape the thumb which was broken on the Tiger's last Eastern trip. Opposing managers so far have consented to this.

Vice President C. C. Slapnicka said he was surprised to find that opposing managers had any choice in the matter.

"I thought the rule barring tape was like the rule barring the spit ball," he said. "It's just illegal, and I didn't think anything the opposing manager could say would make it legal."

53,997 See Dodgers Win on 'Mel Ott' Night

Two Giant Pitchers Pounded as Brooklyn Wins, 8-4, in Night Game at Polo Grounds; Dodgers Collect 14 Hits in Victory

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 7.—Gotham gave a "night of nights" for Master Mel Ott tonight, 53,997 fans packing the Polo Grounds to honor the onetime boy wonder, but they couldn't give the Giants a victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who bombarded two pitchers with 14 hits and triumphed 8 to 4.

The crowd was the largest night turnout in National League history and second only to a 55,305 throng at Cleveland last year in baseball annals. The Giants gave their rooters something to yell for by taking an early lead behind the masterful hurling of old Carl Hubbell, Ott's roommate on the road, but the meanies from across the river belted out five runs in the seventh inning and spoiled the show.

It was the sixth success in six games for the Dodgers in their rivals' stronghold this season and came on the heels of their victory over New York in Brooklyn Monday night. It was credited to corpulent Freddie Fitzsimmons, a former Giant who is the National League's leading pitcher with 11 wins and two losses.

Fitz was nicked for the first three New York runs, two of them coming in the second stanza on Joe Moore's triple and another in the fifth on three successive singles. But when he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, his teammates put on a rally that sewed up the score in his favor.

Dixie Walker led the Brooklyn bombers with four hits, including a homer and a triple. His four-master came in the fifth for Brooklyn's first score and his triple came with two on to start the Dodgers' scoring in the seventh.

After a conference on the mound, Hubbell was allowed to stay in—just long enough to serve another triple to Dolph Camilli. Then Hal Schumacher shouldered the burden and gave up two more singles for two more runs in that inning, and one tally in each of the following frames.

The Giants scored their final run on two singles off Lefty Vito Tamulis in the ninth.

Ott's chief contribution to the celebration in his honor was a spectacular catch of a 450-foot fly by Camilli in the fifth. He beat out a hit in the same inning and scored one of New York's runs.

Elizabeth Hicks Is 11 Strokes Ahead of Field

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Elizabeth Hicks, defending champion from Long Beach, Calif., virtually clinched a second women's Western golf derby today with a 54-hole total of 230, two under ladies par, for the Westmoreland Course and 11 strokes ahead of her nearest rival.

The final 18 of the 72-hole tournament will be played tomorrow.

Miss Hicks carded a 36-38 today, including five birdies, although in the rough frequently on the back nine. Ellame Williams, of Chicago, tied with the champion at the start of today's round, shot a 40-45 nine over par, and wound up with a total of 241.

Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominese, Mich., moved into a third-place tie with Virginia Ingram, of Chicago, each with totals of 248. Miss Wall collected an 83 today and Miss Ingram an 84. One stroke back was Beatrice Barrett, of Minneapolis, with 249, following an 82 today.

Hershberger Rites Set Today

Homers Help Boston Bees Beat Phillies

Powell and Miller's Clouts Lead to 6-3 Night Game Victory

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 7.—Two home runs gave the Boston Bees a 6-to-3 victory over the Phillies tonight. Rookie Carvel Rowell and Eddie Miller hit for the circuit, each with a man on base to play the most important part in the Phillies' seventh straight loss.

Rowell's long fly over the right-field wall came in the first inning after Johnny Cooney had singled. In the fourth, Eddie Miller blasted one of Ike Pearson's fast ones on top the leftfield stands to score Chet Ross ahead of him.

Boston added additional tallies in the eighth and ninth while holding down belated Phillie rallies.

The Phils filled the sacks in the eighth but left the men stranded. In the ninth, Herman Schulte led off with a triple and came home on Joe Marty's three-bagger. Marty scored on Rizzo's infield out and Bill Posedal retired the next two men.

Posedal allowed the Phils ten hits but kept them fairly well scattered. Meantime, Doc Prothro, used four hurlers.

Browns Lose After Rallies Fall Short

Detroit Maintains Half-Game Lead; Gorsica Relieved In 7-to-5 Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 7.—The leading Detroit Tigers had a scare this afternoon but managed to hold on to an early lead and defeat the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5, to maintain a mere half game advantage over the threatening Cleveland Indians.

The Indians open a six-game series here tomorrow.

The tottering Brownies, who surprisingly enough often make their best showing against first division clubs, rallied and scored four runs in the last three innings while blanking the Tigers.

Weakening in the stretch, John Gorsica, Detroit's starting pitcher, was relieved in the ninth by Archie McKain, who in turn had to have help from Alvin Benton, who saved the day.

He retired hard hitting Johnny Berardino and Harlond Clift with the bases filled to protect the two-run lead.

Bill Trotter, making his first start of the season, after appearing in the relief role 23 times, was the losing pitcher, yielding 12 hits and all seven Detroit runs.

Catcher Birdie Tebbetts supplied the big punch for Detroit, coming through with a powerful double with the bases loaded in the third inning.

George McQuinn rapped his thirteenth homer of the year for the losers.

Voigt Takes Time Out From Visit; Plays Rock Creek

George Voigt, the greatest amateur golfer ever produced in Washington, played seven holes at Rock Creek yesterday while here on a visit with relatives. Mrs. Voigt followed him around.

Voigt has been a resident of New York, where he has been in business for a number of years. He has not played a competitive round of golf here since the Brightwood Caddies Association, of which he was a member, ceased to hold its fall tournament five years ago.

The former Walker Cup star played at Rock Creek for the first time in fifteen years, and dropped four birdies in the seven holes. He kept no score.

Duquesne Tackle to Play In All-Star Grid Game

Providence, R. I., Aug. 7 (AP).—Carl Nery, triple threat tackle from Duquesne, accepted an invitation today to play with the Eastern College All-Stars against the New York Football Giants in a charity game at the Polo Grounds, September 4. Nery played guard, tackle and fullback, did all of the team's punting and some of its running and passing.

Favorites Bow In Culver Tennis

Culver, Ind., Aug. 7 (AP).—Two unheralded boys' singles players dropped their seeded opponents from competition in the national junior and boys' tennis tournament today as the favored California junior doubles combination crushed its opposition.

Little Bobby Kring, of Los Angeles, handed out the initial upset by trimming fifth seeded Allen Richardson, of Webster Grove, Mo., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1. Ted Petersen, of Madison, Wis., another unseeded entry, beat Clarence Mabry, No. 7, of Alice, Tex., 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Top-ranking Douglas Woodbury, of Los Angeles, and Bobby Carrothers, of Coronado, Calif., reached the quarter-finals of the junior doubles with two easy victories.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

A tall, gaunt gentleman walked into Clark Griffith's little stucco office yesterday, shook hands with the Nats' boss, and took a chair. As they sat there and talked—Connie Mack and Clark Griffith—they could draw upon 110 years of collective experience in organized baseball. Back in 1883, Connie Mack beat Clark Griffith into organized ball by four years.

POVICH

Special importance attaches this season to the two of 'em. They called the turn on the flop of the Yankees—called it in the spring when the rest of the Nation was conceding the pennant to the "invincible" Yanks and agreeing generally that they should be broken up for the good of the game.

Griffith never was among those who considered the Yanks unbeatable. He predicted their downfall, true enough, but for several seasons he had been pointing to the Yanks and shouting "wolf!" Mack's prophecy had a truer ring. This year was the first since the Yankees started winning their four straight pennants that the venerable manager of the A's foresaw their collapse and said so. He batted 1.000 in his first verbal shot at the Yanks.

At a midwinter dinner in Philadelphia, Mack declared the Yankees did not figure to win a fifth straight pennant. Not only that, but they'd be very apt to finish as low as fourth or fifth. When it was inferred that he was slightly touched, Mr. Mack stuck steadfastly to his prediction that the Yanks could even fall out of the first division.

Why?

"Well," he was saying yesterday, "it wasn't natural for them to go along at that terrific pace. Good gracious, no. I've had pennant-winning teams over a long stretch, and I know how they lose their zest for the game. We didn't win our fourth straight pennant in 1923 because my ball players were beginning to think that pennants come easy."

Was that the only reason Mr. Mack was not highly impressed with the Yankees this year?

"Heavens, no. Baseball teams get old overnight. The Yankees had been through a hard grind for four years and I didn't imagine that some of their players would respond to conditioning. And the league is getting better. I knew they'd have to play better ball this year to win the pennant, and I didn't imagine they would be as powerful as they have been."

Mr. Mack has his ideas as to which club would win the pennant—the Indians or the Tigers?

"I prefer the Tigers. They seem to have better, er, ah—spirit, than the Indians."

It was obvious enough that Mr. Mack wanted to say "more guts" or at least "more courage," but he settled on that word "spirit." He knew it would sort of sound better, coming from Connie Mack.

"That Cleveland club is a peculiar sort of team," went on Mack. "It always struck me that they should do better than they have. Heavens, they have enough good ball players, but somehow they don't—well, they don't meet the emergencies. Now Detroit is different."

Different in what way, Mr. Mack?

"Well, Detroit clubs always seem to be more anxious to win than Cleveland teams. Detroit teams, you know, have a lot of fight. In an important series when my A's were winning pennants, we always considered inferior Detroit teams as tougher to beat than good Cleveland clubs."

The Red Sox could win the pennant, of course?

"Heavens, yes. They're still in it, of course. But the Red Sox don't seem capable of it. Joe Cronin's pitching has been shameful. I do believe that with either the Washington or the Philadelphia pitching he could have won the pennant. I would think they are the best team in the league except for the pitching."

How long did Mr. Mack think it would take the Yankees to bounce back?

"Oh, not long at all. I look for them to win the pennant again next season. They'll bring up those infielders from Kansas City, and the team will start hitting again. They'll know next year that pennants don't come easy; that you still have to win them. And they'll probably win again, because the team with the most good ball players usually does."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 7.—The rebuilding of the New York Yankees, a process which probably will take two or three years, gets under way tomorrow when George Weiss, chief of the club's vast farm system meets with Bill Meyers and Bill Essick in Kansas City. Weiss left here today on the all-important mission.

CONSIDINE

Meyers manages the crack Kansas City Blues, who are headed for another American Association pennant and play-offs and who have usurped Newark's place as the principal Yankee breeding ground. Essick is one of the better Yankee scouts. He's the one who found and purchased for a modest sum the current fielder of the Yanks, whose name momentarily slips my mind.

Meyers, Essick and Weiss will decide just which of the dozens of promising players in the Yankee empire will be tapped for bones and sent to St. Pete to resuscitate Joe McCarthy's bruised and battered forces next spring.

Neither Kansas City nor Newark will be raided this season in an effort to hold up the wobbling champs, although both teams may have to be deprived of a pitcher before the year is over. Each club is headed for play-offs which do not begin after September 15, by which time the Yanks will be beyond all human aid if they don't soon get supernaturally hot. The principal reason the club won't be raided, of course, is that it would sour the fans of Kansas City and Newark on the Yankee outfit, and those fans are important.

Joe McCarthy, alone, will decide which of the Yankees get the gate. There was a story out the other day that 11 of the champs were headed for other pastures. It probably won't be that many. It isn't normal for only one regular Yank, DiMaggio, to be hitting better than .300, and McCarthy knows it. But, doubtless, three of four of the standbys of four pennant captures are even now ticketed for other parts. However, the Yanks must wait until the end of the season to trade. They are prohibited from thinking about deals until such time when they are no longer the champions of the American League—thanks to the ruling put through by a Clark Griffith bloc at the last winter meeting.

When McCarthy finally decides on which positions must be filled with new players, the choice farm hands who are being selected today will get the first crack at the jobs. And, failing that, the Yanks will trade heavily.

No one in the Yankee front office seems to doubt, for instance, that Phil Rizzuto, the 5-foot-6 Kansas City shortstop, will take over the place of Frank Crosetti. Rizzuto probably is the most colorful player in the minors today, for he is fast as a streak, a great fielder and a strong, sharp hitter. His sidekick, Jerry Priddy, will come along with him. A year ago the Yank bosses planned to sell Priddy and break up the great combination. But now the combination will be preserved.

How they'll fit into the Yankee infield is McCarthy's headache. Joe will find it hard to move the incomparable Gordon to some other post. The only other position Joe ever played was shortstop, though he might make a good third baseman. But that brings up the question of Red Rolfe, now hitting a tired .238, nearly 100 percentage points under last year's final mark. And calls to mind the case of Babe Dahlgren, whose fielding is fine, but whose .258 stick average leaves a lot of Lou Gehrig's shoes upfilled.

The best first baseman in the Yankee farm system is Sturm, of Blues, a rangy southpaw who is hitting .336. Hitchcock is the sparkling third baseman of the same team, and he is getting considerably more attention since Rolfe began to slip this season. The Yankee bosses also have had the spotlight on Bahr, 3b; Chartak, lf-1b; Metheny, rf, and Holmes, cf, of Newark, and such Kansas City hurlers as Lindell, Stanceu and Hendrikson. The Yankees trades to come will be mainly for pitchers.

As for the Yanks themselves, the story is that their 1940 decline lopped $1,000,000 off their purchase price. If that is true then score one for Jim Farley and his associates.

Eddie Rack Grabs Printcraft Golf Lead as Balestri Shoots 87

Champion Has 76 for 229 Total

Two 8's Virtually End Beaver Dam Titlist's Bid; Ficco Remains In 2d, 2 Strokes Back

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Edward J. Rack, the McKeesport, Pa., golfer who needs a victory this year to retire the Walter Hagen Trophy, moved the biggest step toward that goal yesterday in the Union Printcraft International Golf Association play at Beaver Dam by taking the lead at the three-quarter mark. A third round 76 gave him a total of 229, two strokes ahead of the field.

Rack moved in as Joe Balestri, considered the District's main hope for the title and the leader at the end of the first two rounds, completely blew himself out of the picture. Balestri, four over par for eight holes, took eight on the eighth and eight more on the ninth, to go out in 49 strokes, 12 over par. He was back in 38 for 87, but he fell 9 shots behind Rack.

However, Charles Ficco, not even considered in the pretournament ratings, hung on in second place by adding a second consecutive 79 to his opening round 73 for a 231 total. Ficco, a local printer, has been shooting in the low 70s at East Potomac, but in his only other U. P. I. G. A. appearance he picked up in the Baltimore tournament.

Ficco's Chances Good

Ficco is the only championship flight player with a reasonable chance of catching Rack, as the visitor has posted three consistent rounds, 77, 76, 76. He hits the longest ball in the tournament off the tee and is a fine putter. Rack won the last two years, in Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

Edgar Heimer, of the host club and president of the District Chapter of the U. P. I. G. A., posted his lowest round of the tournament, a 77, and stands third with 236. Heimer was out in 41, started back with a birdie and a bogey and then posted seven straight fours for a 36. If Rack should slip, Heimer is capable of posting a near-par round that would move him into contention.

Balestri's blowup left him fourth with his 238 total, 73, 79, 87. Former Champion Edgar Merkle, of Columbia Country Club, played par golf for seven holes but finished with 81 for a 240 total, a fifth place tie with John H. Kent, of Boston, who also added an 81. Russell Allen, Kansas City, Mo., shot the second lowest round of the day a 77, for seventh place with 241, two shots ahead of the three-time former champ from Cincinnati, Ed Gableman, whose third straight 81 gave him a total of 243.

Scrap for Team Title

District golfers have clinched the two-man team title, that goes to the two lowest scorers from any city. Ficco, Heimer, Balestri and Merkle are now battling for the two berths on the championship combination.

Rack, who trailed Balestri by two strokes at the end of two rounds, started out yesterday as though he was going to hit the 80's. He was three over par for the first four holes, but he came back with a birdie on the fifth, from a 12-foot putt, and a 60-footer for a birdie on the sixth. He was out in 39 and back in 37.

Balestri tried to play a trick shot out of a tree stump on the eighth, missed, and he finished the first of his disastrous eights. On the ninth hole he was hole-high in two, in a trap. He stayed in after one shot, blasted well over the green in four, back in the trap in five, on in six and two putts.

Clarence E. Purdy, tournament chairman from Beaver Dam, just about clinched the Class A award by posting an 84 for a 256 total, six shots better than the second place due of A. J. Wilson and Florian Wineriter, both of this city, tied with 262.

Donald Spitale, of Rochester, came through with an 84 and a 274 total for 54 holes to lead Class B by seven strokes, over James Graham, of Boston.

Washington supplied the Class C leader in S. G Granger, whose 86 left him at 296 for the three rounds.

Washington, Baltimore Pros To Hold Exhibition for Printers

Houghton, Mel Shorey to Play Bass, Schrieber at 1:30 o'Clock Today

An exhibition match between Washington and Baltimore professionals will be an added feature to the final round of the seventeenth annual Union Printcraft International Golf Association tournament today at Beaver Dam.

Al Houghton, host club professional, and Mel Shorey, Indian Spring, will meet Johnny Bass and Bill Schrieber, of Clifton Park and Mount Pleasant, respectively, in Baltimore. The match will start at 1:30 p. m.

The final round of the tournament today will be followed by the annual banquet and presentation of prizes tonight at the Mayflower Hotel, tournament headquarters. Local printing executives, including Allen Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving, will be among the speakers.

Wiffy Cox, Congressional professional, will be among the pros on the speaker's platform while others will be Al Houghton and Al Treder, Manor.

The prize list is a lengthy one as several trophies and other prizes will be awarded in each class in addition to the two-man team cup, short-hole trophy, women's championship cup and others.

Next year's tournament will be played in St. Louis.

Cameo Routs Grillmen, 10-1, In Post Game

One game—with the Heurich Brewers Friday—stood in Cameo Furniture nine's path to the second-half title in The Washington Post Industrial League yesterday, following a rousing 10-1 triumph over O'Donnell's.

On the strength of yesterday's game, Cameo will probably be favored over the Brewers, who own the first-half crown and are defending league champions. Ottie Printz hurled one of his finest games, allowing only four hits and no walks in the seven innings of action. And Cameo sluggers went to town on the pitching of Senge, Kafka and Liggett for nine safeties.

Staring Pitcher Senge, as a matter of fact, lasted only until one man was out in the first inning. Cameo scored four times in that frame, off three singles, one error and two bases on balls.

L. A. Harbor Head Lauds Regatta Site

Washington's harbor and waterfront received high praise last evening from the Harbor Commissioner of Los Angeles, A. M. Rosenfeld, following a tour of inspection by boat in the company of the District Commissioners and President's Cup Regatta officials. The trip began at the harbor police dock and ended at the Watergate, where the party disembarked to attend the midweek sunset symphony concert.

The cruise was arranged by Thomas P. Morgan, jr., regatta promotion chairman, to meet Mr. Rosenfeld's request for a first-hand view of the regatta course and waterfront improvements. The Los Angeles harbor commissioner, here on official business, declared that the President's Cup Regatta was widely recognized on the Pacific Coast as an outstanding aquatic attraction, and further stated:

"The natural facilities of the Potomac River provide the people of Washington with a perfect setting for all water sports, as well as a splendid harbor. I was particularly impressed with the beauty of your waterfront, in contrast with the unsightliness that marks the shoreline of most industrial ports.

"District of Columbia engineers have created one of the deepest clear channels of any inland port as a result of the recent dredging operations, and you are fortunate that the President's Cup Regatta will be conducted on such a long course of 50-foot depth. You also have perfect spectator facilities along the shore of East Potomac Park, which I understand will be augmented in the future by the large area of the new river front airport that is being completed.

"While we do not have all the natural advantages of the Potomac River, Los Angeles harbor is one of the best developed in the United States. Our harbor, as well, is the scene of many outstanding motorboat and sailing races, and we share your natural pride in the first rank aquatic attractions made possible by wour water facilities.

"The 1940 President's Cup Regatta is certain to be a success under these conditions, and I wish the regatta committee every success."

Yankees Gain Even Break With Bosox

Champions Drop 10-7 Opener, Take Nightcap Behind Russo, 6-3

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 7.—It took a three-run rally in the ninth inning of the second game of today's doubleheader to pull the world champion New York Yankees out of a five-game losing streak, but they made it.

Tom Henrich tripled with two on and then scored on Joe DiMaggio's single for a 6-to-3 victory after dropping the first game, 10 to 7.

Lefty Marius Russo went the route for New York in the nightcap, scattering eight hits. All the runs scored against him came on home runs by Jim Tabor and Manager Joe Cronin, who also had one in the first game.

The Red Sox turned loose a 16-hit assault on four pitchers in winning the opener and again were helped by Yankee misplays, two of their runs being unearned. Bob Doerr hit a homer for Boston and Joe DiMaggio hit his twenty-second of the season.

National League Leaders Drop 10-Inning Battle as Derringer Is Charged With the Loss; Bill Lee Is Credited With Victory

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 7.—Chicago's Cubs said it with home runs and a four-hit overtime attack today, defeating the first-place Reds, 5 to 3, in 10 innings before a ladies day crowd of 18,549.

Failure of Cincinnati batsmen to hit in the pinches cost Big Paul Derringer his chance for his eighth straight victory and his seventeenth of the year as a fifty-third birthday present for manager Bill McKechnie.

Instead, he drew his eighth defeat. Although starter Bill Lee lasted only long enough in the tenth to see one last Rhineland run across the plate, he was credited with his eighth victory, against 13 defeats.

Bill icholson blasted his eighteenth homer of the year in the second, but aside from that Derringer retired 'em all until Stan Hack singled with two out in the sixth.

The Reds loaded the sacks with none away in the third and scored twice as Frank McCormick grounded into a double play and Bib Ernie Lombardi singled.

Derringer, backed by flawless fielding, was helped out of two jams by double plays, once in the seventh after Jimmy Gleeson's score-tying circuit smash and singles by Nicholson and Hank Leiber, and again in the eighth, when Lee and Hack touched him for singles.

Skipper Gabby Hartnett brought out the old squeeze play to score the first of his three winning runs. Dominic D'Allessandro and Al Todd singled and the former scored while Derringer fielded Rabbit Warsley's well placed high bounder. Heck drew Paul's only pass of the day and singles by Billy Herman and Gleeson accounted for two more tallies.

Three singles put Pinch-Hitter Lew Riggs across in the Reds' half. A walk and a force play at the plate twice loaded the bases, but Relief Catcher Bill Baker flied out.

Griff Signs Second Rookie Player of Week

Yesterday's Rained-Out Game Scheduled For September 8

Clark Griffith dipped into college football yesterday to sign an outfielder who will report to the Nats next season. Jim Mallory, star end of the North Carolina University football team, and leading hitter on the Tarheels' varsity nine, came to terms with the Washington club.

Mallory has been playing in the North Carolina Tobacco League which he has been leading with a lofty batting average. The league is not in organized baseball and is composed chiefly of collegians. Charley Keller was a star in the same league before joining the Yankee chain.

Mallory is regarded so highly by the Washington club that he has been forbidden to play football with the Tarheels this season. Last year he was one of the outstanding ends in Southern football.

To Join Farm Team

He has one more college year before graduation and will return to school in September. Thus he will miss spring training with the Nats, but will join a Washington farm team in June.

Mallory is the second rookie to be purchased by the Nats this week. Earlier, Griffith announced a deal for Larry Womack, fleet second baseman with Ocala, in the Florida League, whence came Sidney Hudson.

Womack is the fourth leading hitter in the league, with a batting aerage of .324, has batted in 52 runs and stolen 21 bases. "He's faster than George Case, my scouts tell me," said Griffith yesterday, but he smiled as he said it.

Early afternoon showers caused the postponement of the Nats' scheduled game with the Athletics yesterday, but the two teams will meet in a single game today. Walter Masterson, who was to have pitched yesterday, will get the holdover assignment. The postponed game will be played as part of a Sunday double-header on September 8.

Praise for Hudson

Manager Bucky Harris continued yesterday to be elated by the one-hit shutout of Sid Hudson over the A's and labeled the rookie as the finest young pitcher to come under his management since Schoolboy Rowe came up with the Tigers ten years ago.

How a handicap that threatened to blight Hudson's career proved to be a blessing in disguise was related by the pitcher yesterday.

"I was first baseman with the Sanford Club when Wild Bill Rogers managed it, and he said I'd never be a big league first baseman," recited Hudson. "He said I was too slow on the bases, and I knew it. So he advised me to forget about playing first base and try pitching. My speed afoot wouldn't count against me as a pitcher. His suggestion was the luckiest break I ever had."

Pirate Ship Scores in Cumberland Purse by Half Length

Filly Drives To Victory; Schley Al 2d

Jockey Kelley Pilots Daughter of Hard Tack in Feature; Gold D'Or Third

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 7.—Pirate Ship, aptly named daughter of Hard Tack and Black Flag, drove to a half length victory in the City of Cumberland Purse, featuring the Wednesday program at this point. Racing in the colors of Miss E. Biller and saddled by Trainer Paul Sanford, Pirate Ship finished in advance of Schley Al, half of the Bowman entry, in the test of 6½ furlongs. Gold D'Or, ridden in all directions by Jockey A. Vesseli, was third in the limit field of eight.

The second day of the meeting brought out an even larger crowd than yesterday. Torrential rains last night left the track in muddy condition during the training hours, but it was slow before post time and was drying throughout the afternoon. Pirate Ship, winner of a race at Hialeah Park earlier in the year, was clocked in creditable 1:26 1-5. Scattered backers of the 8-year-old filly collected at the rate of $11.60 for each $2 investment.

Jockey W. Kelley, the riding sensation of the first two days of this meeting, took part in the victory celebration in the infield. He put up a fine ride on Pirate Ship and came back in the sixth race to make it two in a row aboard W. G. Wright's Frank H.

In the feature, Pandoramint set the early pace with Navigation and Pirate Ship close up. This was the order to the backstretch, where Kelley sent Pirate Ship to the front. Pandoramint finally faded and Pirate Ship's opposition then came from the rear of the field. Schley Al, in trouble early, came with good energy along the rail while Gold D'Or charged up on the outside.

The Washington, D. C., colors of Thomas T. Mott were carried to victory in the day's steeplechase. Trainer Judy Johnson saddled Qualm, a 6-year-old mare, and the timber topper got home under a good ride by Apprentice Harold Cruz. The jockey, a former flat rider whose home is in Washington, was aboard a jumping winner for the first time. Qualm led Star On and Flying Clown to the wire and paid $22.50. Cruz rode a waiting race behind Star On's pace.

A pair of favorites, a lucky "7 and 7" combination, accounted for the daily double which struck a new low for recent weeks by paying $10. Glitter Girl, paying $5, won the first event, while Westing, a $5.80 choice, took the second purse.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLITTER GIRL, $5.00, $2.90, $2.60; VEEPEE, $4.70, $4.20; STROLLING IN, $4.20.

GLITTER GIRL saved ground to get to front when VEEPEE ran out, was kept to strong hand ride thereafter and held VEEPEE safe in final drive. VEEPEE, first away, ran to outside fence entering backstretch and came willingly in final test. STROLLING IN, unable to keep up early, saved ground and closed gamely.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:35½. Off 2:37. Winner, Mrs. E. A. Christmas' ch. f. (3), by Westwick—Lespedeza II. Trained by J. H. C. Forbes. Value to winner, $300; second, $65; third, $25; fourth, $10. Time, 1:27⅓.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WESTING, $5.80, $3.30, $2.70; MY GRAND, $3.80, 3.00; KITTIWAKE, $3.70.

WESTING, first away, withstood repeated challenges from MY GRAND and held away under drive to end. MY GRAND, closest to winner from start, shied from Vessell's whip through stretch run and was tiring at end. KITTIWAKE, slow to begin, circled horses to better position and closed willingly.

Daily Double, GLITTER GIRL and WESTING, Paid $10.00

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $500; steeplechase. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:07. Off 3:08. Winner, T. T. Mott's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUALM, $22.50, $10.80, $7.00; STAR ON, $5.60, $4.70; FLYING CLOWN, $3.70.

QUALM, rated while within striking distance, responded gamely when placed to drive approaching eleventh fence, disposed of STAR ON and drew clear. STAR ON lost ground at turns while setting pace and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. FLYING CLOWN raced on own courage early and closed some ground.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 3:36. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. A. S. Bowman's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRAINCHILD, $6.50, 3.10, $2.50; REPEAT, $3.10, $2.60; BUD'S LIGHT, $3.30.

BRAINCHILD was sent to front under hustling tactics, drew clear on backstretch and won with some speed in reserve. REPEAT saved ground, was shaken up approaching stretch and was eased up while holding place position safe. BUD'S LIGHT was keen early factor and weakened. CRIMSON LANCER was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:11. Off 4:12½. Winner, Miss E. Biller's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PIRATE SHIP, $11.60, $6.40, $5.20; SCHLEY AL (entry), $5.00, $3.80; GOLD D'OR, $5.30.

PIRATE SHIP, within striking distance from start, was put to vigorous drive, disposed of PANDORAMINT and held SCHLEY AL safe. The latter, in close quarters early, came with good energy in closing drive. GOLD D'OR, under strong restraint to stretch, came with bold rush and appeared to have been taken up too soon.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:41. Off 4:42. Winner, W. G. Wright's dk. b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRANK H, $10.40, $4.90, $4.30; MAETAKE, $3.90, $3.80; YANKEE LAD, $4.60.

FRANK H. rated while close up in early stages, disposed of MAETAKE when placed to drive. Drew out but had to be kept to pressure to hold away to end. MAETAKE saved ground while racing against rail in slowest going and held on gamely when displaced. YANKEE LAD stumbled leaving gate, could not keep up and closed with bold rush. TEPIN saved ground and held on willingly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:09. Off 5:09. Winner, C. A. Guilotta's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AMERICA FIRST, $15.10, $5.60, $3.50; CLYMENE, $3.30, $2.50; PETEE LAD, $2.80.

AMERICA FIRST, going in best form and rated during opening quarter, took command when asked and was kept to drive to hold CLYMENE safe. The latter was steadied for half, was shaken up and vigorously handled, but hung in final eighth. PETEE LAD bugged in directly after start and was taken up, was strongly handled thereafter, closed gamely and pulled up sore. SEDATE set and forced early pace and weakened badly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:40. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOON HARVEST, $4.90, $4.00, $3.00; CHILLY EBBIE, $18.20, $7.60; UNLAWFUL, $3.40.

MOON HARVEST forged to front in opening furlong, saved ground while setting pace, but had to be put to extreme pressure to hold CHILLY EBBIE safe. The latter slightly bothered by RAZZLE DAZZLE in early stages, closed with good energy under strong handling. UNLAWFUL, steadied for half, hung when placed to drive.

Selection at Cumberland

Dear Al:

The stewards had a busy morning. They suspended Jockey A. Vesseli for three days for rough riding in Tuesday's eighth race. They suspended Jockey W. McDonald for incompetent riding astride Dressmaker in Tuesday's seventh. They announced that they would refuse further entries of the horses Germans and Summer Stock. The former bled and the latter was scratched because of lameness. Galt Davis flew up from Washington to see his Yankee Lad perform. He flew in that fast car of his. Jockey W. Kelley is leading in the battle for the gold watch that goes to the leading rider. He has 13 points to 12 for Jockey Buddy Root. Signs around the stables read "All dogs must be chained or tied." I hope they were not aimed at the Bennings Stable. Wagering on opening day was $6,000 ahead of the similar day last year. Donald Hay sends word that Marlboro mutuel plant is ready. Marlboro will use the Jones finish camera. Russell Oakes, of Charles Town's official family, was a visitor. Jockey Willie Obert believes in advertising. In the entry booth, he has penciled signs on the walls reading, "W. Obert, 105 pounds." Carl O. Schmidt and Frank Brooke, members of the West Virginia Racing Commission, motored here to discuss a fall meeting at Wheeling with Wilmer Brinton and Eddie Brennan, who represent Henry S. Horkheimer, owner of the Wheeling plant. There was a lot of commotion on the track yesterday morning. An auto, scheduled to be placed in the infield for advertising purposes, came on the oval and was parked on the inside rail. Horses were on the track and could not be worked. Horsemen became angry and one fellow yelled, "Let's tar and feather it." Col. Nelson W. Russler, is the announcer and loves to have to do it. He is a standout among Maryland track announcers in his own way. See you on the rail.—Bill.

First race—Rippling On appears suited by conditions in this field. Needs only to get off the reserve list. Distant Star was a recent winner and is best of the eligibles. The Johnston entry of Telemoff and Clay Hill is a threat.

Second race—Hurdy Gurdy is second on the reserve list and may see action. Knows the way around these sharp turns and is fit as hands make horses. Veritas ran good enough at Bel Air to command some respect. Anya and Lady Buck are possibilities.

Third race—Quakerstreet seems to have this jumping purse at his mercy. Needs only to run and fence back to Bel Air efforts. Judges Bid won at the other town and is coming along in good fashion as a steeplechaser. Edgemont showed signs of awakening in that last.

Fourth race—Riotous appears best suited of those in this sprint. Has the stretch punch and the speed. Royal Dot, a recent winner, should be in the thick of contention. Miss Wing is a threat.

Fifth race—Walter Light's last was encouraging and the outside post position should keep this one out of early trouble. I'm going to string along. Irish Moon seems to like this track and is dangerous. Sure Tough had a lot of trouble here Tuesday.

Sixth race—Chalotaur seems well placed in this field. May take the top and stay there. Channing turned a form flip-flop at Bel Air and would be a keen factor off that winning effort. Best Policy probably will be close.

Seventh race—Blox gets my call in this field. Likes the course and has worked well. Oddesa Frank has the closing punch but may be bothered by the short stretch. Dohoev is rounding into shape again.

Eighth race—Mahi has the speed to go to the front in this company and I believe it will be all over but the pay-off. Pin Hooker and Caffeine to fill out the money bracket.

Best bet—Blox.

Your Chance Has Close Call At Saratoga

Edges Fenelon by Head Under Strong Lashing By Jockey Richards

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Mrs. George D. Widener's Your Chance, rated Bimelech's chief rival for the 3-year-old title of 1940, was installed a 9-to-20 favorite to beat two rivals in the fifty-first Kenner Stakes here this afternoon. He won, but only by a head, and it took a strong whiplashing by Harry Richards to save the day.

William Woodward's Fenelon barely lost out while earning the place, three lengths in front of Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson's Call to Colors. The victory was worth $3,325 in purse money to the winning owner. Your Chance, carrying equal weight with Fenelon under 123 pounds, completed the mile and three-sixteenths in the fair time of 1:58.

The attendance was 8,549.

Your Chance looked beaten in the stretch. He charged up on the outside as the small field entered the front straightaway, but swerved badly near the eigth pole. It seemed Fenelon would beat him until Richards, using his "bat" freely, managed to straighten his mount and get him to the front in the closing strides.

Call to Colors stole a daylight lead which began to diminish midway of the backstretch. Fenelon came from second place to run past the leader at the far turn. Your Chance had moved up to almost even terms with Call to Colors at that point.

Fenelon held a narrow lead over the favorite as the pair battled through the home lane, but Your Chance, despite swerving, rallied enough in the last 70 yards to save the day.

It was Your Chance's third straight triumph, he having won the Diamond Stakes at Delaware and the Dwyer prior to this event. The three starters are eligible for the historic Travers August 17, a race in which Bimelech may rule favorite.

Frank X. Shields Blasts Gil Hunt Out of Rye Tennis Tourney

Former U. S. ChampEnters Quarterfinals

1933 Star Almost Beats D. C. Player In Straight Sets; Meets Riggs Today

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Frank X. Shields, of New York, today recaptured some of the impeccable touch that carried him to top national ranking in 1933 when he blasted Gil Hunt, of Washington, D. C., out of the Eastern Grass Court Championships, 6—3, 5—7, 9—7, and advanced to the quarter-final round.

The 29-year-old internationalist, a familiar figure in the late rounds at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, barely missed winning in straight sets, and when the match was forced into overtime, he came within a single point of losing. But Hunt chopped a simple volley into the net and the veteran then won three straight points for the victory.

Shields' opponent in the round of eight will be Defending Champion Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, who eliminated another Chicagoan, Seymour Greenberg, 6—4, 6—3.

Parker in Quarter

The lower-bracket quarter-final matches will pit Frank Parker, of Pasadena, Calif., against Hank Prusoff, of Seattle, Wash. Parker disposed of young Ted Schroeder, Glendale, Calif., 6—2, 6—4, while Prusoff defeated S. Ellsworth Davenport, of Forest Hills, N. Y., 8—6, 6—0.

Lower-bracket berths were filled by Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City; Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Joe Hunt, of Annapolis, and Bitsy Grant, of Atlanta. McNeill won at 6—2, 9—7 over Bob Harman, of Piedmont, Calif., and Mulloy nipped Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., 5—7, 8—6, 10—8.

Midshipman Hunt brushed aside Hal Surface, of Kansas City, yesterday's upset victor over Welby Van Horn, 6—1, 6—2. Grant posted a 6—4, 6—2 margin over John Thackara, of New York.

Miss Jacobs' Score

In the women's division, Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., led the field into the quarter-finals with an 8—6, 6—1 triumph over Helen Pederson, of Stamford, Conn. She meets Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., a 5—7, 6—3, 6—3 victor over Pat Canning, of Alameda, Calif. Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev., won by 3—6, 6—1, 6—4 over Margaret Osborne, of Los Angeles, and Virginia Wolfenden turned back Mary Hardwick, of London, 6—3, 6—4.

Miss Echols Upset in Net Tournament

La Jeanne Echols, strong favorite in the Playground Department Tennis Tournament, bowed out of competition yesterday in one of the most stunning upsets of the meet as a full day of activity was staged.

La Jeanne won her first set against little Mildred Little, of Columbia Recreation Center, by a 6-2 count, but faded before the improved play of the speedy racqueter in the last two sets, 6—4 and 9—7. It was the only three-set match of the day, all others ending in straight sets.

Welsh Loses First Set in Open Tennis

Gains Final, However, With Victory Over Smith at Edgemoor

After having a 56-consecutive-game winning streak broken Tuesday when Dick Murphy eked out a solitary victory, Barney dropped his first set in the annual tournament yesterday when C. Alphonso Smith, with his usual flair, won the second section of their semi-final singles match, 7—5.

Barney won the first and third fairly handily, 6—2 and 6—4, but the damage was done, nevertheless. He will meet the winner of today's battle between Hugh Lynch and Davey Johnsen in the finals.

The only other matches yesterday saw the teams of Lieut. Jim Howard and Lieut. Bill Farrin, and Johnsen and Lynch advance to the semi-finals. The service due had no trouble whatever with Frank Shore and Ricky Willis winning by a 6—2, 6—3 count. And Johnsen and Lynch moved up right alongside them with a 6—4, 6—0 triumph over outclassed Bill Breese and Buddy Adair.

Today's scrap between Lynch and Johnsen promises some of the most exciting action of the meet. They are seeded in the No. 3 and No. 2 spots, respectively. The match should be more closely contested even than the final, in which the unbeatable Welsh will appear. First shot will be fired at 4 p. m.

Shute's P.G.A. Dues Are All Paid Up

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Denny Shute, twice former Professional Golfers' Association champion, has paid up his dues, has sent in his entry with check attached, and generally is eligible to play in the P. G. A. championship starting August 26 at Hershey, Pa.

This is worthy of note because it was Denny's failure to pay his dues and his consequent ineligibility that threw last year's title meet here into a terrific uproar for a day or two. The Hershey tournament will be Shute's first start since he underwent a wrist operation last winter.

Pirates Take 2 From Cards For 7 Straight

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 7.—Showing the fight which Frankie Frisch had promised to instill in them, the Pittsburgh Pirates today ran their winning streak to seven straight by taking a double-header from St. Louis, 10 to 9 and 12 to 6.

The rampaging Buccos now have won 24 of their last 33 games, cutting the margin between them and the pacemaking Cincinnati Reds from 21 games to 14 within two weeks.

Ole Spud Davis came through in the clutch during the first contest with a pinch single that scored two runs in the eighth and assured victory after Pitcher Mace Brown had almost blown an early eight-run lead. The Cards got 18 hits to 9 for the Pirates in this contest.

A nine-run third-inning rally during which Lee Handley, Bob Elliott and Frankie Gustine each made two hits clinched the second game.

4 Marks Fall In D. C. A. A. U. Swim Meet

Patsy Palmer, Wright Shatter 2 Each; W.G.C.C. Victor in Team Race

Little Patsy Palmer and the Washington Golf and Country Club swimming team were the whole show last night as the annual D. C. A. A. U. swimming and diving championships were held at Takoma Pool.

Patsy left two outdoor records in little pieces in the wake of her kicking feet—the 100-yard freestyle and the 150-yard medley swim—and the W. G. C. C. team swept the men's competition with a team total of 56 points. Y. M. C. A. finished a poor second with 12 markers and Airport Pool was third with nine.

Miss Palmer's record-breaking time in the freestyle event was 1 minute 11.8 seconds and in the medley she went the distance in 2 minutes 14.9 seconds. Both were well under previous marks.

In addition to these two scintillating efforts, another pair of marks fell by the wayside, both to Bill Wright, of the W. G. C. C. team. The slippery tankman won the 50-yard freestyle in 24.5 seconds and the 200-yard freestyle in 2 minutes, 12.6 seconds.

Complete results:

MEN'S 50-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Bill Wright (W. G. C. C.); second, Al Hamm (W. G. C. C.); third, Bobby Jordan (W. G. C. C.). Time, 24.5 seconds (new record).

MEN'S 200-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Wright; second, Gordon Mustin (W. G. C. C.); third, Harry Palmer (Airport). Time, 2:12.6 (new record).

WOMEN'S 100-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Patsy Palmer (Shoreham); second, Jean Brunson (Shoreham); third, Betty Ott (Shoreham). Time, 1:11.8 (new record).

WOMEN'S 150-YARD MEDLEY—Won by Patsy Palmer (Shoreham); second, Jean Dodder (Shoreham); third, Lucille Kirsch (Shoreham). Time, 2:14.8 (new record).

WOMEN'S 50-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Brunson (Shoreham); second, Dot Steinreaker (Airport); third, Patsy Palmer (Shoreham). Time, 31 seconds.

MEN'S 200-YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Gordon Mustin (W. G. C. C.); second, Charles Kolius (W. G. C. C.); third, George Sandell (Y. M. C. A.). Time, 2:00.3.

WOMEN'S 100-YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Jackie Kinsey (Airport); second, Lucille Kirsch (Shoreham); third, Rita Essex (Airport). Time, 1:29.

MEN'S 150-YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Tom Harrell (W. G. C. C.); second, John Fielder (Y. M. C. A.); third, William Darnell (W. G. C. C.). Time, 1:58.8.

WOMEN'S 100-YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Betty Strohecker (Shoreham); second, Florence Broaddus (Shoreham); third, Phyllis Palmer (Shoreham). Time, 1:26.1.

MEN'S 300-YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by W. G. C. C.; second, Y. M. C. A.; third, W. G. C. C. "B;" fourth, Airport. Time, 3:36.8.

Bill Ackerman ON FISHING

Sport Fishing Boats Flocking to Ocean City for White Marlin

Fine private sport fishing boats are flocking to Ocean City this season like flies to candy—arriving for the white marlin fishing that has assumed a high-ranking place in the Atlantic coastal big game fishing. Little wonder, with such fishing as was experienced last season, but which really hasn't reached top form as yet this year.

ACKERMAN

Sportsmen and fishing scribes have been furthering the idea of releasing these fish unless it is the angler's first fish or so large as to be a possible record.

To that end Paul and Jack Townsend have posted an award—a beautiful plaque, done by one of America's foremost illustrators, that is to be given the charter boatman releasing the greatest number of white marlin, providing he tags them with United States Bureau of Fishery buttons. With the award each year goes $100 in cash.

That sportsmen and women may also enter into the spirit of this new game, and at the same time dispose of a worthy adversary in a sporting manner, Frank H. O'Brien, manufacturer of the noted Tycoon laminated rods is building two right now to be awarded the man and the woman tagging and releasing at Ocean City the greatest number of white marlin this season.

These two rods are of the same laminated construction as those used at the Cat Cay Tournament this past May by every contestant but one—the only rods that have ever been made that could stand continuously the tough conditions encountered in Bahama fishing. The tip will weigh 10 ounces and made to use 15-thread line in compliance with the regulations of the International Game Fish Association. A weight and size that is light and sporty enough to suit the most discriminating, yet with the ability to bring a white marlin up to the boat quickly. Both are desirable points—the latter particularly so because it allows the release of the fish in better condition and with far better chances of being unharmed in any way.

The same fishing scribes acting as a board of governors for the Townsend award will decide the winners for the award of these two Tycoon rods. They are Ray Camp, of the New York Times; J. Hammond Brown, of the Baltimore American, and Bob Wilson and yours truly here in Washington.

The word "released" is appearing often these days in reporting the catches of game fish, and getting a rod valued at nearly a $100, and one which any angler would be particularly gratified to own under any circumstances, for doing so with the white marlin bill fish he catches this summer down on the Maryland coast is going to make the going far more interesting.

A hurried call from Joe Pancoast, Director of Publicity for Ocean City, last week for more tags shows that most of the boats desire them, which means they expect to release fish.

Capt. Red Hall released one from his Cutty Sark on July 26 without tagging it, for the very good reason he had none. The release has been accepted as official in spite of the absence of the tags, and will be counted as his first fish in the race for the Townsend Award.

Youthful Marksman Wins National Crown

Bobbie Parker Breaks a String of 175 Straight Targets to Take 20-Gauge Title; Deyoe, D. C. Shooter, Eliminated by Youth

By the Associated Press

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Fifteen-year-old Bobbie Parker's shooting eye was finely-focused today, and he broke a string of 175 straight targets to win the 20-gage title as the national skeet championships witnessed another day of stubborn competition.

Young Parker, Tulsa, Okla., schoolboy who won the all-round championship last year, tied two veterans in the regular competition with 100 straight birds.

Then going into extra strings, he first eliminated George Deyoe, of Washington, D. C., when the latter missed two targets of the first 25. His other rival, Morrie Orr, of New York, carried him into a third series of extra targets, however, and Bobbie won by shooting out the string while Orr missed three.

Only the day before, Parker had lost out in the small gage championship to Dick Shaughnessy, Dedham, Mass., schoolboy in a shoot-off that required 225 targets.

The keen competition extended into the women's division today as Patricia (Pretty Pat) Laursen, striking blonde Akron, Ohio, college girl, won the women's division of the 20-gage in a shoot-off with Mrs. M. L. Smythe, of Aurora, Ohio, and Mrs. Morris Orr. Pat tied with the others at 94 in the regular shoot, then broke 24 out of 25 targets in the shoot-off as Mrs. Smythe missed two and Mrs. Orr three.

Professional 20-gage honors went to L. S. Webb, Richmond, Va., with 98 targets out of 100; junior honors were won by O. L. (Junior) Baldridge, Terre Haute, Ind., with 97 and the sub-junior title (for contestants under 13) by Billie Handy, 12-year-old son of a Bridgeport, Conn., arms firm executive, who scored 90.

Young Parker's perfect score combined with the 98 his father, G. C. Parker, chalked up for a winning 196 in the "family division" competition.

Toast of the Sandlots . . .

By Bill Burnett

Four years of softball, basketball, hockey and swimming at Washington-Lee High won Grace Torreyson the title "Outstanding Girl Athlete" at the Arlington institution. Two years with the Arlington Aces softball team easily wins recognition for her in this corner.

Captain and firstbaseman of the club, Miss Torreyson is one of those rare specimens in girls' softball—a home-run hitter. Seldom a game goes by that she doesn't get a homer, and on several occasions she's had two in one evening.

At 18, and with the dimples and brown eyes that go with complete femininity, Grace hardly looks like she'd care to dig into the dirt for a low ball. Yet she does, and with the best of 'em. She likes dancing, but still prefers softball. Even coaxes Manager Barbash to let her catch, instead of playing first.

As much as she likes to slug, Grace thinks her best game was against Shell's girls last week. She got only one hit, a single, but it started a winning rally. She bats and throws right-handed, a great deal like a boy.

Off the diamond Grace wears Apple Blossom perfume in her hair. And incidentally, she lives at 3811 Seventeenth street north, Arlington, Va. She'll start in pursuit of a law degree at V. M. I. this fall.

Coach Proposes Frosh Rule Waiver if Conscription Comes

By the Associated Press

Villanova, Pa., Aug. 7.—Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith, former Notre Dame star, whose Villanova football college teams have lost only four games in his four years here, proposed today that freshmen eligibility rules be waived this fall if the military conscription bill becomes law.

"Some of the leading coaches," he said, "already are discussing how to offset losses in man power which enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth bill might bring."

"Clipper," author of numerous novel coaching stunts, offered as a solution lifting the ban on freshmen in varsity football "until this emergency has passed."

"It is fairly certain that young men between the ages of 21 and 31 will be subject to call," the Villanova mentor said after a study of pending draft legislation. "In our own case, this means that 27 men of our squad of 44 will be eligible for military training.

"In nearly every college the draft law will affect the seniors and some of the juniors. The upper classmen are the experienced players and the backbone of any football team. If they are called up, it is obvious that a great number of the colleges will be minus some stellar performers this season."

Smith expressed belief all football coaches would willingly "sacrifice" upper classmen to national service "even though it means rebuilding our entire teams."

Suspension of the freshman eligibility rule "will have the dual effect of giving the first-year men experience right away and will put experienced teams on the field next year," he said.

"Clipper" declared waiving of the freshman rule should not "create a precedent for the general letdown of other rules."

Vultee Aircraft To Consolidate With Stinson

Army Plane Maker Plans Big Expansion In Tennessee Valley

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 7.—A corporate consolidation which will join an important maker of military planes and a well-known commercial aircraft concern, and which will bring a big expansion of plane building in the Tennessee Valley area, was announced today by Vultee Aircraft, Inc., and Aviation Manufacturing Corporation.

Vultee will take over the Stinson aircraft division of Aviation Manufacturing, and plans an immediate expansion of the latter's plant at Municipal Airport, Nashville, Tenn.

Aviation Manufacturing Corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of Aviation Corporation, and the latter owns about 60 per cent control of Vultee.

The price to be paid for the Stinson properties, which also include a parts plant at Wayne, Mich., is 302,168 shares of Vultee, valued at present market prices at about $2,115,000. Stinson has previously produced only commercial, trainer and observation types of planes, while Vultee, whose main plant is in Los Angeles County, Calif., has concentrated on fighting ships.

The announcement said: "Extent of the ultimate expansion at Nashville will depend on the future course of events, but it is probable that present facilities will be enlarged immediately to three or four times the present area." The present floor space is 180,000 square feet, and employment about 500.

However, it was learned that eventually, Vultee expects to build a plant which, with equipment and tools, will have a value of $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 and may employ 6,000 to 7,000 persons. Such a development, it was said, will be dependent on the rate at which Government plane orders are released.

Kennecott Posts 11c Copper Price

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Kennecott Copper Corporation, one of the Nation's biggest producers of copper, today cut the price ½ cent to 11 cents a pound, the first revision in this division of the trade since late February.

The new price is the lowest since the big producers boosted the price nearly 2 cents a pound in less than a week at the outbreak of the war last September. Since then the price has tended downward.

The new price now puts the major producers in line with the custom smelter market, which yesterday reduced the price ¼ cent to 11 cents a pound.

Other major producers also posted a quotation of 11 cents soon after Kennecott's announcement.

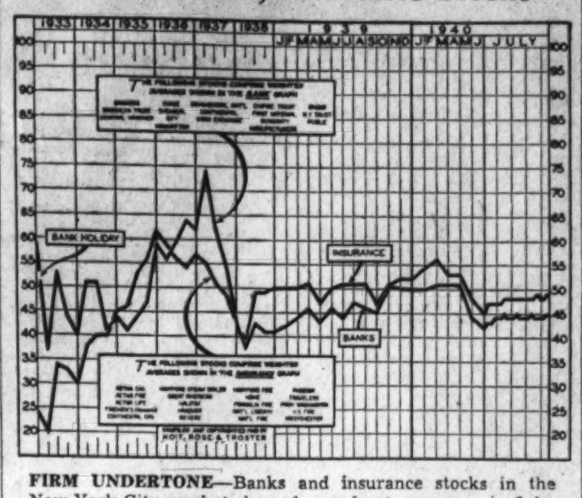
Foreign Markets

London, Aug. 7 (AP).—The securities market tended downward today although sales were few and far between. Cable and wireless stocks improved in the industrial list while modest declines appeared for such issues as Courtaulds, Imperial Chemical and Imperial Tobacco. British government bonds closed unchanged to around ⅛ points lower. Rubber shares were droopy despite a steady price for the raw commodity. Domestic rails fell back and general oils inclined downward.

Liverpool.—Cotton futures advanced 3 to 7 points today. Uneasiness over the near eastern situation inspired a covering movement which took care of profit-taking sales.

Trend of Bank, Insurance Stocks



FIRM UNDERTONE—Banks and insurance stocks in the New York City market showed a moderate recovery in July, reports Hoit, Rose & Troster

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler
A Special Correspondent.

Incentive Lacking, Stocks Drift Idly; Metals and Equipments Edge Lower

New York, Aug. 7.—The stock market today followed the pattern which has come to be regarded as customary. Nothing in the European war situation, in domestic business or politics, or in our efforts to promote a defense program has supplied the necessary incentive for a market that is worthy of the name.

Again today there was only desultory trading on the big board. A total of 239,690 shares changed hands and prices tended to ease off irregularly. The composite average lost 0.11 point.

Steels came back somewhat after their weakness of Tuesday and the oils were steady. Metals and equipments didn't fare so well and there was some selling in miscellaneous manufacturing issues.

To some it was a surprise that the market paid so little attention to the action of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on taxes. This group recommended an excess profits tax bill which will give companies a choice between two bases, with the right to select the one which carries the smaller levy. One is based on an average of the net income for the period of 1936-1939 and the other on the increase in the company's rate of return on capital during the same period.

Coupled with definite assurance from Congressional leaders that the amortization controversy will be settled by permitting five-year retirement of debt incurred in connection with expansions brought about by the defense program, this would appear to be sufficient assurance for companies to take on new arms contracts. The trouble doubtless lies in the fact that the above consist of verbal assurance and recommendations of committees, whereas Congress and the Administration have had months in which to clear this particular bottleneck. The procrastination and red tape which has surrounded this particular problem, which in essence is a simple one, naturally promotes distrust.

It is a safe guess that if Congress would turn its assurances into law, and the Administration would spend wisely the billions which have been voted for defense, we would see actual military equipment instead of blueprints and equipment on order. Also investors in companies which are anxious to help the defense program, would know better how to judge the effect upon their investment.

The present desultory action of the stock market reflects the indecision which investors and everyone else in the Nation feels over the manner in which the vital question of defense is being handled.

Trading today was not much different from that of other recent days. Tractions were active again and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit was the day's most active issue. Price changes in these issues were minor, however.

International Paper issues were active and stronger, the preferred adding nearly 2 points. Steels were well supported, Bethlehem closing up nearly a point. Texas came back a small fraction after having been under unusual pressure following the disclosure of close connections between one of its executives and the German commercial attache in this country.

Business news was favorable. A feature was another rise in electric power output to a new high for the year. The betterment over the previous week was 0.2 per cent and over a year ago was 12.0 per cent. The Iron Age review of the steel industry put operations of the industry at 91 per cent of capacity and anticipated no seasonal setback. Preliminary indications from individual railroads held out hopes of a rise in carloadings. Automobile companies are expected to have their 1941 models on the market within another month or so.

Foreign issues and a few domestic bonds of the speculative variety reflected modest demand in the listed market today, but most senior securities were idle and inclined to move fractionally lower. United States Treasury bonds lost small fractions of a point, while highest rated utility, railroad and industrial issues held around former levels. Trading in all listed bonds totaled only $3,510,000.

Pontiac Starts On 1941 Models

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 7 (AP).—Announcing the beginning of 1941 model production by his company, Hary J. Klingler, president and general manager of Pontiac division of General Motors, said today that output schedules of 10,000 units for August and 22,000 for September have been set.

He described the 1940 model year as the best in the company's history with a factory production of 217,000 cars. "We are hoping for a 30 per cent increase in 1941," he said.

In addition to anticipating an increase in its own production, Pontiac expects to handle certain foundry work for other General Motors divisions.

Tobacco Review

The Agricultural Marketing Service reports average prices for tobacco sold on the Southern Maryland auction market steady to slightly stronger for the period of August 5 and 6 as compared with the preceding week. Gains of from 1.00 to 2.00 a hundred pounds were shown in most of the lower grade tobaccos, the better grades remaining steady. Volume of offerings has declined somewhat, but the general quality remains unchanged.

Heavy Drought Damage Seen In Corn Belt

Nebraska and Kansas Reported Worst Hit; Ohio Also Suffers

By the Associated Press

Reporting serious drought damage in several States, the Weather Bureau said yesterday the corn crop needed rain badly in practically all portions of the Midwestern feed-grain belt.

Damage was said to be greatest to early-seeded corn in Nebraska and Kansas. In the Ohio Valley much of the upland crop was said to be firing badly and tasseling short. The bureau said recent showers had improved the late crop in Nebraska and South Dakota.

In Iowa, progress and condition were described as good, although about one-fourth of the crop in some areas was said to have suffered permanent damage. Despite serious damage due to dry weather, corn in Missouri localities where there was sufficient rain made fair to good progress.

In most areas from western Nebraska southward over western Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, the bureau reported, drought conditions had reached serious proportions. Stock water was becoming scarce, many wells were failing and pastures were drying up, it said.

Canadian Gold Output Sets Top

Ottawa, Aug. 7 (AP).—Quantity and value of gold produced during 1939 were the greatest in the history of the Canadian mining industry, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today.

Production of new gold from all primary sources totaled 5,094,379 fine troy ounces, compared with 4,725,117 the previous year. Gross value of output was $184,115,951, an increase of 10.8 per cent from 1938.

Ontario mines contributed 3,086,076 fine ounces, Quebec 953,377, British Columbia 626,970 and Manitoba 180,875.

Kresge Sales Up 1.7% in Month

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—S. S. Kresge Co. today reported July sales increased to $11,216,749 from $11,031,221 last year, a gain of 1.7 per cent. For the first seven months sales expanded to $79,941,796 from $77,695,111 in the comparable 1939 period, up 2.9 per cent.

S. H. Kress Co.

July sales of S. H. Kress & Co. were reported at $6,514,079, an increase of 4.6 per cent from $6,225,134 in July last year. For the first seven months sales stepped up to $43,864,003 from $41,950,797, also a gain of 4.6 per cent.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Official reports of serious drought damage to the crop in several Midwestern States today hoisted corn prices sharply.

The official weekly weather report, which some trade observers called "alarming," said rain was needed badly in practically all portions of the corn belt. Even in Iowa, where recent good rains were thought to have fallen in time to prevent injury, the report indicated that about one-fourth of the crop in some areas had suffered permanent damage.

Borne upward in a late rush by this report, corn finished at near the day's top levels and 1 to 1⅞ cents higher than yesterday's finish. September 61¾@62⅞. December 57; wheat unchanged to ⅛ up. September 74½@74⅝. December 75¾@75½; oats ⅛ to ¼ advanced, rye up ⅜ to ½ and provisions 17 to 20 lower.

Wheat moved up fractionally early and again at the close, chiefly on the strength in corn. There was little in the news to encourage the trade, a report from the Argentine said red rust had been noted in wheat growing in northern Argentina, the earliest date at which rust had ever been seen. Weather conditions there were favorable this week. A report that Great Britain had taken 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat this week wasn't considered of much significance.

Other grains followed wheat rather than corn and showed but minor changes. Lard futures, however, dipped to the lowest levels since early May, with prices off 17 to 20 cents.

Cotton Futures

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Southern selling of cotton futures gained momentum today as time for the first Government crop estimate, due Thursday morning, drew near. Final prices were off 2 to 5 points. Selling also appeared prompted by rumors a loan rate at last year's basis might be announced late this week.

A third bearish item was the generally favorable weekly weather report.

Memphis brokers and houses with southern connections were the most vigorous sellers. Demand was confined chiefly to trade and mill buying.

Trade ideas regarding the Government August 1 estimate centered around 11,340,000 bales, compared with last year's crop of 11,817,000.

Worth street reported slim trade in textiles as firm and unchanged prices. Ducks and other coarse yarn goods were expected to play an active part in the Government Army expansion program were the items claiming most attention.

No exports Tuesday; season so far, 14,589 bales. Port receipts, 3,470; port stocks, 2,467,829.

Dumping of Farm Surpluses Abroad Viewed Best Solution

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
Economic Commentator.

After two decades of battling for equality for agriculture, the battle of molding public opinion has been won. Irrespective of the outcome of the November election, the party in power will be aware of the need of seeking to restore prosperity through lifting agriculture into the price range of protected American industry.

In the long fight for nonpartisan treatment of the farm problem, none has been more consistently active than George N. Peek, retired farm implements maker. Twenty years ago he and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson broke new intellectual ground with their brochure entitled "Equality for Agriculture." Mr. Peek tried as first administrator of the AAA to carry out his principles, but was in part obstructed by anti-profit motive theorists, on the one hand, and by internationalists, on the other.

MR. PEEK

Mr. Peek's basic contribution to thought on the subject was his insistence that the farm and the international trade problems were closely interrelated.

Mr. Peek takes the position that there would be no farm problem if agricultural prices were not subject to international influences whereas prices on industrial products reflect the effective working of the protective tariff.

Wanting to protect higher American living standards, Mr. Peek would continue the industrial tariffs and give agriculture a compensating boost through relating prices on those portions of the staple farm crops produced at home to the prevailing high American wage rates. Yet he would not want to handicap our exports of surplus farm products through reflecting in their price domestic social considerations. Instead he advocates a two-price system for agriculture.

In blunt language, this would mean dumping the surpluses in foreign markets at the best obtainable price. He long ago proposed doing so by making direct deals among nations.

From the outset, he predicted that the contrary Hull principles of generalizing reductions of American tariff rates to all friendly nations was visionary and was doomed to failure. In light of the advances of the fortunes of totalitarian nations, growing numbers have come over to Mr. Peek's viewpoint.

When the present Administration began to talk of a barter corporation for all Latin-American trades, it was beginning to use Mr. Peek's language. However, Mr. Peek as a businessman would limit agreements to specific propositions based on actual trade needs and advantages.

Mr. Peek has taken the "farm parity" formula seriously and has urged excluding competitive farm imports when prices are below parity with industry.

As former foreign trade adviser to President Roosevelt, Mr. Peek, who broke with the Administration in 1935, advocated administering foreign trade by a foreign trade board instead of by a multiplicity of bureaucrats in the State Department and in the Commerce Department. The thought was that the diplomats of the State Department, who are the foreign salesmen of American policy, should not also determine policy.

Mr. Peek thinks that the time for the academic debate which he has had with Secretary Hull since 1934 over the latter's trade pacts is now over, inasmuch as, in Peek's opinion, war events in Europe and Asia have rendered the existing trade agreements obsolete. Mr. Peek thinks that the agreements are in fact treaties and that hereafter they should all be made subject to Congressional approval. At present, the Executive has wide discretionary power, which has resulted in the cutting of 1,200 American tariff rates.

The significant fact about the outlook for farm policy is that the opposition is likely to differ from the Administration more in respect to technique than as to objective. The old Coolidge idea of letting farm prices take care of themselves has seemingly been rejected.

Rail Orders 18 Diesel Engines

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—An order, said to be the largest of the kind ever placed, for 18 Diesel-electric passenger locomotive units, was announced today by C. McD. Davis, executive of Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

While the value of the order was not revealed, a spokesman for the road said both the dollar total and the horsepower involved were the greatest on record for passenger Diesels.

The Electro-Motive Corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors Corporation, at La Grange, Ill., will build the units.

William L. Shirer, Columbia Broadcasting System's correspondent in Berlin, has been assigned to cover that unique event in history which starts today—the trial of former political and army leaders of France before the Petain government's new Supreme Court at Riom, France.

Shirer is to give his eye-witness reports of the proceedings on Columbia's program "The World Today" over WJSV at 5:45 p. m., (E. S. T., at the same time Friday and Saturday—and well, for that matter, at the same time for as long as the strange trials continue.

The men on trial before the court, which is to fix "war responsibility," include three former prime ministers of France—Eduard Daladier, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum—the former Allied commander in chief, Maurice Gamelin; the former Minister of the Interior, Georges Mandel, and many others who occupied high office in France before its collapse in the wake of the German blitzkreig.

Shirer is an Iowa boy. He went to the University of Chicago and after that worked for newspapers in the Midwest before, in the quest of adventure, shipping on a cattle boat for Europe. He worked on the Paris Herald. Subsequently he was Paris correspondent for the Chicago News. He went to work for C. B. S. at the start of the first crisis (certainly you remember), since then, hasn't missed one which he wasn't willing to tell Columbia listeners about.

Today's Radio Highlights

3:45 p. m., WMAL—Bill Stern continues his reports on the Eastern Grass Court Tennis Championships at the Westchester Country Club.

5:45, WJSV—William L. Shirer, C. B. S. correspondent in Berlin, covers the trial of political and army leaders of France before the Petain government's new Supreme Court at Riom. He will continue to cover this strange trial so long as the fates of three former premiers of France—Edouard Daladier, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum—are held in the balance.

6:15, WJSV—Lanny Ross, who will be heard at this time for the balance of the summer on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, is offering a program of traditional army songs tonight: "Pack Up Your Troubles," "There's a Long, Long Trail" and the bugle call, "Boots and Saddles."

6:30, WJSV—Remember that page in Sunday's rotogravure section on that film they are making in Charlottesville, Va? Madeleine Carroll, Fred MacMurray and Marie Wilson are the stars. "Virginia" is the picture, and there's a lot about it on this week's "Vox Pop."

7:15, WOL—Hottest news of the week: An all-Negro cast swings Planquette's celebrated opera, "The Chimes of Normandy." The same cast which contrived the swing version of "The Mikado" does the deed.

7:30, WJSV—Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, retired, won his title of king of the headhunters while with the Army in the Philippines in 1899. On Strange as it Seems the General tells how he put an end to headhunting.

8, WRC—This is getting near Bing Crosby's vacation, which means Bob Burns will handle the Kraft Music Hall for umpteen weeks. Bob is on deck tonight after a six weeks' layoff. Charles Laughton and Jose Iturbi are the guests.

9, WRC—Edward Everett Horton joins Rudy Vallee, Harriet Hilliard and Maxie Rosenbloom in a grass-skirt sketch of old Hawaii.

9:30, WMAL, WJSV, WRC and WOL—"Our National Defense" is the subject of a Round Table discussion by William Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius, Sidney Hillman, Harriett Elliot, Leon Henderson, Chester Davis and Ralph Budd, all members of the National Defense Commission; Earl Godwin, Albert Warner, Fulton Lewis, jr., and Baukhage are the networks' commentators.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — I Say, Winston, We Have Company — BY MILTON CANIFF

YIP! YIP! WE'RE AWAY! NICE FLYIN', MR. HENNICK!
THANKS, SONNY! ...SETTIN' THIS BEER TRUCK IN THE AIR IS NOT A BIT HARDER THAN PUTTING WINGS ON A CROSS-COUNTRY BUS!
YOUR LOOSE-FOOTED GAL FRIEND MUST HAVE GONE TO TEMPLE ROCK BY BOAT... WE'LL BE OVER THE PLACE IN NO TIME — UNLESS....
UNLESS WHAT, DUDE?
UNLESS THE BRITISH GUNNERS AT HONGKONG THINK WE'RE THE FIRST WAVE OF A BLITZKRIEG!
WE JUST HAVE TO HOPE NONE OF THEIR OBSERVATION POSTS PICKS US UP!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

THE REASON THE "PURPLE SHIRTS" ARE GETTING BEHIND YOU, JOHN, IS SO THEY CAN STAB YOU IN THE BACK!
WHY... WHAT DO YOU MEAN MR. SCREED?
SIMPLE ENOUGH, LEONA! THEY'LL GIVE OPEN SUPPORT TO YOUR HUSBAND, KNOWING IT'LL RUBBER RIM WITH ALL BELIEVERS IN DECENT GOVERNMENT...
BUT WHEN ELECTION DAY COMES, THEY'LL VOTE AGAINST HIM, SECRETLY!
LET THEM TRY! I'LL BLAST THEM IN EVERY SPEECH AND PUBLIC STATEMENT!
FOLKS MAY NOT BELIEVE YOU, JOHN-- YOU SEE, THE WORD HAS BEEN WHISPERED AROUND THAT YOU ARE A MEMBER OF THE PURPLE SHIRTS!

DONALD DUCK — What! No Rubbers? — BY WALT DISNEY

YES... LEAKING! WHAT KINDA APARTMENT ARE Y' RUNNING?
I'M SORRY, SIR! I'LL BE RIGHT UP!
BOY! WHEN I KICK I GET ACTION!
KNOCK! KNOCK!
SEE! HE'S HERE ALREADY!
IS THIS WHERE THE ROOF IS LEAKING?
YES!

MICKEY FINN — The Personality Kid! — BY LANK LEONARD

THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE CITIZENS' PARTY HAS BEEN CALLING YOU ALL DAY, PHILIP—THEY WANT YOU TO GO DOWN THERE RIGHT AWAY!
THEY PROBABLY WANT ME TO SPEAK AT SOME DINNER—SO DON'T BOTHER COOKIN' MY SUPPER!
Y-YOU MEAN YOU'RE NOT WILLING TO PAY FOR THE BUTTONS AND THINGS I'VE ORDERED?
WE CAN'T, MR. FINN—OUR CAMPAIGN FUND IS LOW—AND, AFTER ALL, YOU ARE NOT THE ONLY MAN WE ARE RUNNING FOR A PUBLIC OFFICE!
BUT IF I DON'T MARCH MUFF'S BALLYHOO HOW DO YOU EXPECT ME TO GET HIM?
WE'RE COUNTING ON YOUR PERSONALITY —ON YOUR ABILITY TO CONVINCE YOUR MANY FRIENDS THAT YOU ARE A MAN THEY CAN TRUST!
HOW ABOUT HANGIN' ME UP FOR A HAMBURGER AND A CUP OF COFFEE UNTIL NEXT WEEK, LENNY?
NOTHIN' DOIN'!

DIXIE DUGAN — What's That Noise — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

2 LOUD THUMP WAS HEARD UPSTAIRS!
SOUNDED LIKE A CHAIR FELL OVER!
SOUNDED HEAVIER THAN THAT TO ME!
LET'S GO UP AND LOOK.
MAYBE WE'RE NOT ALONE!
THAT'S FUNNY — EVERYTHING SEEMS O.K., DOESN'T IT?
EEK!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Prisoner — BY FRANK V. MARTINEK

YOU— CAN'T FIND THE SCORPION?
THERE'S ONLY ONE ANSWER. HE'S BURIED UNDER ALL THOSE TONS OF ROCK!
GOT TO MAKE SURE—
STOP—DON! DON'T MOVE! YOU'RE BADLY WOUNDED
OUT LIKE A LIGHT! DROP EVERYTHING, MEN— WE'VE GOT TO GET HIM BACK TO THE SHIP QUICK!
WHILE ONLY A FEW YARDS DISTANT, HIDDEN BY THE FALLEN ROCK, WALT LIES A MOTIONLESS FIGURE.

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

THANKS, PAMELA, FOR LETTING ME USE YOUR WARDROBE AS A DARK-ROOM TO DEVELOP MY PRECIOUS FILM! THIS IS GREAT!
YOUR SHOT OF ZORENA WAS GOOD, THEN?
YEP! GAZE UPON THE FIRST PORTRAIT EVER MADE OF "SATAN'S SISTER!" WITHOUT HER VEIL!
UGH! FILM SPOILED! FACE ALL BLACK!
IT'S A NEGATIVE WAHOO! AND A PERFECT ONE!
YES, THE CALCUTTA BRANCH OFFICE OF ATLAS PICTURES INC., CAN MAKE A BEAUTIFUL ENLARGED PRINT!
BUT HOW WILL YOU GET THE FILM THROUGH KASBAR'S GUARDED BORDER?
BY MEANS OF THIS "DOVE" I HAD SENT FROM THE CALCUTTA OFFICE — "FOR SACRIFICE TO THE GODDESS KALI!"
A CARRIER PIGEON! HOW EXCEEDINGLY CLEVER!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

PURSUING WOLFTOOTH, KING IS THREATENED AT GUN'S POINT BY SALLY'S FATHER WHO REFUSES TO RENT HIS BOAT TO THE MOUNTIE!
DAD, TELLING THE TRUTH, THAT SHARK IS FOOLING YOU
YOU KEEP OUT OF THIS, SALLY!
PLEASE, DAD—FOR ME! THIS IS YOUR CHANCE TO WORK WITH THE LAW!
ALL RIGHT, SALLY. THE MOUNTIE CAN USE MY BOAT
SO BROWNING'S CANNON SIDES, EH? WELL, THEY WON'T GET FAR WITHOUT GAS!

Houses Wrecked As Storm Hits Texas, Louisiana

By the Associated Press

Port Arthur, Tex., Aug. 7.—A death-dealing hurricane stormed inland tonight, leaving a trail of destruction and uncertainty in the Sabine area of Texas and Louisiana.

Three lives were lost, 25 persons marooned and six injured as the 75-mile-an-hour winds overtook some of the hundreds who sought safety in flight, either inland or to public buildings.

Roaring into Texas from the east, the storm lashed Port Arthur and Orange. First of the season, it whisked roofs from houses, uprooted trees and sent advertising signs whirling dangerously through the air.

The fatalities all occurred in Louisiana. James Gordon, 60-year-old fisherman, drowned near Alluvial; an aged, unidentified refugee was caught trying to flee high tides, and a Chinese youth drowned in Barataria Bayou.

Twenty men and five women marooned at a fishing camp at Black Bayou near Orange had been warned, but elected to ride out the storm. Telephone lines were down and boatmen would not risk a trip to determine their safety.

Three persons were injured, windows shattered and small buildings damaged at Beaumont as the storm passed out of Jefferson County and headed northwest. A 3.9-inch rain fell.

J. F. Coombs, Jefferson County agent, estimated the damage to the rice crop in that area might reach $500,000. He expected only slight damage to other crops and livestock.

Approximately 150 persons were marooned for a few hours in the parish courthouse at Cameron, La., as the storm swept water two feet deep through the little fishing town.

Winds of moderate gale force were indicated for a wide area of south central Texas, from Lufkin to Temple, which lay in the path of the disturbance if it continues its northwestward course, the Weather Bureau said.

Rich oil fields near Humble, Cleveland, and possibly Conroe, near Houston, were in the storm's path. The Gulf Oil Co. dismissed employes for the day to shepherd their families.

Port Arthur was never completely cut off from communication, but power failed in portions of the city.

Sugar Cane Damaged

Heavy rain fell throughout the area and northward into Louisiana where National Guardsmen were training for maneuvers.

Extensive damage was inflicted on the sugar cane crop near Houma, La., by the high winds, but there was no report of crop damage in Texas thus far.

Nineteen persons reported missing yesterday in Louisiana were located today by Coast Guardsmen near Morgan City. Rehabilitation work was already under way in Louisiana under Red Cross direction, and waters were returning to normal levels in the New Orleans area.

Nazi Shake-up In New World Envoys Looms

By the Associated Press

A shakeup of German diplomatic and consular staffs in the Western Hemisphere was forecast in reliable quarters yesterday as a result of measures adopted at the Havana Pan-American Conference against "Fifth Column" activities.

German authorities were said to be perturbed by the determined attitude of the American republics and by the manner in which some Nazi officials have aroused concern in the countries where they were stationed.

A possible withdrawal of a considerable number and their replacement by diplomatic officials less active as Nazi party members was expected by some well-informed persons.

One German agent in the United States believed listed for early recall to Berlin was Dr. Gerhard Westrick, the commercial counselor of the German Embassy, whose operations in New York have received widespread publicity.

Meets Nazi Disapproval

While his conference here on Monday with Hans Thomsen, German Charge d'Affaires, was said officially to have brought no change in his status, the publicity given his relations with prominent businessmen in New York and his activities generally were understood to have met disapproval of German authorities.

Another possibly due for a transfer was Baron Edgar von Spiegel, German consul general at New Orleans. A remark attributed to him that Germany would not forget the aid given its enemies by the United States caused a State Department inquiry. The incident was closed with a notice to the German Embassy that foreign diplomatic and consular officials must refrain from public discussion of this country's policies and attitudes.

The American foreign ministers at Havana adopted a series of measures designed to check subversive activities, one of them aimed directly at diplomatic and consular agents in Latin-American countries.

"Hands Off" Attitude

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Dr. Leopoldo Melo, head of the Argentine delegation to the recent Havana Conference, today described the "Pan-American view" as one of keeping hands off the internal affairs of other countries.

"If you want to live in peace in your own country," he said, "the best thing to do is to keep away from the internal affairs of other countries—by minding your own business."

He expressed the opinion that the conference of American republics, in Montevideo, in which the United States participated, had confirmed the view that "there should be no intervention of any kind."

Speaking through an interpreter, Dr. Melo said he agreed with President Roosevelt's view of the necessity of "solidarity and union among the American nations."

"The Argentine wishes to preserve peace in the Western Hemisphere," he continued. "She supports also the maintenance of the principles of international law in this part of the world.

"The Argentine strives to maintain the power of right in international law against force and violence, defense of the principles of self-determination for all peoples, and defense of democratic institutions."

Dr. Melo, who conferred yesterday with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, said he would fly to Washington for a meeting with Secretary Hull. He will return to New York for a visit to the World's Fair tomorrow, and will sail for home Friday.

U. S. Charged With Offering South America Secret Loans

Rep. Crawford Accuses Milo Perkins of Making 'Sub Rosa' Propositions at Havana Parley; FSCC Head Issues Denial

A charge of making "sub rosa" promises of loans to Latin American nations at the recent Havana conference was flung at the Administration yesterday in a Republican attack on President Roosevelt's proposal to furnish the Export-Import Bank with $500,000,000 more lending authority for credits to nations below the Rio Grande.

Rep. Fred L. Crawford (Michigan), broke out at a House Banking and Currency Committee hearing on the $500,000,000 proposal with the allegation that Milo Perkins, president of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, had gone to Havana to make the loan offers in secret.

Crawford made the charge in support of Republican assertions that the bill to increase the Export-Import Bank's loan authority to $700,000,000 was a "back door" approach to the highly-publicized "cartel" plan for buying up all Latin American surpluses in an economic war against dictator nations.

Perkins, reached for comment, said he had attended the Havana meeting last month and had discussed commodity loans with representatives of Latin-American republics.

He denied, however, that he had made any offers of commodity loans to Latin diplomats, pointing out that he had no authority to do so. The loan question, he said, was one of many that he had discussed at Havana.

Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, said in testimony on the loan bill that he could offer "no security at all" that the credits to Latin America would not be voided by revolutions, but he considered the transactions "a good risk."

"If we are to sit here and operate a pipe line from the Treasury to Latin American countries permitting them to have barter deals," Representative Crawford said, "we will finance Germany, Italy and Japan and at the same time make it harder to pay back the loans."

The Michigan legislator drew from Jones an assent to amending the bill so that it would bar loans to colonies of nations at war.

Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan, ranking Republican member of the committee, got Jones' agreement to an amendment prohibiting transshipment to belligerent Europe of any goods bought with money secured by the proposed loans.

The House committee asked Jones to appear again today at 10:30 a. m.

Attorney's Wife Kills Sick Son, 31, and Self

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Estelle Silverstein, wife of a prominent Oakland attorney, shot and killed her son, Phillips Loney, 31, then fatally wounded herself, Police Lieut. Leon Carroll reported today.

The shooting, in the home of the husband, Bernard Silverstein, was listed tentatively by police as a "mercy slaying." Loney, Mrs. Silverstein's son by a former marriage, had been ill.

School Board Fails To Name Teachers; Budget 'Too Low'

Woodstock, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Shenandoah County School Board adjourned its August meeting yesterday without forwarding contracts to teachers for the 1940-41 term.

The board took the position that the curtailed school budget prepared by the county board of supervisors was inadequate for a full school term and did not constitute a valid basis upon which to extend teacher contracts.

Corporate Funds Used to Pay Hopson's Bills, U. S. Charges

Utility System Money Spent for Personal Items Directly and Indirectly, Even For Dog License, Attorney Declares

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 7.—The government charged today that Howard C. Hopson, accused of illicitly milking $20,000,000 from the billion-dollar Associated Gas and Electric System, used corporate funds indirectly to pay for a $1 license for his brother-in-law's dog.

"The system paid directly for the rent of Mr. Hopson's hotel apartment, the salary of his personal chauffeur . . . the expenses of trips to Florida, his personal telephone bills, and advanced cash for his personal expenses," Special Assistant United States Attorney General Hugh Fulton declared.

Fulton's statement was made as he filed a two-volume bill of particulars charging the former utility magnate and two associates, indicted with him May 9 on charges of mail fraud and conspiracy, with having made 200 false statements in Associated Gas & Electric Co. litigation in recent years.

Asserting the 58-year-old utilities executive was not "satisfied with having defrauded the purchasers of securities and with the profits made by his service companies," the prosecutor added:

"Hopson resorted to the pettiness of padding bills which were paid directly or indirectly by companies within the Associated System.

"Other items, paid indirectly through various companies, included bills for food, groceries, cigars, liquors, linens, theater tickets, hardware, gardening implements, fertilizers for Mr. Hopson's lawn, motor robes, medicine, cameras and radios."

Hopson's codefendants are Charles M. Travis and Garrett A. Brownback, lawyers. They are scheduled to go on trial September 3.

During the post-war boom Hopson ran a few thousand dollars into control of a billion through a series of pyramided holding companies, each controlling by a relatively small investment the larger assets of subordinate companies.

Stockholders repeatedly charged that Hopson was "syphoning" the profits of the lower companies up into the top company and his pocket. The Government has been investigating him since 1933. In 1935, he resigned his offices, retaining investments.

Last January the Government ruled that the subordinate companies were not in position to pay dividends to the upper companies and, with the flow of profits thus cut off, the top controlling unit went into technical bankruptcy.

In February, the Government filed a $2,600,000 income tax lien against Hopson, four relatives and five corporations he controlled.

Central Va. Area To Get Extension Of Power Line

Special Dispatch to The Post

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 7.—Allocation of $64,000 recently made by the Rural Electrification Administration to the Central Virginia Electric Cooperative, Inc., of Lovingston, will be used for the construction of 50 miles of rural power lines to serve 215 members in Nelson, Amherst, Albemarle, Fluvanna, Buckingham, Cumberland, Louisa and Orange counties, it was announced here today.

The borrower previously had been allotted $378,000 to build 553 miles of rural power lines to serve 1,808 in the counties mentioned above and in Rockbridge, Appomattox, Goochland and Prince Edward counties.
